SLAYING OF DOLLFUSS IN REVOLT REPORTED

Today

It's Already Smashed. Out of Hawaii, What? Dillinger, Jealousy, Cash. So They Spend $25,516.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

SENATOR BORAH denounces monopoly as the cause of all our troubles, and says "smash the monopolies." As it happens, happenings since 1929 have smashed the monopolies fairly well.

If anybody has a monopoly that you would like to own you can get it at a bargain.

SENATOR BORAH says purchasing power must be restored to the great mass of the people. President Roosevelt agrees, combines deeds with words, according to the recommendation of the other Roosevelt, and has handed out thousands of millions of dollars, thinly disguised as wages, saying in effect "go and buy yourself something."

Hundreds of millions are paid to the farmer for not working, leaving fields unplanted and other millions have been paid to cotton growers for ploughing cotton under.

THE PRESIDENT reaching Hawaii is greeted with the friendly "Aloha," also with a remark which when "the good" Tom Williams repeated it sounded like "moloki-hoi."

The President will have a string of flowers put around his neck, and then, like little children that have said "Merry Christmas" to papa and mamma, Hawaiians like other good Americans, will stand around, wondering what they will get. It must be a wonderful thing to say as President Roosevelt can say, "Here, have a billion, or two."

WHAT POPULATION will Hawaii develop in time, with its present mixture described by Time as 146,000 Japanese, 6,000 Filipinos, 27,000 Chinese, 22,000 Polynesians, 29,000 Portuguese, 7,000 Puerto Ricans, 45,000 whites and 31,000 mixed breeds.

These human "breeds" are intermarrying, carrying out on the little island on a small scale, the process of mixing two-legged races that has gone on ever since the first Cromagnon gentleman type met the first Neanderthal lady type in the old stone age.

There is nothing more important than these mixtures of races, for real peace on earth and good will toward men will not come, probably, until the earth has only ONE race, and therefore no "enemy."

ALREADY IMAGINATION starts building the Dillinger "romance." The lady in the case, whom criminals would call "the finger woman," because she obliged the detectives by putting her finger on Dillinger, is supposed to have hidden in the woods with the bandit. Jealous rage seized her when another woman came to join the killer and she betrayed him to his death.

The reward of $15,000 probably had more to do with the "finger" than any jealous rage.

"Jealousy is cruel as the grave; the coals thereof are coals of fire, which hath a most vehement flame," as we learn from Solomon.

But in these practical days there is something about fifteen thousands dollars that is also powerful and vehement.

MR. AND MRS. PETERS (he was "night man" in a small Hoboken, N. J., lunchroom) won $25,516 in a sweepstake lottery, and felt that they should show that winning, in a lottery, is a good thing. They drove to collect their money in a rented 16-cylinder car with a liveried chauffeur, and "opened" champagne.

Any expert accountant can show them that four per cent on $25,516 will not stand that strain. Some "get-rich-quick" expert will probably show them how to change $25,516 into $10,000,000—then Mr. Peters will be "night man" again.

CONDITIONS IN Vienna are bad, with more dangerous riots expected as Nazi terrorism continues its bomb explosions. Nazis in Austria declare that "Roman Catholic priests led Chancellor Dollfuss in his campaign against the Nazis," and a Nazi spokesman declares that Nazis "have determined to kidnap the Roman Catholic priests as hostages." As soon as any Nazi terrorists are sentenced to death, and hanged, their friends will kill the priests held as hostages.

IN PENNSYLVANIA, where the substantial "Pennsylvania Dutch" once presided over families of ten, twenty or more children, the birth rate has fallen to 16 per 1,000 of population, lowest on record.

Knowledge of birth control plus foolish laws that keep out the kind of emigrants that created the United States make a combination not very promising.

Sitting above him, looking down, with satisfaction and triumph, you observe a detective and wonder how that detective's expression would change if Dillinger suddenly came to life. The picture reminds you of the frequent photographs of small Englishmen each with one foot on the body of a big dead tiger. What a difference if the proud hunter had met the tiger face to face in the jungle instead of shooting him from the back of an elephant.

IN CHICAGO, with a temperature of 100, cattle pens in the stockyards are crowded and a strike of 750 stock handlers, compels the animals to go without food or water. Many cattle were shot to end their suffering. If they could write a description of the "new era" it would have exclamation points scattered through it.

Under a pitiless sun that made a sizzling furnace of sidewalks, the mercury was shooting upward toward the 100-mark today for the hottest day of the year.

A break in the devastating heat was predicted for tomorrow by Observer W. S. Brotzman. The forecast calls for local thunderstorms tonight and tomorrow morning, accompanied by cooler weather.

The official thermometer at the weather bureau was 13 degrees higher at 9 o'clock this morning than at the same hour yesterday. Only low humidity kept the heat from becoming more stiffling.

Yesterday's high mark of 98 broke all records for that date. Today's record of 96 would be exceeded, the weather man said, unless a cloudiness developed from a low pressure area along the lakes.

Record temperatures clutched the Mid-West yesterday. Chicago had an all-time high of 105 and Detroit, 104, while the highest official mark was 117 at Vinita, Okla.

Town Quarantined Against Diphtheria

SHARON SPRINGS, Kan., July 25.—(INS.)—This Western Kansas town was practically isolated from the outside world today by a vigorously enforced quarantine to prevent the spread of a diptheria epidemic which already has taken five lives. All roads leading into the town were blocked as the number of diptheria victims increased overnight from 60 to 170.

Wife Found Slain, Husband Arrested

James Costley, Negro, was arrested today charged with murder, after police, arriving at his home at 1835 Rowley street, found his wife, Gladys Costley, 22, Negro, lying on the floor, stabbed to death with a butcher knife. Two men and a woman, all Negroes, who were in the house at the time, were held as material witnesses.

2 TROLLEYS IN CRASH; 11 HURT

Verona Merrymakers In Collision on Way to Park

Eleven persons en route to the Oakmont-Verona community picnic at Kennywood Park were injured today in a head-on crash of two trolley cars on the Verona line a quarter of a mile north of the Frankstown road in Penn Township.

A special car bearing picnickers, mostly women and children, was rounding a curve on a long upgrade near the Bon Air stop when it was hit by a descending car on the single track.

The front ends of both cars were demolished by the impact. Panic struck, the care-free picnic crowd, as their car, brakes apparently out of control, began drifting down hill.

LEAP FROM CAR

Amid screams of frightened passengers and crash of shattered glass, half a dozen of those aboard leaped through windows.

Motorman Stanley Borden dashed through the car calling on everyone not to jump. The car finally stopped at the foot of the grade, below Bon Air station.

Ambulances from Columbia, West Penn and Pittsburgh hospitals rushed to the scene. One injured picnicker was taken to each hospital. The others were treated at the scene. None was seriously hurt, the Pittsburgh Railways Company announced.

In charge of the picnic car was

GODDESS 'DATE' FOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt has a date today with Mme. Pele, fire goddess of Kilauea—most active volcano in the world.

His vacation route for the day lay first to Hilo, on the Island of Hawaii, and thence by motor through tropical jungle to Kilauea, with its crater eternally boiling lava. Kilauea lies within the Hawaiian National Park, hard by the highest island mountains in the world, Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea.

Dillinger Raid Nets Sister of His Sweetie

CHICAGO, July 25.—(AP.)—Two women tenants of a basement flat were taken into custody today by police under Capt. John Stege on a tip that the flat had been a hideout of John Dillinger.

One of the two women was Frances (Patsy) Frechette, 28, sister of Evelyn Frechette, the slain desperado's former sweetheart, now serving sentence for harboring the bandit.

'WOMAN IN RED' TELLS OF TRAP

CHICAGO, July 25.—(AP.)—From the "girl in red" police learned today more about how John Dillinger walked into the trap that ended with death his career of crime.

The "girl in red," one of the two women who were with the Indiana outlaw just before he was killed by federal bullets, was Mrs. Anna Sage, 42, brown-haired and brown-eyed. Police arrested her last night at her home just around the corner from the Biograph Theater, out of which Dillinger walked unsuspectingly Sunday night to his death.

Mrs. Sage told police she knew John Dillinger as "Jim Lawrence," and that he posed as an employe of the Chicago Board of Trade.

From the "girl in red" after long questioning by the police came the story of the last woman Dillinger associated with, named by Mrs. Sage as Mrs. Roy Keele, (also known as Polly Hamilton) 26-year-old divorced wife of a Gary (Ind.) policeman.

'TIP' SOURCE CONCEALED

But it was not learned whether Mrs. Sage or Mrs. Keele furnished the information with which Dillinger was trapped. Both fled from the scene of the shooting, but Mrs. Sage returned, after changing her red dress for another. Mrs. Keele declined to go

U.S. NET STARS CLINCH MATCH

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 25.—(AP.)—Sidney B. Wood, Jr., and Frank X. Shields, playing magnificent tennis, today won the final two singles matches from Australia in the interzone final of Davis Cup play to advance to the challenge round against England.

Wood first defeated Jack Crawford, ace of the Aussies, 6-3, 9-7, 4-6, 4-6, 6-2, in a match postponed from yesterday by rain and Shields then put over the clincher against young Vivian McGrath, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

They meet England for the historic cup in a five-match series starting Saturday and continuing next Monday and Tuesday.

It was the fifth time the United States had won to the challenge round since losing the cup to France in 1927. Only in 1931 and last year, when England defeated them in the interzone, had they failed to gain the final round of the international tennis competition.

HICKMAN FREED IN GIRL KILLING

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—(AP.)—The question of "who killed Louise Jeppesen?" remained unanswered today as Millard Hickman, 45-year-old marine engineer, was freed of the charge that it was he who strangled the Ogden (Utah) girl in Golden Gate Park last May.

A Superior Court jury required only one hour and 49 minutes' deliberation and but a single ballot last night to find Hickman innocent.

The state had demanded the death penalty.

In its efforts to send Hickman to the gallows, the state had built up a circumstantial case, charging that after a gay party he attacked the Jeppesen girl in his apartment, drove her to Golden Gate Park and killed her because of fear she might accuse him.

Mail Bunco Case In Hands of Jury

NEW YORK, July 25.—(AP.)—The federal mail bunco case against James C. McKay and William J. Graham was given to a jury at 12:45 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) today.

AUSTRIAN GOVERNMENT TOTTERS AS NAZI UPRISING GROWS

VIENNA, July 25.—(AP.)—Austrian Nazis captured Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss today at his office in their long-expected "putsch" and, at the end of four hours of mad excitement, civilians at the Chancellory cried:

"Dollfuss is dead!"

They had just left the building into which a group of Nazis had smashed and from which a police commissioner had emerged to announce that the chief of the government had been shot and seriously wounded in a struggle. There was no way of getting into the chancellory to conform or disaprove the report.

Other government officers, apparently headed by Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, vice chancellor, and with the apparent approval of President Wilhelm Miklas, issued an ultimatum to the Putsch leaders warning them either to release Dollfuss and abandon the chancellory by 5:48 p. m. (12:48 p. m. Pittsburgh time)- or the loyal Heimwehr would attack.

Telephone communication between Vienna and the outside world was broken off shortly after the ultimatum deadline.

At least six men (reports received in London said ten) were reported killed in the street fighting which immediately flared up in Vienna and at other points in Austria.

At Klagenfurt, early reports said that President Miklas had been taken into custody by federal soldiers, but subsequent developments made it appear likely that the soldiers had been acting as a guard.

GIVES ROAR ON STREETS

The loyal Fascist Heimwehr and federal troops poured into the Ballhausplatz—the great square in front of the Chancellery—as conflicting reports circulated throughout the city.

The battling Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, head of the Heimwehr and vice chancellor of Austria, escaped from the Nazi captors and immediately organized his own counter-action. A diplomat in touch with him declared the prince had sent an ultimatum to the Nazi leaders of the troops declaring that Dollfuss and the other cabinet ministers held captive must be released at once or the army would attack the chancellery.

In the four hours from the time the "putsch" was launched, Vienna had experienced one-half hour of machine-gun fighting and several pistol affrays.

The police commissioner also said that Anton Rintelen, Austrian Minister to Rome, will take over the chancellorship. A Neustaedter storm trooper, however, said he had come from President Miklas to announce that Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg, minister of justice and education, would take over the government and that all other reports were false. This threw the

Shank Loses Move To Escape Chair

PINE BLUFF, Ark., July 25.—(AP.)—Circuit Judge T. G. Parham today refused to grant a petition for a writ of mandamus to attorneys for Mark H. Shank, of Akron, O., condemned quadruple slayer, to compel S. L. Todhunter, superintendent of the State Prison at Tucker, to hold a sanity hearing for Shank immediately. Shank is scheduled to die in the electric chair at Tucker Friday morning.

ILL DUCE AWAITS DOLLFUSS VISIT

ROME, July 25.—Ironically, while Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, of Austria, was a prisoner of Nazi revolters in his own chancellory at Vienna today, Premier Benito Mussolini, of Italy, was at Riccioni, on the shores of the Adriatic, where he expected to meet Dollfuss for a conference on Friday.

Mussolini was keeping in close touch with events in the Austrian capital, but made no comment upon them.

Frau Dollfuss, wife of the Chancellor, and her two children, already were at Riccioni, awaiting his arrival. It was believed, however, that they were unaware of the Nazi "putsch" in Vienna since only meager news had reached their seaside resort.

New Strike Silences Telephones in Cuba

HAVANA, July 25.—(AP.)—A new strike by 1,100 employes of the Cuban Telephone Company tied up service throughout the island today.

Company officials and the strikers both said they would not accept an order of the cabinet for re-employment of more than 200 leaders of previous strikes. A spokesman for old strike leaders said the present walkout was sponsored by telephone officials.

Fall Over Dog Kills Retired Circus Queen

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—(AP.)—For years Florine La Velle defied death from the flying trapeze of the "big top."

Three weeks ago she tripped over her pet dog at the head of a flight of stairs. She declined the services of a physician and last night she died of the injuries. She was a member of the "Flying Greers" two decades ago.

'Harem' of 5 at Bier Of John Dillinger

By JACK LAIT

International News Service.

MOORESVILLE, Ind., July 25.—Unnoticed and unknown to the thousands of local admirers of the late John Dillinger who choked all roads in this section to file past the body of their notorious dead, were five women. They were strangers to his neighbors, but to me, a stranger, they were well known. At least four of them were ladies of the mob, the Dillinger mob.

Dillinger never "worked" close to home, so the excited Mooresville folk, on the biggest day of their lives, with thousands of visitors milling about, little suspected that rubbing shoulders with them were Pearl Elliott, Irene Williams, Mary Kinder, Margaret Behrens and "Babe" Longacre.

Within hand-shaking proximity to state troopers and detectives from many Indiana towns, Pearl Elliott and Irene Williams drew up to Harvey's undertaking plant, parked their smart little maroon-colored coupe, got out and fell into line.

It took my breath away. There are in a hundred cities, official

Jury's Verdict Awaited On 'Wild Party' Trial

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—(AP.)—Dave Allen and Gloria Marsh today awaited the verdict of a jury which heard their trial on morals charges growing out of an alleged "wild party" in the Hollywood film colony.

Allen, on leave of absence as head of the Central Casting Corporation, a film employment agency, and Miss Marsh, redheaded extra player, expressed confidence in an acquittal as the jury of eight men and four women took the case late yesterday. The jury failed to arrive at a verdict in two hours of deliberation.

Both defendants denied they had participated in an immoral party with Miss June De Long, film extra and the star prosecution witness, as charged by the state. Allen contended the case was a "frameup" designed to cause him to lose his position.

In his instructions to the jury Judge B. Rey Schauer said:

"A crime of this nature is easy to charge but hard to prove."

He told the jurors that a verdict of not guilty should be returned if the evidence gave indication of a conspiracy against the defendants.

UNION PERMITS 'CLEANUP' OF MARKET

Spread of Walkout to Commission Men's Handlers Seen

CHICAGO, July 25.—(AP.)—The Chicago Union Stockyards reopened today under an agreement between officials of the yard and striking handlers to permit the disposal of stock on hand.

It was a "cleanup" market, designed to permit the merciful slaughtering of stock shipped in on ordinary commercial accounts. Yards officials were confident that all of the commercial stock could be cleaned up before 3 p. m.

A revised estimate placed the number of privately owned cattle at a little more than 5,000. The remaining 65,000 to 70,000 cattle belong to the federal government, and were purchased for relief purposes. In addition, there were 5,000 head of hogs and a few of sheep.

Striking handlers asserted that they would not interfere with the market so long as the handling was not done by strike-breakers.

Meanwhile the feeding of the cattle, most of which had received nothing but water, was begun by nonunion crews.

Reports persisted that handlers for commission men, who have their own union, would join the strike at the close of the day, but union officials refused to comment. A walkout of union butchers and slaughter house employes was considered likely.

Only a few of the cattle were fed yesterday, although most of them received an adequate supply of water. This morning white-collared commission men, driving hay trucks, passed along the network of pens. Their efforts, however, reached only a small part of the privately owned stock. By far the greater part of the cattle were the property of the federal government.

A government official said the federal cattle had been watered and would continue to be as long as water was available. He said 6,000 head would be shipped to points in the South and East today if cars could be obtained.

However, there was only a limited force available for loading.

U. S. Action, Martial Law Loom in Twin Cities

International News Service.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 25.—Federal intervention — martial law—bloodshed—or arbitration—faced this western half of the Twin Cities today.

The Rev. Father Francis J. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan, federal mediators, hoped it would be arbitration.

Father Haas called the Federal Labor Board and it was reported he asked for permission to invoke federal authority to force the truck drivers, who are on strike and whose strike has resulted in one death and 67 wounded, and the employers, into real negotiations.

They had both declined the suggestion to hold an election and see whether the "inside workers"—the celery trimmers, radish pullers and others—were to be represented by the William Dunne truckers union.

Mediators Haas and Dunnigan discussed the entire situation with Gov. Floyd B. Olson and Mayor A. G. Bainridge at a conference in the Mayor's Lake Minnetonka home last night, but agreed that no agreement had been reached on the suggestions by the mediators—their own idea—that the workers be permitted to vote as to their representation by the truckers.

Employers took the position that employes would be "intimidated." Union leaders took the position, it was understood, that not only representation, but wages were involved.

Meanwhile, Mayor Bainbridge declared "trucks will move as usual under police guard when requested."

After the conference, Gov. Olson still indicated that martial law would be invoked only in the event that a substitute proposal by the federal mediators utterly failed.

Laundry and cleaning plant "inside workers" indicated that following the sharp telegram from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that their one day "sympathy" strike was ended.

U. S. Ends Buying Of Doomed Cattle

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP.)—The Farm Administration has ordered temporary suspension of purchasing of cattle in the drought area because of the strike in the Chicago stockyards and congestion of cattle at other markets.

Aluminum Employes Delay Calling Walkout

Truce Parley Held For Debate of Union Issue

A threatened strike of 30,000 aluminum workers in the United States, set for midnight tonight, had been postponed today until August 3, following a conference of officials of the National Council of Aluminum Workers, American Federation of Labor heads and officials of the Aluminum Company of America. The postponement was made in order that company officials can have opportunity to study proposals made by the men. The principal issue involved, it was said, is the closed shop.

A statement, signed by Roy A. Hunt, Aluminum Company president, and Boris Shishkin, economist for the A. F. of L., and spokesman for the union, read:

"The committee from the Aluminum Workers' Council met with officials of the Aluminum Company of America today and presented certain proposals, which they wished the company to consider. The meeting was adjourned until next week, Friday, August 3, to give the company an opportunity to study these proposals. The proposals cover the working conditions and employment relationships in the plants.

"The Aluminum Workers' Council has been authorized by the constituent unions to decide upon the question of strike at its own discretion, pending negotiations with the company."

Shishkin and A. R. Buller, of La Grange, Ill., president of the council, were accompanied to the conference by David Williams, Pittsburgh organizer for the A. F. of L.; Fred A. Wetmore, of Alcoa, Tenn., secretary-treasurer of the council, and J. N. Stacey, of Messina, N. Y., and J. P. Howlett, of New Kensington, vice presidents.

U. S., Reds 'Sincere' In Talks on Debts

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(INS.)—A "sincere disposition to reach an agreement" on the American debt and damage claims against Soviet Russia was evidenced on both sides in the opening of new negotiations with Soviet Ambassador Alexander Troyanovsky, the State Department announced today.

Ambridge Alien Sent to Buffalo

An order was made in Federal Court for removal of John Karkovich, alias Ivan Karkovich, 48, native of Jugo-Slavia, to Buffalo, where he is under indictment on a charge of illegally entering this country at Niagara Falls, May 1. He was arrested May 23 at Ambridge by immigration officers.

Karkovich, according to immigration officers, has twice been deported, but each time managed to slip back into the United States. He was deported as an undesirable alien, because of a criminal record, having served terms in Sing Sing Prison and at Waupun, Wis.

McNair Has to Fire Old College Chum

Under orders from Mayor McNair, his aides today dispatched a letter to Walter Stifel, an old college chum of the Mayor's, notifying him of his dismissal as clerk in Traffic Court.

City Council instructed the Mayor to dismiss Stifel on grounds that he was not a resident of Pittsburgh. Stifel lives in Oakmont, and the city charter provides that a city employe must be a resident of Pittsburgh for at least six months.

REPUBLIC STEEL DISPUTE AIRED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The wage dispute between the Republic Steel Company, of Warren, O., and its employes was heard today by the Steel Relations Board, set up by President Roosevelt to iron out such disputes.

The Republic company refused to sign the wage agreement with the workers on the ground it did not know with whom they were dealing.

The case of the workers as represented by the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers was presented to the board by Charlton Ogburn, counsel, and Edward W. Miller, of Pittsburgh, vice president of Amalgamated. Representatives of the steel company will appear before the board later in the day.

Labor Union Seeks Parley With McNair

Opposing the plan to divorce city employes from labor unions, the Central Labor Union today was seeking a conference with Mayor McNair to protest the proposed action.

P. T. Fagan, president of the union, announced that the secretary, Howard L. Woodmansee, had been instructed by the executive committee to arrange for a conference. McNair and cabinet members who favor the move plan to meet leaders of organized city employes August 6 to hear their viewpoints.

EXTRA SESSION NEED DOUBTED BY PINCHOT

Governor Not Aiming To Call Legislature In Relief Crisis

HARRISBURG, July 25.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot said today he has "no plans" to call a special session of the Legislature to tap new tax sources for the relief of Pennsylvania's 300,000 unemployed.

The Governor said he intends to confer later in the day with Chester H. Rhodes, Democratic nominee for the Superior Court, who is one of the three Democrats who talked with federal officials yesterday concerning the unemployment relief situation in Pennsylvania.

After the meeting in Washington, Rhodes, Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, and David L. Lawrence, Democratic state chairman, issued a joint statement in which they said it appeared a special session to finance relief was unavoidable.

Pinchot asserted he will not consider that statement final until he has had a chance to discuss the situation with Rhodes. He said:

"The statement issued by Mr. Guffey, Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Rhodes after interviews in Washington apparently intends to make it clear that a special session cannot be avoided.

"I do not accept this conclusion as final and shall continue to use every means in my power to avoid calling a special session."

2 SCHOLARSHIPS OPEN TO BOYS

The Alumni Association of the University School, East End, has announced that two free scholarships, with an annual value of $750 each, are open to boys residing in Allegheny County. From among the applicants one will be chosen from Pittsburgh and one from outside the city.

Requirements are that the candidate have a scholarship standing of at least 70 per cent, that he be unable to pay for a college preparatory education, and that he be in good health. Applications may be made to the school's headmaster.

Pajama Chase Ends In Suspect's Arrest

A pajama-clad pursuer caused the arrest early today of William Norton, 28, of 5112 Bayard street, accused of attempting to enter the home of Mrs. R. E. Tice, 812 South Aiken avenue, East End.

Daniel Gonzales, of 814 South Aiken avenue, was awakened by the sound of a window being forced. Clad in pajamas, he reached the street as a man started to run. Gonzales gave chase, meeting police summoned by Mrs. Tice. Norton's arrest followed.

Wealthy Flier Killed By Fall Into Sea

REHOBOTH, Del., July 25.—(INS.)—The plunge of his airplane into the surf near here today had taken the life of Allen L. Lauritsen, 40, wealthy building contractor and sportsman of Wilmington.

Lauritsen received a broken neck and a fractured skull as the plane fell into 7 feet of water in the surf 50 yards off-shore late yesterday. Many vacationists witnessed the crash.

'HEX' SLAYER'S PLEA WINS MERCY

Pinchot Cuts Sentence Of Youth Doomed To Life Term

HARRISBURG, July 25.—(AP.)—His plea that he meant merely to practice "hexerei" and not to help kill Nelson D. Rehmyer has saved John Curry, 19, convicted York County "hex" slayer, from a lifetime behind prison bars.

Five more years the youth must serve of his life term, and then become eligible for parole, the State Pardon Board and Gov. Pinchot have decided.

Acting on the board's recommendation, the Governor yesterday commuted Curry's life term to 20 years, of which he must serve half before he may be free. Five of those 10 years have been spent in a cell since Rehmyer's slaying on Thanksgiving Day, 1929.

On the day of the tragedy, Curry went to Rehmyer's home with John H. Blymer, 38, and Wilbert G. Hess, 23, to break a "spell" Blymer believed Rehmyer had cast on him. They sought a lock of the old man's hair, or a book he owned—burial of either of which was supposed to break the "hex."

Rehmyer would give up neither, and was beaten to death.

Curry, who has been serving as secretary to the prison welfare officer and studying painting under Robert Susan, Philadelphia portrait artist, told the pardon board he had no thought of killing Rehmyer, but merely was practicing the "black art" of hexerei."

CARELLI DENIED FREEDOM

Albert Carelli, "Blue Bandanna" gangster, today had been refused a pardon by Gov. Pinchot. He is serving 28 to 59 years.

Saul Klein, former city fireman convicted of a minor election fraud, received a pardon yesterday upon a plea that his name be cleared so he could obtain a position. Additional Allegheny County sentences commuted were those of Nick Chinda, to be deported; William Hastings, and Albert Miller.

Policemen's Shirts Torn, 3 Arrested

Two girls and a man were held by North Side police today after a street fight resulting in two policemen's shirts being torn while attempting to arrest the trio.

Margaret Bosau, 37, and George Lux, 28, both of 302 River avenue, were treated for injuries after their arrest. Catherine Laffey, 26, was accused of tearing the shirts of Patrolmen Peter Ortlieb and Ernest Coberly. An argument in the River avenue house ended in a fight in the street.

Girl Drinks Poison, Dies in Hotel Room

BRADFORD, Pa., July 25.—(AP.)—Dorothy Grill, 35, was found dead today in a hotel room after drinking poison mixed with a soft drink. The woman, a restaurant employe and a native of Shinglehouse, Pa., registered Monday night and hung out a sign.

11 ARE HURT IN CAR CRASH

Conductor T. McDonald. Neither he nor Motorman Borden was injured. L. J. Selzer was the operator of the other car, a one-man type.

Motorman Borden is said to have reported he had been waiting at Snodder's switch and began descent of the hill parallelling the Verona road, bound for Verona, only after a white signal light flashed, permitting him to proceed.

Witnesses said the operators of both cars apparently saw the crash coming and slowed down. None of the few passengers on the Verona-bound car was hurt.

LIST OF INJURED

BROCATO, FRANCES, 17, of 75 Fifth street, Oakmont; cuts of arm and bruised legs leaping from picnic car.

DILIBERTO, JOSEPH, 9, of 335 Archie street, Oakmont; lacerations of the arm.

Patrolman Cleared In Death of Man

Patrolman Thomas Good was exonerated by a Coroner's jury today in the death of Edward H. Birch, 26, of Clairhaven street. Witnesses testified that Birch was intoxicated and punched the patrolman, then fell to the sidewalk, suffering fatal injuries.

POLICE PROBERS TO CALL ON FRIEDMAN

Man Linked in Kline Charges Invited To Testify

Herman Friedman, whose name popped up many times in the investigation that led to the conviction of the late Mayor Charles H. Kline, has been invited to attend the next open hearing of the Police Research Commission, it was announced today. Friedman was involved in Kline administration political financing and in the crash of the politically involved Franklin Savings and Trust Company.

The hearing will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m.

While the possibility of a more rigid investigation of the police department loomed today with Council considering strengthening the procedure, no action was anticipated prior to this hearing.

Others asked to attend the hearing are Mrs. Ida Rickenbrode, fired as a policewoman by Mayor McNair after she had arrested a number of "mashers" in a downtown motion picture house; City Detective Stewart Dapp, friend of the Mayor and a member of the vice squad commanded by Former Detective Captain Frank R. Boyd, and James M. Clark, former Director of Public Safety.

EDEBURN INVITED

Also invited are Clyde S. Edeburn, former inspector of city detectives, and Edmund Bishop, veteran sergeant of the Bertillon department of the police bureau, and in charge there until he was removed a month ago on a technicality. The recent report of the commission commended Bishop as an able officer and urged his restoration with rank of captain.

The commission met last night, decided upon the next hearing and issued a statement to the effect that the members would use whatever money they were given, not for themselves, but for technical service. The statement, inferred as a reply to Mayor McNair's questioning of the $3,500 appropriation asked by Councilman John J. Kane, follows:

"The Police Research Commission wants the public to know that the five members of the commission are giving their services without desire of recompense in hope that some good may come to the city of Pittsburgh out of their investigation.

"The Police Research Commission, collectively and individually, has made no request for an appropriation. The commission, however, is in receipt of communications from some members of Council, including Councilman W. A. Magee, to the effect that the commission should have the advantage of expert technical advice and survey. The commission presumes that any appropriation that Council may make or consider is for such technical advice and survey, and not for compensation to the commission."

NAMED BY COUNCIL

The five members were named by Council, and the group appointed Dennis J. Mulvihill as attorney and Meyer Sanders as secretary.

The more rigid investigation stood out as the councilmanic Public Safety Committee prepared to take up the preliminary report submitted by the commission Monday.

The tightening of the inquiry was foreshadowed yesterday when Councilman Magee demanded a formal probe. He declared that the present type of investigation would get nowhere.

SWORN WITNESSES

Magee declared that witnesses should be sworn in order to guard against perjury.

Councilman John J. Kane, who sponsored the Police Research Commission, suggested that later commission members might sit jointly with Council and that Council might be asked to issue subpenaes.

The debate took place during Council's consideration of the commission's request for a $3,500 fund to carry on its work. The Council Finance Committe raised the amount to $5,000.

Previously the committee had rebuffed Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell in his attempt to obtain an increase in the salary of the police Bertillon operator from $187 a month to $229.

The committee, however, agreed to Bell's request for a relief radio operator in the police department at $137.50 a month.

'Lazy Man's Job' to Run Trolley, Company Says

There are few lazier jobs in industry than that of a street car conductor Leslie Vickers, counsel for the Pittsburgh Railways Company, told a special arbitration board conducting hearings on a new wage contract for the trolley workers.

Declaring the company would refute the testimony of trolleymen that one-man operation of cars was too strenuous, Vickers said the company would show how little a conductor had to do.

His statements followed testimony of Alex H. Logue, secretary of the trolley men's union, who contended a conductor's job was exceedingly important and that one-man operators could not watch both front and center doors.

George P. Baine, of 117 Clairhaven avenue, Crafton, testified yesterday that he had worked for the trolley concern for 32 years, but that a sister "had practically clothed his four children."

His wages permitted him to buy two suits in five years and a coat for his wife four years ago, he said.

Answering testimony of a union official who charged that overwork had driven two street car operators crazy, Vickers today offered to introduce medical evidence to show that the illness of these operators could not be traced to their work. The board, however, said the introduction of medical evidence would not be needed.

Girl Fencer Held Suicide After Quiz of Actress

LONDON, July 25.—(INS.)—Elizabeth Bergner, exiled German stage and cinema star, was called as a witness in the inquest over the death of Margit Friedman, Austrian woman fencing champion who died from an overdose of narcotics.

From letters found in the fencer's effects it was learned today that the young woman had been receiving money from the noted actress. Miss Bergner testified she had been aiding the other woman financially, but did not know where she had been obtaining drugs.

The coroner gave a verdict of suicide and said he was satisfied the fact that Miss Bergner had assisted the fencer had nothing to do with her death.

MOTHER'S RULE OF VANDERBILT CASH AIRED

Whitneys and Morgans Intervene in Fight Over Estate

NEW YORK, July 25.—(AP.)—Ten-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt—and her millions—have involved three of America's socially famous families in litigation.

Surrogate Foley will begin hearings tomorrow in the case, started by the child's mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, to get legal control of her and become co-guardian of her estate.

Counsel—14 lawyers have been retained—declined to discuss the matter, but it came into the open with the filing of "interested persons" petitions by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the child's aunt, and Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, Gloria's maternal grandmother. What their interest was, none would say.

Gloria inherited $2,500,000 from the elder Cornelius Vanderbilt's estate through her father, Reginald C. Vanderbilt. This sum has grown to $2,876,017. The child recently inherited another million from the dowager Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Gloria's mother was only 20 years old when Reginald Vanderbilt was lost at sea nine years ago, and George W. Wickersham was named guardian for the child. Last year the former attorney general became ill and Thomas B. Gilchrist was made co-guardian.

Now Mrs. Vanderbilt says she is of age and amply able to direct her daughter's affairs.

After the sportsman's death, appraisal of the Reginald Vanderbilt estate revealed his widow's share to be only $82,000. Last year, when little Gloria was allowed $4,000 a month out of a yearly income of $116,500, her mother was trying to live on $112 a month. Since then she has received $100,000 from Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt's estate.

14 Lawyers 'Round Her

GLORIA VANDERBILT . . . HER CASE IN THE COURTS TODAY

Gloria, now 10, heiress to $4,000,000, over whom 14 lawyers representing Whitneys, Morgans and Vanderbilts were to go to court in New York today—all because her mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, applied for an order making her the child's guardian and co-guardian of her present fortune; nearly $3,000,000.

'WORSE' WORLD SADDENS SHAW BIRTHDAY

Sage 78 Tomorrow But Has No Ambition To Reach 100

By HARRY K. REYNOLDS
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1934, International News Serv.)

LONDON, July 25.—George Bernard Shaw, who is celebrating his seventy-eighth birthday tomorrow, cannot give the world a recipe for longevity, doesn't want to live to be a hundred and is saddened because he finds the world steadily growing worse as a place to live in.

By long distance phone from Malvern, where he is staying for the annual play festival, the sage replied to birthday congratulations with his characteristic vigorous witticisms at the expense of the world and his own old age.

With a chuckle, he said:

"Don't expect me to talk about this birthday business. When a man reaches seventy-eight he prefers to suppress his birthdays. For myself, I take it in very bad part when I am reminded of them nowadays."

"Are you in good health?"

"Of course I am in good health. I never felt better."

"And do you think you will live to be a hundred?"

"Who the deuce wants to live to be a centenarian in this world? I say emphatically I do not hope and do not wish to live to see a hundred."

QUESTION OF FOOD

Asked to give the world a recipe for longevity Shaw answered:

"There is none as far as I can see. Maybe I have reached old age because I am a vegetarian and maybe because I come from a long-lived family, but I do say the world does not know how to eat properly and there would be many more long-lived people if they practiced scientific feeding.

"I do not say that vegetarianism is the best practice, but it is the best we can do in the present circumstances. If people were fed scientifically there would not be so many freaks and undesirables and the world would not be plagued by armaments and the sort of politics so common today."

WORSE AND MORE SO

To the question "Do you think the world is a better place to live in today than when you were a young man?" Shaw replied:

"The world couldn't possibly be worse, and there is every sign that things are not going to get better. It is saddening for an old man like me to contemplate what the future may hold."

Pressed by the correspondent for a message for the world's betterment, Shaw cogitated for a moment, then said:

"Tell the world to read more of my writings. In that way lies salvation."

WIFE NO. 1 SUES BANCROFT FOR SUPPORT

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, July 25.—"It is true that Mr. Bancroft was at one time married to the woman who filed this suit. However, some 17 years ago he obtained what he believed to be a valid decree of divorce and later was married to Miss Brooke."

That was the answer today of Attorney Milton H. Schwartz, representing George Bancroft, he man star of the movies, who was sued for separate maintenance by Mrs. Edna O. Bancroft, who alleged that the actor had deserted her in 1917, four years after their marriage.

A strange spotlight played upon the faded romance in the life of Bancroft, virile star whose marriage with Octavia Brooke Bancroft, a singer, by whom he has a daughter, is known as one of the film colony's happiest marriages.

RECALLS 'HAPPY DAYS'

The first Mrs. Bancroft, a former actress of note, sought $1,500 a month for support and $5,000 attorney fees. Superior Judge Dudley Valentine has ordered Bancroft to appear in court next Tuesday to show cause why he should not pay her.

She smiled in recollection of the first days of her marriage to Bancroft. She said:

"Of course we had our periods of financial adversity, but we were divinely happy.

"But bad times came. We were, to put it frankly, 'broke.' George left me.

"Finally I learned that he had made a tremendous hit in motion pictures, and I heard that there was another Mrs. Bancroft. But I didn't want to make any trouble for him.

"Now I have been in straightened circumstances for some time. I determined to ask Mr. Bancroft for financial aid and came to Hollywood from New York six weeks ago.

"Through an attorney I communicated with the man I had not seen for 17 years. Mr. Bancroft offered to give me $20 a month for three years. Of course I couldn't live on that sum, so I was forced to sue."

Schwartz said he expected to discuss the case with Bancroft today.

SUSPECT FREE, NOT SKIDMORE

A suspect held by Atlanta, Ga., police and believed to be George Skidmore, fugitive sharpshooter wanted in a Mount Washington gas station holdup murder, has been released.

He established his identity as E. M. Duncan, an Atlanta apartment house manager. Duncan was held until a checkup was made with police here. Skidmore has been sought for four years in the killing of Charles Hamon, crippled station attendant at Boggs and Warrington avenues. A second man still being sought is Henry Uccillino, alias White, Eugene Batdorf, 20, of McKees Rocks, is serving a life sentence for his part in the slaying.

NYE, HASTINGS ASSAIL NRA

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP.)—Two prominent Republicans looked at the New Deal from different angles today and found it wanting.

Senator Nye, North Dakota, independent, discerned a waxing sentiment in the Northwest for a third party because, he said, the Democrats had not proved progressive enough to satisfy people in that area and the Republican high command was becoming more "reactionary."

Speaking from the regular Republican lines, Senator Hastings, of Delaware, said in a national radio address last night that "the objective of the Roosevelt revolutionists" is to make their "haphazard program permanent."

What, No Maces? Anyway, M'Nair's Agin' 'Em

The twirling mace that is the night patrolman's "pal" on his lonely beat may be discarded. Mayor McNair today said he was thinking about asking the police what they thought of the idea.

The Mayor said:

"It's too easy for them to use their clubs on people's heads and if they did not have them they might not be tempted to brutality. Of course, this is merely a suggestion.

BYRD RESCUERS BACK IN CAMP

LITTLE AMERICA, Antracticia, July 25.—(AP.)—(Via Mackay Radio.)—The tractor party which attempted to force its way through Antarctic storms to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's advance camp returned safely to Little America.

No word has been heard from Admiral Byrd since last Friday, when he was forced to use a hand-cranked radio set to communicate with headquarters. His main radio set was out of commission at the time.

The Antarctic winter has about a month to run.

Polish Area Flooded, 10,000 Persons Flee

WARSAW, July 25.—(AP.)—The area around Sandomierz, where the surging Vistula River has spread itself into an enormous lake, was the outstanding danger spot today in Poland's flood-devastated scene.

Ten thousand persons already have been evacuated from the section, and as many more are expected to be ordered to move by military patrols.

ARREST SPOILS MUSICIANS' NAP

A young girl entertainer and her guitar-playing accompanist, seeking a cool and quiet spot to rehearse some of the latest tunes, went over into West Park early this morning.

A few hours later a police squad awakened them and trundled them off to Morals Court for a hearing before Magistrate J. W. McGowan.

The girl, Sadie Johnson, 18, and the boy, Albert Weber, 19, said they formery had played and sung over station KQV, but recently had been entertaining in night clubs. After their engagements last night, they went to the park and fell asleep after their rehearsals, they told the magistrate.

Mash, Rum Found Near Kennywood

Raiding a suspected still near Kennywood post office, three constables headed by E. J. Kohn, officer of the state liquor control board, today reported they had confiscated 75 barrels of mash, 300 gallons of moonshine and two stills with a 200-gallon capacity.

Constable Louis Braunstein and two other constables from the office of Alderman Harvey A. Lowrey participated in the raid.

'Bunion Derby' Man Wins Political Race

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 25.—(AP.)—Andy Payne, who raced across the nation in 1928 to win $25,000 in C. C. Pyle's "bunion derby," has won another race, this time a political one.

In the Democratic run-off primary yesterday he outfooted Gus Pool, incumbent, in the race for nomination for Supreme Court clerk.

ARMY BOMBERS BASE IN ALASKA

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 25.—(AP.)—A possible goodwill flight across the Bering Sea to Siberia, provided approval of the War Department is obtained, was in the offing today for the 10 United States Army bombers.

Basing here for the squadron's three weeks' stay in Alaska, Lieut. Col. Henry Arnold, flight commander, said extensibe aerial photographic work and other military surveys will occupy the airmen. The flights will be extended to the lower Kuswowwim district, to Nome and over the Seward Peninsula.

Plans for the possigle Bering Sea flight were delayed pending approval.

Hurled Off Handcar, Dies in Hospital

Paul De Leon, 54, of Connellsville, died in Mercy Hospital last night from a skull injury received June 25 when he was thrown from a handcar on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, near Broadford, Pa., the morgue reported.

15 COUNTS HOLD TORTURE PAIR

John Arendash and Nick Derembeis, suspects in the blinding of George Stratigos, Oakland bowling alley proprietor, in a holdup last April, were held for court on 15 charges of robbery, felonious assault, violation of the state firearms act and pointing firearms at a hearing in Central police court today.

Detective Inspector Samuel Wheeler told Magistrate J. W. McGowan they also had been identified by photographs as the men who on July 11 held up a private club at Conneaut Lake and shot the manager.

Mike Arendash, brother of John, was discharged. Police say his automobile was used in several of the holdups, but he had nothing to do with them.

John and Nick were picked out from a standup in city detective headquarters last week when the blinded Stratigos said he recognized their voices. He declares he never would forget the voices of the men who, after threatening him with a gun, pricked his eyes with a piece of glass, then robbed him of $15.

Two Liquor Cases Referred to State

Two women accused of violating the state liquor laws were turned over to state revenue agents by Magistrate Howard McNutt in North Side Police Court today.

Mrs. Mary Abbott Negri, 55, of 3148 McClure avenue, was arrested Saturday night when police said they found 15 gallons of moonshine in her home. Mrs. Vera Weiss, 33, of 725 Lacock street, also was accused of having untaxed liquor in her home.

Weather Conditions

The Lake Region low is now centered over the St. Lawrence Valley and extends southwestward in the form of a trough to the Far Southwest. Pressure is relatively high over the Northeastern states, and there is a second area of high over the Northwest. The Northwestern high is producing moderately cool weather over that section and as far east as the Dakotas, but warmer weather will spread into the Mississippi Valley by tonight. The weather was hot yesterday over all the states from the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachian Mountains, and from the Gulf to the Canadian border states. High temperature records were broken at Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago, with temperatures of 110, 110 and 109, respectively. There were light thunderstorms in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky and to the West over the Rocky Mountain states, and the northern plains.

River Conditions

The rivers are about stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 3 feet, three-tenths foot; Lock No. 7, Mon., 10.1; Pittsburgh, 9.5; Dam No. 4, 9.1; No. 6, 9.1; No. 10, 9.8, and No. 12, 9.2. The dams are up.

M'ADOO DIVORCE PROBE ASKED

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—(AP.)—The 30-minute divorce of Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo was turned over to the California State Bar for investigation today by a Superior Court jurist who censured the attorney for the United States Senator's wife.

Judge Frank Collier found the action of Henry Grivi in obtaining the quick separation for the daughter of the late President Wilson was irregular and led people to believe the procedure was a slow and tedious one for the poor and speedy action for the rich. The court said:

"That the attorney was aware of our regular procedure is certain and beyond question. That his conduct in this case was irregular and subject to severe censure is likewise beyond question."

The divorce is perfectly valid, Judge Collier pointed out, and Judge Allan B. Campbell, visiting jurist from Bakersfield, who heard the case last week, was not to blame.

Sender Explains McAdoo 'Bomb' Scare

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—(AP.)—A package of shaving equipment received in Los Angeles yesterday by Senator William G. McAdoo and which Los Angeles police opened under water on the theory it might contain a bomb, was no mystery at all to G. R. Sullivan, the sender, who explained:

"I'm a friend of Mr. McAdoo and a good Democrat. An explanatory letter preceded the package. He should have read it."

W. HOMESTEAD BRIEF ASKED

Briefs had been ordered filed today in the mandamus hearing brought by the West Homestead Council majority to force Burgess Richard H. Lawry and the minority members to join in a resolution setting the borough's tax millage.

Minority members admitted before Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Common Pleas Court yesterday that their desire for a share of the borough's patronage was partly the cause of dissention at Council sessions. The borough's mixup, which has continued since January, has resulted in keeping borough employes unpaid, contractors' claims unsettled and other obligations unmet.

Judge Gardner refused to dismiss the mandamus petition on a motion of counsel for Lawry and minority councilmen.

Court Allows Loan For Homewood Bank

A loan of $341,794 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will permit payment of an additional dividend of 18 per cent to depositors of the Homewood Peoples Bank, Judge Samuel H. Gardner was told when Deputy Attorney General David Glick presented a petition asking the court to sanction the loan. Judge Gardner signed the order, which authorizes Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon, receiver for the bank, to negotiate the loan and pledge assets of the bank as security. The depositors have already received 45 per cent and this will give them a total of 63 per cent of their deposits.

Secrecy the government agents threw around the affair still persisted and it could not be learned whether either woman will make any claim to the $15,000 rewards that hung over the public enemy's head.

Capt. Timothy O'Neill, of the East Chicago police, who, with Sergt. Martin Zarkovich was among the Indiana officers at the death scene, denied emphatically that Mrs. Sage had anything to do with the Dillinger trap.

STORY OF KILLING

The "girl in red" told Police Capt. John Stege that Dillinger came to her house last Sunday evening, when he played cards with Mrs. Keele, whose picture, the police said they learned, was in Dillinger's watch.

Capt. Stege asked her:

"After you had your dinner Sunday night, who suggested that you go to the theater?"

She replied:

"Dillinger did."

Stege asked:

"He suggested that theater?"

The girl in red said:

"Yes. He never said anything until we got to the door. I wanted to go to the Uptown, another theater, to see 'Little Miss Marker,' and he said he wanted to go around the corner. That is about a block from my house, the Biograph, and then we walked to the show.

"I guess Miss Hamilton was in the middle and Dillinger was on the outside. In the theater I found a seat in the middle. They got a seat down front, way in front. Before the show was over I saw them coming up the aisle and they called me and said, 'Come on,' and I got up and walked out.

'We walked out of the theater and went southeast toward my house. When we reached the National Tea Store, a big man pushed me or pulled me and stepped on my foot and I looked around and said, 'Say!' and he had a gun.

DILLINGER SHOT

"I heard a shot in front of me and I looked and saw Dillinger on the ground, and I stood there and looked. I did not know what had happened. Polly pulled me by the hand. She said, 'Jimmy got shot,' and she gave me one pull. There was a big man with a gun and he said, 'Just a minute,' and he left us and we walked west.

"One of the officers said, 'Just a minute, just a minute,' and he looked over the crowd and she started to pull me and we walked west on Lincoln avenue, south on Sheffield to Fullerton and when we reached the elevated she said, 'Let's take the elevated,' and I said 'Where,' and she said, 'Any place.'

"We got on the elevated and got off at Belmont, and I said I was going home and she said 'Why go home?' And I said I wanted to find out what had happened. I did not know what was happening. Then we walked on Belmont to Clark and took Clark to Halsted and took Halsted and went home to my house. She was just shaky and she wanted to get out of there. She had a skirt and she slipped that on. I wanted to go to the corner and she did not want to go, she was all nervous.

"I changed my clothes and went to the corner and every one was yelling that Dillinger was killed.

'I GOT SCARED'

"I did not know what to think, Dillinger. Then I got scared. Then I went home. She went some place (Polly). She did not go home. She went to meet that girl that worked with her, Maxine Dunn. Polly called me from some place on Wilson avenue. She was with Maxine. That was the same night. I don't know how long after the shooting. One hour, two hours, it seemed like a year. I did not call the police. When Polly called she asked me if everything was all right. She said she was afraid to come home. She said it was John Dillinger."

In Mrs. Sage's room, police said, they found a mysterious locked wooden chest, which they believed might have been Dillinger's, and may contain some of the $750,000 in bank robbery loot the gang amassed.

Shot Fired in Play By Boy Kills Painter

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 25.—(AP.)—Shot accidentally by a 9-year-old boy, Albert Curlenti, 36, of Thompson mine No. 2, near Uniontown, is dead from a bullet wound in the spine.

Coroner's investigators said Curlenti was painting a dwelling in Fairbank as Dominick Glaents, playing with a gun, discharged it. The bullet went through a window and struck Curlenti across the street.

Dillinger Girl Waited at Home

FARGO, N. D., July 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Roy Keele, identified by police as one of the last women associates of John Dillinger before his slaying Sunday in Chicago, was awaited by members of her family here today.

She was born Polly Hamilton 26 years ago. After attending grade and high schools here, she ran away when she was 18 years old to join a stock company.

Purvis and Cowley Promoted, Pay Raised

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP.)—J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Justice Department's division of investigation, announced today that promotions and salary increases had been given to Melvin H. Purvis and Samuel Cowley, the government men who directed the killing of John Dillinger in Chicago.

circulars from the Indiana state police, asking the apprehension of Pearl Elliott. She has long been sought as the advance fixer and brains as well as treasurer of the Dillinger gang. It was this former proprietress of a fancy Kokomo establishment who engaged apartments for the Dillinger bandits before they came on to do their jobs, who divided the swag and who acted as judge and jury in their inter-gang quarrels.

I couldn't place Ione Williams, but she herself told me that she was a friend of John's.

LAST LOOK AT JOHNNY

I mosied up to them, and to the Elliott woman I said:

"Hello, Pearl."

She wheeled, and I asked:

"What brings you here?"

She hesitated, then answered:

"I came for a last look at Johnny. He never threw me down and I wouldn't dog it on him."

A few minutes later, I came face to face with Mary Kinder. Mary was arrested with Dillinger, Harry Pierpont and others at Tucson, Ariz. She is the sweetheart of Pierpont. She tried to marry him after he had been convicted, and, with his handcuffs on he put his powerful arms around her and kissed her a passionate farewell—forever—for he is soon to "burn" in the Ohio big house.

Mary had been at the little Mooresville hotel all night, waiting for Dillinger's body. She wasn't registered, but she was there. I talked to her. She said:

"Tough on Johnny. I liked him. I used to cook frogs' legs for the mob, and Johnny went for 'em in a big way."

'GOT MY MAN'

Then she sighed:

"If he'd lived a little longer, he'd have got my man out. He was working on it all the time. So was I. So am I now. I'd dig him out with my fingernails if I could. And I haven't given up hope yet."

With Mary was her sister, Margaret Behrens, wife of a bank robber who is doing a long "stretch." Last time I had seen her she was being sweated by the state police in Indianapolis over some little help she had thrown to some of the Dillinger gang who were hiding out after breaking out.

She wouldn't talk. They got nowhere with her. A plenty hard-boiled girl, Margaret. Not a word. The state troopers still refer to her as "Silent Maggie." I tried to get her to talk. She wasn't entirely silent, but what she said I can't pass along—not in a newspaper.

MRS. MARGARET BEHRENS

MISS MARY KINDER

Later, in a car with some others, I encountered "Babe" Longacre. It was Dillinger who gave her the pet-name, for he wrote her love letters addressed "Dear Babe." Dillinger once wrote to her:

"I only wish I had you and two or three sweet kids and was in South America with Jimmy with us."

The nickname of John "Jimmy" is Hamilton, whom the police of the world are hunting. There was a whisper that he, too, had been seen in Mooresville. I didn't see him. It's pretty hard to believe. But didn't Dillinger come home here when he was the "hottest" citizen of the nation, and didn't he play with his half-sisters in the yard where neighbors who knew him saw him, and didn't he go to Maywood, where his remains now repose, to call on his sister, Audrey, and take her for a ride in his nice, new, stolen car?

Pearl Elliott, alone, as far as I know, of the five, was taking a long chance in showing up here. On the circulars requesting her detention are photographs of her. Those circulars have never been recalled.

Evelyn Frechette is doing her year up north, and she couldn't attend. With that exception, every known female associate of Dillinger came to Mooresville, all but one—the one he married. She had divorced him after two years of his first long sentence and she has since married a respectable farmer near here.

Dillinger Death Ends Life of Gay Parties

CHICAGO, July 25.—(AP.)—Apparently John Dillinger led a free and easy life in Chicago—buying beer, playing cards and going to movies—while the police of the nation were looking for him.

This was disclosed when the police last night questioned Steve Chilak, 23-year-old son of Mrs. Anna Sage, who told investigators she was the woman in a red dress who was with Dillinger at a North Side picture show the night he was slain.

Chilak said he first met Dillinger at his mother's home about a month ago and that he was introduced to him by Mrs. Roy Keele, who is also known by her maiden name of Polly Hamilton. Chilak said:

"Polly introduced us, and he said 'How are you Steve?' He was a fine fellow. We played pinochle and he lost, but he wasn't a bit angry about it.

"Then my girl friend and I and he and Polly began going out evenings. We would drink some beer, eat a lunch, see a movie or go to a dance. He liked the movies best."

It was Dillinger's custom, he said, always to pay the checks, but he never "flashed" any big money.

Chilak never suspected his new found friend was Dillinger, but he recalled, now that Dillinger is dead, that Dillinger would jump when a rap came on a door.

THRONGS TREK TO BIER OF DILLINGER

MAYWOOD, Ind., July 25.—(AP.)—"Wooden Gun" John Dillinger lay in death today in the home of the sister who reared him as an obscure country boy before he "made bad" as the nation's most-hunted criminal.

A steady stream of the curious passed last night by the casket in which the outlaw's body, its bullet marks obliterated by plastic surgery, awaited burial.

A few hours earlier, citizens of the Mooresville vicinity, many of whom knew "Johnny" as a boy before he was sent to prison 10 years ago, had filed past his body in a Mooresville undertaking establishment.

John Dillinger, Sr., elderly and respected farmer, brought his notorious son's body back home yesterday from Chicago, where the outlaw's career was ended by bullets of federal agents Sunday night.

CROWDS OF CURIOUS

Word that the bank robber's body was in Mooresville brought out thousands of curiosity-seekers from Indianapolis, 18 miles away, and state and city police struggled to keep the line of automobiles moving. Many persons parked their cars and walked miles to see the corpse.

A plastic surgeon worked on the body to erase the bullet marks. Another surgeon's knife had given Dillinger new features in life to help him evade capture.

Hopeful of avoiding more crowds of curious spectators the family of Dillinger decided to hold his funeral this afternoon. It had been announced last night that the services for the notorious criminal would be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

GRAVE NEAR NOTABLES

Awaiting the body is a grave in Crown Hill Cemetery at Indianapolis, next to that of Dillinger's mother, and not far from where many of Indiana's notables in letters and politics have found a last resting place. Also buried there are President Benjamin Harrison, Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, Kin Hubbard, creator of "Abe Martin," and others.

To insure privacy, officials of the cemetery announced only members of the Dillinger family and those having a part in the burial ceremony would be permitted inside the gates.

Fifty Indianapolis policemen were detailed to the cemetery, and 15 others guarded the Hancock home. Officers blocked off the road in front of the home where the body rested.

Dillinger Escape Victim Recovers

IRONWOOD, Mich., July 25.—(AP.)—John Morris, who was wounded at Little Bohemia when federal agents mistook him and two other men for members of the Dillinger gang, was discharged from a local hospital today.

Morris, a CCC camp cook, for three months has been receiving treatment for machine-gun bullet wounds.

Attorney Guards Content of Last Dillinger Letter

John L. Van Buskirk, attorney for the country's No. 1 enemy when the Dillinger gangsters were trapped here last January, disclosed yesterday he had received, some 16 hours after Dillinger had been shot down in Chicago, probably the last letter the gang chieftain wrote.

It had been mailed from Chicago last Friday, and was one of several Dillinger had written to the attorney.

Van Buskirk said the letters lent credence to the theory that Dillinger recently had not strayed far from Chicago.

Each missive was signed simply "John Dillinger." The attorney said:

"The contents of the letters concerned no one but us. Now that he is dead, I do not hesitate to say that we corresponded regularly, but I would never betray the confidences of a client. These letters will be locked up."

He did discuss the missives briefly. He said Dillinger once wrote:

The attorney said:

"He apparently gave little thought to his numerous close brushes with the law. Why, he never even mentioned his escape from the Crown Point (Ind.) jail. He wrote one letter from the jail there, and by the time I had received it, he was gone. The next was mailed from Chicago, and another from Cleveland. He evidenced more interest in law suits involving money and property than he did in eluding arrest."

The Dillinger letters arrived about once every two weeks, the lawyer said.

When Dillinger and his henchmen—Charles Makley, Harry Pierpont and Russell Clark—were seized in a bloodless coup here some $27,000 in currency, several thousand dollars in jewels, and automobiles and firearms were impounded.

U. S. OUT TO GET DILLINGER MEN DEAD OR ALIVE

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Fugitive members of the John Dillinger gang will be lucky if they are taken alive.

Department of Justice agents have been warned not to take the slightest chances with George "Baby Face" Nelson, John Hamilton, Homer Van Meter and others of the mob that has terrorized the Middle West with murders, bank robberies and hold-ups.

Officials declined to say today just what instructions had been issued. Whether agents have been told to shoot first and call halt later was not disclosed.

However, unofficially, it was said the same methods would be used as spelled the end for Dillinger, leader of the gang. Surrounded by 27 agents and policemen, Dillinger virtually committed suicide by reaching for his gun.

"Baby Face" Nelson, the new public enemy No. 1, is regarded as the most dangerous of the Dillinger mobsters at large. He is wanted for killing W. Carter Baum, a federal agent, in Wisconsin. Nelson has acquired a reputation in the last few months as an expert machine gunner and a handy man with an automatic.

Some officials privately said they do not desire the gangsters to be taken alive, stating "dead gangsters are the only good gangsters." The Justice Department, from the Attorney General down, is well satisfied that the government will not have to try Dillinger.

Within a few days a general crime conference to map out a course for the pursuit of other gangsters will be held at the department. Melvin Purvis, chief of the Chicago office of the Division of Investigation, given large credit in the Dillinger slaying, was to have conferred with J. Edgar Hoover, head of the division, today. The conference, however, was postponed.

Library Boy Wins Second 'Funnybone' Contest; Many Birdmen to Attend West View Park Outing!

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Commander

Today, members, we have the second winner of the "Funnybone" contest.

The second lucky Junior Birdman is 13-year-old Richard Dominowski, of Library, Pa. He will receive a one-dollar bill, to be mailed immediately.

Richard's joke was:

Amos—Say, Andy, why does a plane have a propeller?

Andy—Well, so it can fan the pilot.

Of nearly 300 jokes that one was considered the best by the office staff. Another joke in Richard's list was also very good. It was:

Andy—Say, Amos, what is a joystick for?

Amos — To make the pilot happy.

Those two jokes were the best of the mid-week contest. Why not win the Sunday "Funnybone" Contest and win an easy dollar like Richard did. Mail your jokes at once.

MANY ENTER SAME JOKES

Quite a number of birdmen and birdwomen sent in the same jokes and some of these are printed below in order that they won't be entered again:

Flap—What kind of coffee is that?

Jack—Why that's the kind that is good to the last drop.

Admirer—How Come?

Student—I made a three-point landing and my instructor nearly dropped dead.

Navy Flier—We carry parachute in case we have to bail out.

Woman—Oh, do the seaplanes leak?

Aviator — Do you think this wing will stand up?

Mechanic—I wouldn't bank on it.

Student Flier—Suppose my parachute fails to open?

Instructor — Well, in case it don't just bring it back and we will give you a new one.

The third aviation joke contest is on so keep sending them in. Another Junior Birdman will receive a dollar Sunday. Will it be you?

PICNIC AT WEST VIEW

Don't forget the Junior Birdmen aviation program at West View Park Tuesday afternoon.

The wing trophy and medals won at the South Park Model Plane Derby will be awarded at 3 p. m. All winners in the meet are urged to be present.

Clip the coupon in today's paper and then exchange it for tickets that will bring you several free rides on the park amusements.

By all means don't miss the picnic!

I'll see you tomorrow!

Heavy List Faces 1-Day Grand Jury

When the June grand jury is convened for a special one-day session tomorrow, District Attorney Andrew T. Park plans to keep it in session until all of 125 jail cases are disposed of, if it takes until after the supper hour. Grand juries ordinarily handle 75 to 80 cases a day.

The special session idea was inaugurated by Park three years ago to enable the bringing up of all cases of prisoners jailed after the June session was adjourned, so that if the prisoners wish to plead guilty and begin serving of their terms at once, they may do so. It may also result in the ignoring of a few charges, in which prisoners will be freed at once, instead of having to remain in jail until the September term opens.

NEW UPRISING 2ND AIMED AT DOLLFUSS

International News Service.

VIENNA, July 25.—Today's uprising was the second that Engelbert Dollfuss, five-foot chancellor of Austria, styled by his friends "The Second Napoleon" and by his enemies "Butcher Dollfuss," has been compelled to face this year.

Dollfuss, who assumed office as chancellor on September 20, 1932, at first attempted to conciliate divergent elements within Austria, the Socialists, who controlled Vienna and other large cities; the Heimwehr groups which favored a Fascist state, along the lines laid down by Mussolini in Italy, and the strongly entrenched Nazis who favored union financial support from the German Nazi organization.

The doughty little chancellor soon found his task hopeless. Each of the three groups was arming for civil war. He attempted to play one off against another, but finally was forced to cast his lot with the Heimwehr Fascists who stood for an independent Austria against the aggressions of the Germans

STRIKES AT NAZIS

Dollfuss struck first at the Nazis, who retaliated with a wave of terrorism and bombings throughout the republic. Thousands of them fled across the German border where they formed an Austrian Nazi legion said to number 10,000 men, ready to recross the frontier and hurl Dollfuss from power.

Unexpectedly Dollfuss struck at the Socialists in February. Professing to have discovered evidence of a widespread Socialist plot against his government he began a wholesale roundup of Socialist leaders, among them Dr. Otto Bauer, a former cabinet minister and Mayor of Vienna. In this drive against the so-called revolutionaries Maj. Emil Fey, then vice chancellor and Heimwehr leader, and Prince Ernst Rudiger von Stahremberg, leader of the unofficial Fascist groups, though bitter personal enemies, joined hands.

SOCIALISTS RESIST

The Socialists resisted desperately. For days, in their strongly constructed workingmen's apartments, which had been built by the city under a Socialist administration, they fought bitterly against government troops and police. At Linz and other cities equally severe fighting went on.

Scores of Socialists were killed—the exact number has never been announced—and hundreds of others fled the country. Many others were imprisoned and some of them executed.

Socialists throughout the world denounced the Dollfuss government for the ruthless manner in which it had suppressed the supposed revolutionary movement.

EYES ON BERLIN

Nevertheless the British, French and Italian governments kept their eyes glued upon Berlin, fearing that Germany might take advantage of the situation to assist the Austrian Nazi to overthrow Dollfuss while he was occupied with the Socialists.

The British and French foreign offices united in declarations, warning Germany to keep her hands off. Subsequently — and weeks after the Vienna civil war ended—Premier Mussolini of Italy met Chancellor Hitler at Venice and obtained from him a pledge that Germany would do nothing to violate Austrian sovereignty.

In recent weeks there had been a marked Nazi activity in Austria. Terroristic tactics were renewed.

'DOWN WITH DOLLFUSS!'

A week ago two members of the Socialist Schutzbund or defense corps, which was supposedly deprived of its weapons during the February rebellion, were caught attempting to plant a bomb on a Danube River pier.

They were placed on trial yesterday and convicted after a speedy hearing. Both were condemned to death in accordance with a recent cabinet decree, dooming to execution any person found illegally in the possession of explosives. The sentence of one of the two youths, Rudolph Anspach, an Austrian, was commuted to life imprisonment. The other, Joseph Gerl, a Czecho-Slovakian, went to the gallows shouting:

"Down with Dollfuss!"

The government feaared Socialist protest demonstrations would provoke serious rioting yesterday when the sentences were pronounced and as a precautionary measure rounded up hundreds of Socialists.

EX-PROFESSOR AUSTRIA'S NEW MAN OF HOUR

VIENNA, July 25.—(AP.)—Dr. Anton ("King Anton") Rintelen, announced in a radio broadcast as the new Chancellor of Austria, has been the political man of iron and question mark in Austrian politics.

Few men have been so often mentioned, so often linked with rumor in critical moments in the career of the Dollfuss government, as this former university professor.

For many months—and even as early as 1929—it has been the custom to include in every private discussion of the political situation the phrase, "and Rintelen?" This has been particularly true since the National-Socialist (Nazi) was outlawed last June.

He was mentioned as Chancellor as long ago as September 24, 1929, when Ignaz Seipel resigned.

POPULAR FIGURE

His career has included posts as provincial governor of Styria, twice cabinet minister and Austrian minister to Italy.

In sharp contrast to the little, dapper Dollfuss, "King Anton" is square-shouldered and square-jawed, an imposing and generally popular figure in the political sense.

The mention of his name in connection with political matters grew particularly great, a few weeks before Chancellor Dollfuss outlawed the National Socialist Party and rumors flew that he was determined to suppress the Nazis.

For Dr. Rintelen, who at that time was minister of education in the Dollfuss cabinet, was at the same time governor of the province of Styria, where the Nazis were so strong that even the Fascist Heimwehr joined forces with them (some said, with the blessing of Gov. Rintelen). He was known to disfavor ruthless action against the Hitlerites.

DOLLFUSS' DECREE

When Chancellor Dollfuss issued his famous decree banishing the Swastika from Austria's buttonhole, Dr. Rintelen resigned his cabinet post and went back to full-time governing of Styria, where his constituents like to know him as "King Anton."

His popularity apparently continued on both sides of the fence—with the Christian-Social party of Chancellor Dollfuss and the Nazis, the latter evidently appreciating his attitude of moderation as contrasted with the ruthless anti-Nazi campaign of the government.

This view of Rintelen as a political "iron man," capable of meeting the pressure of all sides, grew to one in which Rintelen was regarded as "the coming man." Every visit to Vienna started its own flock of rumors of the formation of an "interim cabinet" with Rintelen as Chancellor.

KEEPS THEM GUESSING

To the Nazis, a Rintelen cabinet was long looked upon as the means for removal of the ban against the party, with a new election and a new cabinet based on popular feeling.

Later, other names besides Rintelen's were mentioned in connection with a possible "peace with Germany" cabinet.

However, even after he was appointed minister to Rome—an appointment interesting to those who believed Mussolini's intervention might solve the Austro-German dilemma—"King Anton" could not leave the eternal city for a week-end without automatically causing rumors of a cabinet shake-up in Vienna.

And it is true, that he somehow turned up in Vienna whenever affairs reached a critical stage—yet without talking much and always managing to keep people on both sides of the fence guessing.

DOLLFUSS REPORTED SLAIN IN REVOLT

AMBULANCES AT SCENE

It as certain only that the members of the Nazi putsch held government members prisoners in the chancellery.

Although, at the command of Emil Fey, minister of public security, soldiers withdrew from the Ballhausplatz, 30 army trucks carrying machine guns, trench mortars, and other equipment appeared on the square before the nearby Burgtheater. Two armored cars and several ambulances also were held in readiness.

It was at this time that government leaders not in the hands of the Nazis, gave the Putsch leaders 20 minutes to release their captives.

The ultimatum was delivered by a Neunstadter Stuermer (new state storm trooper) when Fey, for the first time, appeared on a balcony in a drizzling rain.

ULTIMATUM ISSUED

Fey started to speak. Without waiting to hear what Fey had to say, the Storm Trooper declared:

"In the name of the government we give you 20 minutes to evacuate the building!"

Fey, pale, remained silent and, under the escort of three uniformed Nazis, turned back into the building.

All the citizens around the square were tense and fearful as the hour of the ultimatum came. They expected firing to begin at any moment.

Fighters swarmed through the streets of Vienna, men were killed, and the trouble was reported to have spread as far as Innsbruck and Klagenfurt.

In the latter city, President Wilhelm Miklas was said to have been captured by the federal army, but later it was rather definitely established that President Miklas had not been arrested at Klagenfurt, for an ultimatum came out bearing his name and that of other government officials not captured by the Nazis.

CABINET TRAPPED

Dollfuss and his ministers were trapped in the federal chancellery. Armed men on his loyal Fascist Heimwehr (home guard), of the federal army, and of the federal police poured into the Ballhausplatz upon which the chancellery is located.

Machine guns were mounted on roof tops at strategic points throughout the city. Some of them poured smashing volleys into the government radio studio from which, as a spark to the political conflagration, an announcement had come that Dollfuss had resigned and a pro-Nazi politician, Anton Rintelen, had been made chancellor.

At the height of the confusion, with rumors flying about, from the same studio came the announcement that peace reigned throughout Austria. The second announcement came after authorities had recaptured the station where, earlier, eight men had killed a police guard and taken over control of the broadcasting. They were supposed to have been Nazis.

VIENNA TENSE

An officer of the Heimwehr was the first to declare that Dollfuss was the prisoner of Nazis. With Dollfuss he said were Ministers Karwinsky, Berger and Von Walde-Negg.

Prince von Starhemberg together with Dr. Kurt Schuschnigg were said to be outside the building.

As the afternoon wore on, the situation in Vienna grew more tense, if that could be possible. Soldiers marched in fighting formation down the streets. They dodged under cover of the buildings as they advanced toward the Ballhausplatz along the Ringstrasse.

The deployed in the side streets and suddenly it could be seen that in many cases the federal troops had taken up positions facing the Heimwehr men.

New Jail His Goal, Lands in Old One

ATLANTA, July 25.—(AP.)—Jail doors, old and new, came into the life today of W. R. Johnson. A truck driver employed by a contractor, Johnson was en route to a new police station with a load of jail doors when a detour, at the request of officers, landed him behind the doors of the old city jail for a recent automobile accident.

Infant Sleeping In Marsh Real 'Babe in Woods'

CROMWELL, Conn., July 25.—(AP.)—Little Claire Bernon, 21 months old, who wandered into the woods near her home in search of her mother who was black-berrying late yesterday, was a real "Babe in the Woods."

She was found by searchers this morning asleep in a clump of bushes in swamp land. She was unharmed with only body scratches from brush tips and briers as marks of her experience.

HITLER BOOSTS BLACK SHIRTS

BERLIN, July 25.—(AP.)—Chancellor Hitler's black-shirted Schutz Staffel organization, a set of crack troops created primarily to act as his bodyguards, was separated officially today from the brown-shirted Nazi Storm Troops and made an independent organization.

In an order issued at Munich, Hitler declared:

"In recognition of the great SS (Schutz Staffel) service, especially in conjunction with the events of June 30, I raise the SS to an independent organization within the framework of the Nazi Party."

On June 30 Hitler "purged" Nazi ranks of alleged revolters, and Schutz Staffel men acted as his principal executioners.

Hitler Shot At, British Paper Says

LONDON, July 25.—(INS.)—Adolf Hitler had actually been shot at by a Storm Trooper while motoring just before he administered his "blood purge" to leaders of the organization, the Sheffield Daily Independent said today in a special dispatch.

News of the incident was suppressed and all rumors of it were denied, according to the article, but because of its Gen. Von Blomberg, head of the regular army, and his colleagues, had little difficulty in persuading the Chancellor that he should bodly tackle the would-be mutineers and crush them.

FRENCH CABINET SAVED AGAIN

PARIS, July 25.—(AP.)—France had a three months' political reprieve today as Premier Gaston Doumergue resumed an interrupted vacation with the cabinet crisis solved.

Doumergue's threat to resign and let the politicians fight their own battles again saved the "political truce" government. The cabinet will be maintained unimpaired after yesterday's showdown.

Tension was so great that the premier embraced the two central figures in the controversy, Edouard Herriot and Andre Tardieu. Doumergue so presented the situation that seven radical Socialists, headed by Herriot, were obliged to assume the responsibility for any rupture.

The premier refused to accept Tardieu's resignation and told the others if they refused to remain the cabinet would be wrecked.

Radical Socialists had demanded Tardieu's dismissal after charges and counter-charges flew in connection with an investigation of the Stavinsky pawnshop scandal.

Fleeing Doe Back To Visit 'Friends'

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 25.—(AP.)—A doe, Peggy, which escaped last January from Idlewild Park, couldn't resist the temptation to visit "home."

Park attaches saw Peggy near the cages, hobnobbing with the confined deer, but when they called her, she scampered off into the woods.

Heat Hits Venango; Water Supply Low

FRANKLIN, Pa., July 25.—Venango County sought in vain for relief last night, the mercury plowing ahead to 102, season's highest, late yesterday. The water scarcity in Southern Venango County, farmers report, has become acute.

CALLS ON LAW, TRAPS SELF

SALT LAKE CITY, July 25.—(AP.)—Joseph Davidson, 50, insisted that police enforce the law to the letter—and they did.

Police said Davidson called headquarters, reported that a beer garden was selling beer after 1 a. m.—a violation of a city ordinance—and demanded enforcement of the law.

Two officers went to the garden, found it in darkness, and arrested Davidson on a charge of drunkeness.

South Side Children Injured at Play

John Susanini, 9, of 2816 Larkins way, received head cuts caused by a thrown stone while playing on the Monongahela River bank near South Twenty-first street. Charles Maltanaites, 11, 2311 Valera avenue, fractured an arm by falling in Phillips' Park. Malcolm Chisholm, 3, 1311 Bingham street, was hit by a swing in Armstrong playgrounds, suffering head cuts.

VERONA DENIES TRYING TOWN HALL BRIBE

Alderman John J. Verona sought only to convince the late County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong by persuasive argument of the desirability of the Nicola town hall site—he never offered him money and didn't have to offer political support, the Third Ward political boss testified today before Controller Robert G. Woodside.

The Controller is conducting a hearing to determine the validity of a contract entered into by the former Board of Commissioners with the Schenley Farms Company. The hearing was reopened today and after Verona and two other witnesses testified, was postponed again until September. The Schenley Farms Company is seeking payment of approximately $1,100,000 for the property.

Assistant County Solicitor John H. Lauer represented the county and William Watson Smith represented F. F. Nicola, president of Schenley Farms Company, who, at a previous hearing, had denied ever having met Verona or having an agreement of any kind with him.

Questioning Verona, Attorney Smith asked:

"You didn't offer any money to Armstrong did you?"

Verona, mopping his forehead, replied:

"I did not. If I'd ever mentioned money to him, he wouldn't have talked to me."

Smith asked:

"Did you offer him anything—political support?"

Verona grinned and replied:

"I didn't have to offer him that, he already had it."

STRIP DIVORCEE OF GEMS AGAIN

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 25.—For the second time in 10 years, Edith Bobe, fashionable modiste and divorced wife of a Standard Oil millionaire, was stripped of her jewels today in a daring sortie into her home by a suave and efficient robber.

The thief was hiding in her apartment when Miss Bobe returned in the early hours with her escort, Frank Pratt, a jeweler, after a round of the nightclubs.

Imprisoning both in a closet, the thief escaped with diamonds, pearls and other jewelry valued at $15,000.

It was an echo of the time in 1924 when four bandits in dinner jackets held up her and Robert L. Hague, wealthy Standard Oil official in New Jersey, and robbed them of jewels worth almost $100,000. Miss Bobe married Hague later and divorced him in 1927.

STORM LASHES TEXAS COAST

HOUSTON, Tex., July 25.—(AP.)—Strong gales which in some places reached an estimated velocity of 70 to 80 miles an hour buffeted a long stretch of the Texas Gulf Coast today.

The storm disrupted communications and an accurate check of property damage was impossible. Reports before the lines went down were that property damage was small and that there was no loss of life.

Freeport, approximately 65 miles southwest of Houston, and Port O'Connor, about 70 miles farther down the coast, were two of the points hardest hit.

The latest report from Port O'Connor said the wind was blowing more than 70 miles an hour.

Huge waves battered against the Galveston seawall, the wind driving the high-thrown spray across waterfront streets. Traffic and business in the city were normal and no damage had been reported.

Driver Injured As Car Hits Debris

Walter Naaf, 36, of R. D. 1, McKeesport, was injured early today when his auto crashed into a pile of earth in Forbes street, at Bellefield avenue. He was treated at the Montefiore Hospital.

CATHCART ROLE PERILS SYLVIA, DOUG FEARS

International News Service.

PARIS, July 25.—Douglas Fairbanks was about to go to Hollywood to make a picture for Joseph Schenck of United Artists in which Lady Sylvia Ashley would be costarred when Lord Ashley's supplemental charges of misconduct, coupled with the church agitation for a clean-up of the films in the United States, made it impossible, International News Service learned today.

The information came from a friend of Fairbanks' who quoted Doug as saying he was "hopping mad" about Lord Ashley's latest move. Fairbanks feels, the friend said, that today Lady Ashley would be made "the goat" of the situation if the former musical comedy actress tries to work in America.

CONSULTS EMBASSY

It is understood Fairbanks had an influential person in Paris approach the American embassy to inquire if there was any possibility that Lady Ashley would find herself in the unhappy position of Lady Cathcart, who was held up in New York for a time by immigration authorities on the grounds of "moral turpitude," if she tried to enter America on the heels of the London allegations.

It is understood that an embassy official said:

"Such is the possibility."

REJECTS ADVICE

Friends are reported to have been striving for months to convince Fairbanks that even if he loves Lady Ashley and intends to marry her if both are freed by divorce, it is advisable for him to assume a less active role in her life until discussion dies down.

Fairbanks is reported to have angrily rejected these suggestions, declaring he is entitled to live his own life as he sees fit. Lady Ashley and a woman friend accompanied him from Monte Carlo to Paris on his trip to London, and the three were seen Sunday strolling up and down the Champs Elysees in a gay mood and laughing.

NEWSMEN KEEP SECRET, JAILED

DANVILLE, Ky., July 25.—(AP.)—Two Danville newspapermen spent three hours in jail here today because they refused to tell where they obtained advance information about the hanging in effigy of State Representative J. Sterling Towles.

The two, Jack Durham and Wesley Carey, said after their release that they would again refuse to disclose the information in another hearing called for tomorrow afternoon in police court. Their refusal yesterday brought fines of $10 each.

Police Judge J. W. Harlan held that they were in contempt of his court, but before sending them to jail gave them some time to think it over. They declined to answer the questions later and were sent to jail.

Her House, Too?

MARY BRIAN

DICK BUILDING HOME FOR TWO?

By HARRISON CARROLL
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, July 25.—Cost of Dick Powell's new house will be double what the actor intended a few weeks ago, and Hollywood is busy today seeking a romantic motive for the change.

Rumor persists that the Warner Brother singing-star and Mary Brian at last have made up their minds and will say it to a preacher. In fact, some insist that the preacher will be Father John Healey, principal of the Catholic High School at little Rock, Ark., and a boyhood friend of Powell's. The priest is now in Hollywood and Dick took Mary over the other daw for a long visit.

Efforts to get an admission out of Powell found the star evasive today. He admitted he has suddenly decided to build a much bigger house, but would not say that Mary Brian will occupy it with him. He confessed with a grin:

"She'll do the interior decorating."

Friends of Powell point out that he recently refused to promise Warner Brothers that he would not marry in the next three years. They also declare that, while the singing star has gone with many girls, Mary has always been the one and only.

Quarrymen Work In Ice-Locked Rocks

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 25.—(AP.)—The heat wave doesn't mean much to workmen moving a pile of limestone from a quarry. The stone at the bottom of the pile is cemented to the ground by ice which formed during the winter and was insulated against the heat by the limestone.

QUICK RELIEF

There are 5 medicinal ingredients in Bromo-Seltzer. It's a balanced compound. It not only quickly relieves headaches and other pains of nerve origin, but also helps restore your alkali reserve.

No wonder mere pain-killers aren't as effective. And you also take Bromo-Seltzer as a liquid. It works faster. It quickly relieves gas on the stomach, too.

Pleasant, dependable, and doesn't upset the stomach. Keep a bottle at home. Insist on the one and only Bromo-Seltzer. A standby for over 40 years.

THEFT CHARGED TO THANKLESS HITCH-HIKER

Under 11 charges ranging from automobile theft to disorderly conduct, Roland McGrew, 21, a Des Plaines (Ill.) hitch-hiker, was held in the county jail today accused by the motorist who gave him a lift.

McGrew was arrested in Mt. Lebanon Monday night after police said he had wrecked an automobile stolen from Daniel J. Carr, of Seton Hill College, Greensburg, who had given the youth a ride from East Liverpool, O., to Wilkinsburg.

The youth was charged with stealing the automobile, $10 in cash, a watch, driving without an operator's license, passing a stop signal, driving while drunk, failing to stop at a policeman's command, speeding, reckless driving, drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

He later told police he was a deserter from the Marines and government authorities were notified.

At a hearing before Justice of the Peace D. E. Hubbard in Mt. Lebanon yesterday, McGrew pleaded guilty to six of the charges and was sentenced to 28 days in jail. On the larceny charges and driving under the influence of liquor, he was held for court.

Carr told police he and the youth stopped at a hotel in Wilkinsburg to spend the night. While Carr slept, he said, the youth took his wallet, his watch, his parking lot check for his automobile and vanished.

A few hours later the youth wrecked the car against a tree in Mt. Lebanon after trying to elude police, they reported.

Airplane's Faulty Engine Panics Wilkinsburg

Engine trouble sent a flier looking for a landing field in Wilkinsburg, sent the residents into chills as he skimmed housetops and sent the borough's police radio car on a chase of an impending crack-up.

Joseph Nolan, of Brashear street, Wilkinsburg, was the pilot. He had rented the airplane at Bettis Field last night and was flying a friend over Wilkinsburg.

Nolan told Police Lieut. G. M. Gillette that a cylinder of the motor cut out for about five minutes. While he sought a place to land, the engine began to "click." He then headed for Bettis Field.

PINCHOT LEADS MILITIA 'WAR'

CAMP MUIR, MT. GRETNA, July 25.—(AP.)—National Guard planes, with Gov. Gifford Pinchot flying in No. 1 plane of the first flight, played hide-and-seek with the searchlights of the 213th Coast Artillery (anti-aircraft) Battery at Indiantown Gap last night.

Six planes, flying in two V-formations at about 5,000 feet altitude, simulated a bombing attack as one ship swooped low over the battery to "strife" the gunners.

The searchlights, 3,000,000 candle-power beams, sought out the plans for the sky barrage of three-inch guns against the bombers and .50 caliber machine guns against the diving ship.

Gov. Pinchot landed at the Middletown Airport after the "attack" and returned to Harrisburg.

JUVENILE HOME PLAN ORDERED

Plans and specifications for the new Juvenile Court and Detention Home on Forbes street and Fifth avenue are in course of preparation, it was announced today.

The County Commissioners yesterday authorized that plans be drawn by Ingham and Boyd, local architects. The action has the approval of the Juvenile Court officials, it is understood.

The Public Works Administration announced a month ago that a loan of $350,000 had been authorized for construction of the home.

Shortly before the Commissioners, on motion of William D. Mansfield, authorized the designers, they filed a letter from L. W. Monteverde in which the real estate dealer protested the new propect as "extravagant."

The letter stated that the site in Oakland was too small, and the place noisy and dirty because of its close proximity to the mills and the Pittsburg Railways carbarn. Monteverde quoted several architects, including Press C. Dowler, member of the Allegheny County Authority, as saying the building cost would approximate $650,000 or so when completed.

Five RWD Concerts Scheduled Tonight

Relief Work Division concerts scheduled for tonight are the RWD Orchestra atop Flagstaff Hill, Schenley Park; City Band No. 1 at Olympia Park; City Band No. 2 at McKinley Park; a string ensemble at Riverview Park, and RWD Band, at Highland Bandstand.

Tomorrow night's concerts are with City Band No. 1, playing Riverview Park, City Band No. 2 at McBride Park, and the RWD Orchestra on Flagstaff Hill.

Ruskin Receiver Hearing Date Set

Federal Judge P. P. Schoonmaker set August 14 for a hearing to determine whether the appointment of the Commonwealth Trust Company of Pittsburgh, as trustee for the Ruskin Hotel Company shall be made permanent, or an additional trustee appointed. The court directed that creditors and stockholders of the hotel company be notified of the meeting.

The appointment was in an action instituted by the hotel company for permission to reorganize under the recent amended section to the bankruptcy act.

SMITH, SEABURY WIN ON CHARTER

NEW YORK, July 25.—(AP.)—Alfred E. Smith and Samuel Seabury emerged victors last night in a battle in which they had been defeated twice before when the New York City Charter Revision Commission stripped the five borough presidents of virtually all their powers.

A switch of two votes made possible the Smith-Seabury victory, which was won only after vigorous debate and heated controversies. The borough heads were deprived of all administrative or executive functions.

The Smith-Seabury combination has been fighting for complete elimination of borough presidents to simplify the city government. In this they have not been successful.

While voting 18 to 10 against proportional representation in the election of a municipal assembly, the commission decided to submit the question to the voters this fall in the form of a referendum.

FAVOR U. S. AID FOR CITY WORK

Council Finance Committee has affirmed a resolution authorizing the city to apply for Federal funds to help carry out $357,386 worth of improvements at various water plants.

The action was taken yesterday on Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston's communication setting forth that the city may be entitled to receive federal assistance to the extent of 30 per cent of the amount.

The committee also affirmed a resolution authorizing Johnston to prepare and submit applications with the Federal Emergency Relief Board for new projects.

Meanwhile, Council and Johnston will confer on the financial status of the unemployment relief projects.

$300 Luncheon Taboo At City's Expense

When the national officers of the Spanish War Veterans and ladies auxiliary gather here August 19 they will have to forego the pleasure of being welcomed by Mayor McNair at a $300 luncheon at the city's expense.

The City Law Department yesterday notified Council that there was no legal authority for such an expenditure. The luncheon had been proposed by the veterans.

COLLECT TAXES PENDING TEST

The county will continue to tax Postal Savings until a friendly suit in court, which the County Board of Assessment and Tax Revision welcomes, decides the issue, Ralph T. Barr maintained today. Barr is in charge of the personal property division of the tax bureau.

In the absence of any mention of the Postal Savings in the Einstein act which declares savings accounts in banks absolved from personal tax, Barr maintained that he cannot do other than continue to collect such a tax.

J. P. Fife, County Solicitor, refused to make public any opinion. It was understood he felt Postal Savings was a "savings bank" and hence the taxes are uncollectible.

Recipe Quest Grows; Wanted: Ye Real Old Apple Sauce Cake

By PRUDENCE PENNY

On the heels of our quest for a gooseberry pie recipe we find ourselves in the midst of another search, instigated by the yearning of an inquirer for Old-Fashioned Apple Sauce Cake.

The genuine, old-fashioned concoction of Grandmother's day, we mean—and so we're on the lookout. Here's your chance for one of the 11 prizes—one $5, five $1 and five honorable mention cook books—offered daily in this column.

Just send your recipes, whether for gooseberry pie, applesauce cake or any other favorite dish that's a bit different, to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. L. C. HUBBS,
1823½ West Long avenue, Dubois.

PEACH PIE

One cup sugar.
One-half cup butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
Pemodmo and pa crust.

Mix first three ingredients. Line pie plate with rich crust. Sprinkle on bottom half of the ground mixture, on top of which half ripe peach halves, cut side down. Cover with remainder of crumbs, a bit of water and nutmeg. Bake as usual. Serve cold with whipped or plain cream, or just before removing from oven, cover top with marshmallows and allow time for them to melt a trifle.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. ELLEN BROWN,
2577 Shady avenue, Pittsburgh.

HUCKLEBERRY OR RASPBERRY CAKE

One-half cup butter.
Two cups sugar.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Three-quarters cup sugar.
One egg.
One cup sour cream.
Rind of one orange or teaspoon vanilla.
Stiffly beaten egg-yolk and part of sugar and shortening, mixing in well with fork. Stir sugar through it. Beat egg and sour cream to egg. Blend the two mixtures. Spread on bottom and sides of two nine-inch-square layer cake pans. Makes two cakes.

Spread the following mixture on the batter and with extra tablespoon of huckleberries or raspberries. Bake in moderate oven 40 minutes. Two cups huckleberries or raspberries, one-third cup sugar (or less to taste), two tablespoons flour, juice of one lemon. Blend well.

MRS. G. E. BURNS,
221 East Main street, Uniontown.

DEVILED EGGS IN TOMATO ASPIC

One quart cooked tomatoes.
Two tablespoons granulated gelatine.
One-fourth cup cold water.
One-half cup raw carrot, diced.
One sprig parsley.
One tablespoon green pepper, grated.
One onion, sliced.
Three cloves.
One small blade mace.
One teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon black pepper, grated.
One cup diced celery.
Eggs.

Mix all the ingredients, except gelatine and cold water, and cook for 20 minutes. Strain, pour over gelatine, which has been soaked in cold water, and stir until gelatine is dissolved.

Color the broth of a loaf pan with some of the aspic, add a layer of sliced deviled eggs and cover with the remaining aspic. Chill, once and for all, to set. Turn out on lettuce leaf, using six or eight eggs sliced thick.

MRS. ALEX BROWN,
1227 Evans avenue, McKeesport.

MICADO TORTE

Three ounces almonds, ground fine.
Three ounces walnuts, ground fine.
Nine egg yolks.
Two tablespoons bread crumbs.
Six ounces sugar.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
Nine egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Beat sugar and egg yolks for 10 minutes. Add almonds, walnuts, coffee, bread crumbs and vanilla. Beat five minutes more. Fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites. Bake in three well-buttered and floured layer cake pans for 25 minutes in a slow oven. Fill with coffee cream custard.

COFFEE CREAM CUSTARD

Six tablespoons strong black coffee.
Four egg yolks.
Four tablespoons sugar.
Pinch of baking soda.
Six ounces sweet butter.

Boil coffee with baking soda. Cream together the sugar and egg yolks. Add the coffee, mixing it steadily. Cook about five minutes, until of custard consistency. Cool. Add one teaspoon vanilla and the softened butter. Cream mixture. Put in refrigerator for one hour. Spread between layers and on top. Sprinkle grated walnuts over cake top with a row of cherries. Keep in cool place.

MINNIE LEWIS,
Box 141, Avonmore.

BANANA DREAM.

Two cups sugar.
One-third cup evaporated milk.
One-third cup water.
Two bananas (put through a sieve or ricer).
Two level tablespoons white corn syrup.
Two tablespoons butter.

MISS MARY ABABAY,
724 Valley street, Oakmont.

FROZEN CHOCOLATE PLUM PUDDING.

One cup cold water.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One and one-half cups sugar.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
Two cups milk.
Two cups cream.
Three-quarters cup seedless raisins, halved.
Three-quarters cup nut meats, coarsely cut.

Cook chocolate and water over low flame until thickened, stirring constantly. Add remaining ingredients, mixing thoroughly. Cool. Freeze. Makes about two quarts.

Honorable Mention

MISS GRACE MOUL,
817 Taylor avenue, Avalon.

EGG CUTLETS

Two tablespoons butter.
One-half cup flour.
Two cups milk.
Six chopped, hard-cooked eggs.
Two tablespoons parsley, chopped.
One teaspoon onion juice.
Salt to taste.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Melt butter, add flour and stir in milk. Cook until thickened. Chill thoroughly. Add chopped hard-cooked eggs and seasonings. Form into cutlet-shaped patties, dip in seasoned cracker crumbs, then in beaten egg, and again in cracker crumbs. Fry in butter until brown. Serve with asparagus tips and cold sliced tomatoes. Serves 8.

IRENE PROSEK,
411 James street, Carnegie.

SWEET POTATO PANCAKES

One egg.
Two tablespoons oil.
One teaspoon salt.
One cup milk.
One-third cup flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.

Beat together mashed potato, potato, egg, oil, salt and milk. Sift baking powder and flour and add to the first mixture. Pour by large spoonfuls into a hot oiled griddle. Spread batter thin. Bake on one side to a golden brown, turn, and brown the other side. Serve for luncheon with bacon or sausages. Serves six.

MRS. LEO E. REINKET,
824 Farragut street, East End.

CHOCOLATE SPONGE LAYER CAKE

One and one-quarter cups sifted cake flour.
One and one-quarter teaspoons baking powder.
Four squares unsweetened chocolate.
One cup milk.
One and one-half cups sugar.
Four egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon colored.
Four egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Sift flour, sugar, measure, add baking powder, soda and salt and sift together three times. Add chocolate to milk and heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, stir until blended, and one-half cup sugar and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Cool. Add remaining sugar gradually to egg yolks, beating with rotary egg beater until mixture becomes very thick and a pale color. Add chocolate mixture and flavoring and blend. Fold in flour, a small amount at a time, then egg whites. Turn into two greased nine-inch layer pans. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Spread Chocolate Orange Frosting between layers and on top of cake.

CHOCOLATE ORANGE FROSTING

Two tablespoons grated orange rind.
Four tablespoons butter.
Two cups sifted confectioner's sugar.
Dash of salt.

Combine orange rind and butter, cream well. Add part of sugar gradually, blending after each addition. Add chocolate and salt and mix well. Add remaining sugar, alternately with orange juice, until of right consistency to spread. Beat thoroughly after each addition. Makes enough frosting to cover tops of two nine-inch layers, or top and sides of 8x8x2-inch cake. (This cake will stay moist several days. It is at its best two days after making as it is the day baked.)

LEONA CASEY,
821 Garfield avenue, Jeannette.

RASPBERRY ICE BOX CAKE

One-half cup sugar.
One cup water.
One egg, beaten.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One cup evaporated milk.
One-half teaspoon gelatine soaked in two teaspoons water.
Ten marshmallows.
One-half cup nuts.
Twelve lady fingers.

Boil sugar and water together 20 minutes. Add tablespoon gelatine which has been soaked in one-fourth cup water five minutes and stir until dissolved. Cool slightly, then add to beaten eggs. Add raspberry puree and lemon juice and chill. Meanwhile, scald one cup milk in top of double boiler, add one-half teaspoon gelatine which has been soaked in water five minutes and stir until dissolved. Pour into bowl and chill ice cold, then whip until stiff. When raspberry mixture starts to congeal, beat until light and fluffy. Fold into whipped milk, add marshmallows and nuts, and put into a bowl lined with lady fingers. Chill in refrigerator twelve hours, then unmold and slice.

To make sauce, force canned or fresh raspberries through sieve.

1613 Rhine street, North Side.

MONTE CARLO CREAM CAKE

Two-thirds cup cream.
One cup sugar.
Two eggs.
One and one-fourth cups cake flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.

Whip cream until slightly thickened, but not stiff enough to hold shape, and fold in sugar. Beat egg whites stiff, then beat in yolks and add to cream mixture, with vanilla, and fold in carefully. Sift flour and measure, then sift again three times with baking powder and salt and add to first mixture. Stir until smooth. Pour in two greased layer tins and bake in moderate oven until done (about 30 minutes). Spread cooked orange filling between layers and frost with whipped cream. Makes 10 servings.

COOKED ORANGE FILLING

One cup sugar.
One-third cup cake flour.
Three-fourths cup orange juice.
One-fourth cup lemon juice.
Grated rind of one orange.
Four egg yolks, slightly beaten.
One tablespoon butter.

Mix sugar and flour thoroughly. Add remaining ingredients in order given. Cook in double boiler 15 minutes or until thick and smooth. Cool and spread between layers of cake.

Make This at Home

For Little Miss Eight to Sixteen

Pattern 1881.

Sun-Telegraph 15c Pattern

When you make this frock, if you are a busy mother—and what mother isn't busy?—try a new scheme. Cut two dresses at once and make them up together. You will be surprised at how much time it saves. The second time you do each little operation it goes quicker. Of course vary your fabrics. If you have a cotton print for the first frock then choose a plain fabric for the second; or how would your little girl look in china blue crepe de chine with a cream net yoke. Pretty as a picture, no doubt, if it were a smart yoke like this.

Pattern 1881 is available in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 takes 2¼ yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

And while you are writing, why not include an order for a fascinating book, crammed from cover to cover with stunning illustrations and captivating descriptions of new fashions, fabrics and other things that make a woman chic . . . THE SUMMER ISSUE OF THE PATTERN BOOK. PRICE 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

SAMARITAN DAY AT LEECH FARM

Fifty thousand persons are expected to attend the first national observance of Good Samaritan Day, Sunday, at Leech Farm, Washington boulevard.

The day is sponsored by Leo G. Altmayer, Pittsburgh produce broker, long known for his annual "watermelon feasts" to Pittsburgh children.

Choral singing, in which the choirs of all Pittsburgh churches have been asked to participate, a 90-piece symphony orchestra, and prominent speakers, including Lowell Thomas, are scheduled.

Good Samaritan day will be celebrated in 140 hospitals and institutions throughout the country.

At 5:30 p. m. Sunday, a national radio hook-up will carry the choral music to the public and to the 140 hospitals and institutions which are joining in the observance.

FATHER ADMITS DROWNING GIRL

HOUSTON, Tex., July 25.—(AP.)—E. H. Stuart, 28, and unemployed, confessed yesterday, police said, that he killed one of his small twin daughters for her insurance so that he would be able to support the other.

Blue-eyed, flaxen-haired Dortha Stuart, 4, was found dead in Cypress Creek, 17 miles north of Houston early yesterday. Her father previously had told police she either had been kidnaped or had strayed from his automobile while it was parked here. For six hours he held to his story, then broke down and signed a confession.

Detective Lieut. A. C. Thornton, chief of the police homicide squad, quoted Stuart as saying that he held the little girl's head under water for three minutes with his hands around her throat so she couldn't swallow. He said he kept a tight grip on her neck while she kicked and thrashed.

MAN ATTACKS VAN BITTNER

LOGAN, W. Va., July 25.—(AP.)—Charged with attacking Van A. Bittner, international representative of the United Mine Workers in West Virginia, "Chick" Walsh, 30, of Logan, is in jail awaiting arraignment before a Justice of the Peace.

Bittner was struck twice and knocked to the floor in the courthouse last night while introducing Rush D. Holt, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, to a crowd of several hundred miners.

Two deputy sheriffs seized Walsh after the attack.

Officers said Bittner, in his speech, declared that "Don Chafin is backing J. Alfred Taylor," and it was then that Walsh leaped over a rail and struck Bittner on the head and face.

Chafin is a former Sheriff of Logan County. Taylor is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

KIDNAPED MAN BRANDED 'KKK'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 25.—(AP.)—Branded with K. K. K. on his back, David Crockett, Harlandale painter and campaign worker who disappeared Friday night, was found yesterday, bound and gagged, by the side of the road at Cassiano Park and Zarsamara street.

R. M. Berkibile, an employe of an ice plant, discovered Crockett as he was on his way home.

Crockett told city detectives he had been kidnaped by three men and held prisoner until last night, when his captors told him they were going to take him home.

While riding with the trio Crockett said, he felt something burning him. He struggled with his captors and one of them knocked him unconscious with a pistol. The painter said he recovered consciousness at the spot where he was found.

Last week's item here reconciled the Louis Calherns (Natalie Schaefer) . . . N. Y. cabs will be restricted in number after Sept. 1 . . . It's a boy at the George (ex-Yacht Club) Walshs . . . Bebe Daniels is better . . . Jack Warner, a biggie in the Democratic party, is registered as a Republican! . . . McAdoo is urging him to change it—before the public gets hep.

Dorothea Livermore Longcope, who named Lassie Honeyman in her abrogation action, is readying a $250,000 alienation suit against her . . . The President gets daily reports on the condition of his favorite actress, Marie Dressler . . . If the censors keep scissoring Mae West's flicks it'll wind up being tagged: "It Ain't No Cinema!" . . . The John Cromwells (Kay Johnson) are adopting a child . . . The Jack Cluetts (the collar scionariter) will be three in Sept. . . . Elsie Rossi (Miss B'klyn of 1930) is Denmark-bound—to be the guest of her heart, Count Henri Haugwitz.

The New York dailies quote Weldon Heyburn as saying he doesn't even know the name of his soon-to-be ex-wife's attorney. He is Vincent Riccardi, of Los Angeles . . . Sylvia Cole's mother brought charges against the Goldwyn studios because her daughter was fired. The case was immediately dismissed—with the D. A.'s office giving her a reprimand . . . A director told a drunkard star: "You're like the ham in 'Dinner at Eight'—only you haven't sense enough to commit suicide!" . . . An orchestra leader in N. Y. is billing himself as "George M. Cohan's son-in-law" . . . Mr. Cohan must love that . . . Sidney Blackmer is in the Mid-West—and the romance with Mae Clarke has decayed . . . Marquis James is B. Baruch's collabber on that book . . . Janice Jarrett is Goldwyn's pet "It" girl. You've seen her on most ciggie ads . . . Vincent Youmans is seriously ill in the West.

Anna May Wong, visiting Radio City, made every dep't, but refused to walk into a millinery spot owned by a Jap . . . Harry Richman's departure from the Riviera was money trouble . . . Gail Patrick, a lovely looker, has it tough in the movies because they say she hasn't "sex appeal!" . . . Charles Wagner, newview of the Senator, is a secret groom. The bride is Agnes Crosby, of Jackson Heights . . . Was it Shakespeare who first said this about censorship: "Art made tongue-tied by authority" . . . Add Park Avenue romances: Maida Lee Mason and Halstead Van Der Poel, see the social register . . . Add B'way wooers: Toni Sorrell, of the ensembles, and Gene Warner of that dollar magazine . . . Arthur Boran parodies a much publicized nifty: "He runs the gamut of emotion from I to me."

Orchids to the new Kahn-Donaldson songs: "Blue White Moonlight" . . . "Okay, Toots!" . . . Orchids to Busby Berkeley's girl stuff in "Dames"—the most impressive choral maneuvers yet . . . Carnations to the bartenders who chant while they shake 'em at the Man About Town . . . Scallions, but a mess of them to that rich clan, at Southampton, L. I., who deprive local farmers of a few dollars by peddling eggs to neighbors at two-bits per dozen!

The original name of the Astors was Ashdoer (it's recorded in an old edition of the dictionary of American biography)—the original Ashdoers were butchers in Germany . . . The present J. J. Astor is "V" not "III" as the gazettes say . . . The biggest change in motor car design is due soon: Engines in the rear . . . The Stuart Peters (he's Carole Lombard's brother) are being heir-conditioned. She was Rosemary Hancock . . . The Lupe Velez "excitement" was for publicity—to entice a new contract.

Will Hays' code of morals for the movies was written by Father Lord, of St. Louis—it was a good one—but the movie execs wouldn't live up to it! . . . Kate Hepburn and Laura Harding bought a truck to motor here and there in . . . The Lew Ayres-Ginger Rogers matter is at the stage where ma is worried . . . Ida Lupino and Alfred Delacambre, an ex-Southern Methodist Univ. footballer (of Dallas) are uh-huh . . . Delayed item: At the Carey Wilson-Camelita Geraghty bleiding—Jean Harlow brought along her own still camera van! . . . Confirmations of items in a week: the McAdoo divorce (reported from here a year ago); the Ina Claire romance, ditto; the Ted Husing blast . . . Eddie Cantor and Sam Goldwyn aren't talking.

The MGM and Fox studios broke up a romance between two favorites, one of whom was married—halting another scandal . . . George Dallas Streeter, Texas oil man (who likes to write pictures) changed his mind about an MGM actress—so she is consulting attorneys. Making love a thing to fear? . . . The Spencer Tracys dine together often for the sake of the children. Mrs. Tracy has made no move to divorce him—when the recent Loretta Young romance was public . . . One of the authors of a musical film was discovered to have been David Hutton—Aimee MacPherson's ex—the studio made him sign a paper saying he had nothing to do with it—before paying him for his share . . . Will Rogers noticed Shirley Temple eating a carrot . . . "She eats carrots," observed Will, "and her agents eat steaks!"

Rudy Vallee, it appears, isn't getting a divorce! . . . Merely a separation! . . . How come David Ross is using the same theme song used by Major Bowes for so many years? . . . Dorothy Mackaill's ex-groom, Neil Miller, is peddling real estate ads . . . The Rockefeller of the West donated heavy funds to the San Francisco Communists! . . . The Ralph Raingers, he's the hit songsmith, are infanticipating . . . Ask any chef to cook you scrambled eggs mixed with chopped scallions (including the green stems) and then thank me! . . . Wall Streeters are plotting a pool from London—the plug to be pulled in September . . . Observed on the rear of a Ford: "Please pass quietly. Driver is asleep!"

'Cavalcade' Revived

Fox Film's talking picture, "Cavalcade," which set a record for critical and popular approval after its world premiere on Broadway a year and a half ago has returned to the scene of its original triumph. It has opened for an extended run at the Criterion Theater, New York.

Adapted to the screen from the successful Noel Coward stage play which ran for more than a year in London, the picture, starring Clive Brook and Diana Wynward, tells the story of the effect of world events from 1899 to 1933 on home and family. Although it has a patriotic British background, the intimacy of detail in the lives of the characters give the story universal significance which was immediately recognized. The film was declared the best of the year by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Bing Twins Invisible

By LLOYD PANTAGES

HOLLYWOOD, July 25.—Believe it or no, up to the moment this daily epic will appear in print, Bing Crosby, the proud papa of twins, will not even have had so much as a peek at his new offspring. The kiddies are done up in a special incubator, which not even an X-ray can penetrate, so the proud papa will have to wait until they gain weight, and are moved into more seeable quarters.

Fan adoration reached its apex when Francis Lederer received two glass figurines from a gentleman in Vienna, who claims Mr. Lederer as his favorite screen actor. He felt that he must give him a gift to prove his adoration, but he also felt it his duty to inform Francis that on account of he was broke he had stolen the gifts from a glass factory.

Note to interior decorators: Ludicrous as it may seem, the set designer for "Gay Divorce" at RKO is giving we, the innocent public, a peek at what he believes will be a hotel suite 50 years from now. The walls are lined with fur, which is charming for the moths, and oriental rugs are in pastel shades. The bed, which is placed on a pedestal like a throne, is completely covered in fur and resembles nothing so much as a polar bear standing on all fours. All this keeps one man running around the set all day doing nothing but chasing the vagrant fur-eater-uppers with a spray gun.

Possibly the Healy ex-stooges, Howard, Fine and Howard, will be considered hoarders when 'tis disclosed that a weekly pay check netted them a $500-dollar bill instead of a check. Having never seen one before, and believing it to be phony, they rushed to the bank and when told that it was the real McCoy money, thought that it was beautiful they are having it framed to hang in their bedroom. Really there is no end to the nonsense in the Hollywoods.

Mack Gordon and Harry Ravel, two of Tin-Pan alley's best song disher-uppers, got together and started writing words and music after they were both disgusted with doing solos as vaudevillians. These be the two lads who are being asked to write 11 new songs in two weeks for "College Rhythm," a new Paramount opera.

Your Theater and Mine

By KARL KRUG

THE LOBBY PHILOSOPHER

So Dillinger, most notorious of modern bad men, liked Mickey Mouse and Silly Symphony films! . . . Ironic, isn't it, especially in the face of the screen cleanup campaign, that he went to see "Three Little Pigs" more than once? . . . I wonder if he had seen Walt Disney's other masterpiece, "The Big Bad Wolf," before he went under those guns in that Chicago alley? . . . Knowing Disney as well as I do, I know how he must feel . . . To think that his creations even touched the heart of such a hardened rogue as Dillinger . . . Endorsed by everybody they are . . . Those Mickey Mouse and Silly Symphony gems and Dillinger liked them . . . It all comes back to that old saying, "There is so much good in the worst of us, etc." . . . Anyway, it's one of the greatest ads ever written for the Disney pictures . . . Walt makes them so clean because he's that way himself . . . He has babies of his own, and he's so shy when he goes to New York from Hollywood that he hides away in a hotel room bewildered by the goings-on of the metropolis . . . Dillinger and the "Three Little Pigs" . . . I wonder if the killer knew "Little Boy Blue" when he was a kid? . . . And, there's a thought for Disney . . . Why not the Fields classic as a Silly Symphony?

It sticks in my mind so vividly . . . The name, Pat O'Malley, as it keeps bobbing up where Dillinger is concerned . . . It was Officer Pat O'Malley, of the East Chicago police force, who was "rubbed out" by the bandit's smoking guns . . . And it was 12-year-old Pat O'Malley, a Chicago kid, who gave one of the first eyewitness accounts of Dillinger being mowed down after leaving that movie . . . But, the most amazing thing of all is that Pat O'Malley, screen actor, played the part of Detective Sergeant Tommy Glennon in that early gangster talkie, "Alibi" . . . It's funny, too, how news affects the movies . . . Take Spencer Tracy, for instance . . . Had it not been for a Western prison break Tracy might still be just a "good Broadway actor" . . . As Killer Mears in that grim prison melodrama, "The Last Mile," Tracy gave a great performance, of course . . . But the movies weren't interested until after that prison break which hit all the first pages of the country and drew attention to the play, and Tracy . . . And why not Slim Summerville in a talking screen version of Washington Irving's "The Headless Horseman of Sleepy Hollow"?

Nice to know, too, that Jimmy Barton, after all these years, seems on the threshold of the "biggest things" in his life . . . Because of stepping in and carrying on as good or better than Henry Hull in "Tobacco Road," Jimmy gets the lead in the screen version of "Ah, Wilderness" . . . And maybe George Jessel will find that place on the screen which he has just missed in that Ben Hecht-Charlie MacArthur screen musical to be produced in the East with George in the top spot . . . Wonder how Ben and Charlie feel about the new order in pictures? . . . That ribald deviltry of theirs will have to come down several pegs or else the big, bad censors will get them . . . All mothers should tell their children that Homestead Frank McHugh's swell line of sappy comedy is due to the fact that he eats spinach four or five times a week! . . . He really does . . . Did you know that DeMille is beating Doug Fairbanks to the punch with that film on the Crusades? . . . The subject has long been a favorite with Fairbanks and right now he has a script written several years ago dealing with the Crusades . . . But, would old Doug find the theme feasible at the moment?

From Hollywood Jerry "Stooge" Howard passes along the information that Jimmy Durante recently laid in a new overcoat for the coming winter . . . A quiet little thing in three-inch checks of purple and green . . . Mrs. Durante is still looking for the tailor . . . I hope the Loew office will be thoughtful enough to send the reissue of "Min and Bill" back to this town . . . There is a real demand for the Marie Dressler-Wallace Beery film revival, and, as they will never make another together, the thousands of fans who would like to see "Min and Bill" again should not be snubbed . . . J. Harold Murray and Bernice Claire, two musical show idols of Pittsburgh's stage glory of other days, are making a two-reel short of "The Song of the Flame" . . . Delmar Poppin and Greek Evans are in it . . . Even the stars and featured players of a few short years ago have to eat . . . While your old vaudeville and movie stage show friends, Shaw and Lee, have finally landed a job in the "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" film . . . Will they ever make a talking version of Richard Barthelmess' "The Patent Leather Kid"?

'Hell Cat' Starts Regent Run

"The Hell Cat," dramatic romance featuring Robert Armstrong and Ann Sothern, opened its Pittsburgh first-run in the Regent yesterday. While the story is basically a newspaper yarn, it makes its love element its most important feature, and has a strong supporting cast headed by Minna Gombell and Henry Kolker. A fast-moving story, the action calls for a "smart" girl to outsmart a "smart" guy, with the menace of underworld characters constantly cropping out. There is an exciting finale in the uncovering of a Chinese smuggling plot in which the Coast Patrol plays a prominent and thrilling part. The original story and screen play were written by Adele Buffington and Fred Niblo.

Champ Baer Is Cry-Baby To Studio Nurse

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 25.—Hello! Max Baer, world's champion pugilist, may be a hero to his fans, but to Peggy Coleman, five-foot-one in high heels, he's just a big cry-baby with a fleck of dust in his eye.

Peggy doesn't admire the bis bad Baer any the less for this weakness. In fact, she sort of likes him. She's pretty well used to seeing human beings in pain. She's the official head nurse at the Emergency Hospital at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

It was there that she first met Max. Tears streaming down his face, streaking his makeup, he groped his way into her hospital room and demanded help. He had something in his eye.

And while he wept — and grinned at her—Peggy sat him in a chair, scolded him because he winced and efficiently removed the fleck of dust.

"He was always a baby while he was out here making pictures with Carnera," said the petite little nurse. "A little scratch, or a burn from a match and in he'd come running for help!"

Wanderings around town . . . James Dunn is strictly on a solo routine as far as romance is concerned! . . . Miss Morocco (also known as Little), who charmed the cash customers at the World's Fair in Chicago and has recently been vamping in the movies, has a real name—Jeanne Farah, and she doesn't speak broken English all the time! . . . Maurice Chevalier, Jeannette MacDonald and Director Ernst Lubitsch made the gang working on "The Merry Widow" verra happy with presents at the completion of the movie. The electricians, the assistant and, in fact, everyone on the set (meaning laborers) netted a nice little gift . . . Sir Henry and Lady Wood have been frolicking at Agua Caliente—and so have Theda Bara (vamp till ready of yesterday), Fifi Dorsay, Jean Hersholt and the Gene Austins.

Boulevard buzzings . . . Megaphonist Dave Butler amuses himself by taking movies of the folks around the set between scenes—and he has the duckiest little camera! . . . At last, we've found out that Greta Garbo and Rouben Mamoulian were headed for Mexico the time they got all the publicity—and that really frightened the silent Swede . . . M-G-M figures that Jean Parker will give Janet Gaynor a race for laurels when she is seen in "Have a Heart"—and for that reason she has been elevated to stardom. And, incidentally, it's not a bad idea . . . Fuzzy Knight, with the correct representative, would be a definite addition to the movies. He's a real entertainer—and you can put that in CAPITAL letters!

* * *

Andy Clyde says there isn't much to talk about at some movie parties until after one or two couples leave!

* * *

Gossipy odds and ends . . . Betcha didn't know that Phil Baker actualaly tries to make nit-wits believe that he doesn't know who "Beetle" (the insulting stooge) is . . . Phillips Holmes is still mad at Mary Carlisle for hiding his car the other day! . . . Regis Toomey appeared in "The Red Head," a Monogram movie . . . It's good to hear that Irene Ware is back in top spots. She's just completed "King Kelly of the U. S. A.," starring Guy Robertson, and is slated for another with Monogram . . . Tala Birel has been engaged by Columbia for a flicker . . . Lupe Velez' best imitations are of Kate Hepburn and Gloria Swanson. The Mexican jumping bean refuses to do Garbo 'cause she is the dark-eyed lady's favorite! . . . If you think there's anything one-sided about the Glenda Farrell-Ronny Simon buzz-buzz that's goin' on, you should get a load of Ronny's orchid bill!

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse production of "The Green Bay Tree" will be presented tonight in Washington School, Mt. Lebanon. The same cast that appeared in the play in Arnold School a short time ago will be seen in it in the South Hills, and also in the Scottish Rite Cathedral, New Castle, Thursday and Friday nights. The Lawrence County seat possibly will see other Civic Playhouse offerings, the tentative plans all depending upon the success of the first visit of the troupers. If the experiment turns out all right, the present vehicle in the Arnold School, "Oliver Oliver," and "Her Master's Voice," next to be produced, will be sent there, along with some of last year's plays, including "Second Man." The Civic Playhouse appears to be moving onward and upward. This conclusion is reached without even considering the extension of its sphere of activity, and is based on the prestige the company is achieving on its own stage. So far, the summer subscription season has gained largely in audience interest. Naturally, this is to be expected since the venture a year ago was that of an unknown and untried group of young crusaders. That they have continued to make good is entirely due to enthusiasm, earnest spirit to give their best, and the loyalty that makes the real trouper.

* * *

When the drama department, Carnegie Institute of Technology, in its annual bow to the birthday of Shakespeare in April, staged both parts of "Henry IV" in "the Elizabethan manner," it started something. The production of "Twelfth Night" in Ogonquit, Maine, last week, with Maude Adams in the cast, was introduced with Elizabethan atmospheric realism. That is, there was a prologue representing the arrival of the strolling players at an old English inn-yard, followed by the bargaining with the inn-keeper for its use as a theater. Next were the erection of a stage and curtain, and the presentation of the play. Incidentally, Miss Adams, now 62, did not take the role of Viola, usually the star part, and was satisfied with secondary role of Maria. Yet she is reported to have "stolen the show."

* * *

"The Little Minister," one of the triumphs of Miss Adams at the height of her career, is to be made into a movie with Katharine Hepburn as the star. The dramatization of this Barrie classic carried Miss Adams through 300 consecutive performances in New York, September, 1897 — June, 1898. She revived it for the road in 1907 and again in 1915, for a total of 750 performances. In 1916, she appeared briefly in the play in New York. Recently she gave a broadcast of it via national radio networks. The play was filmed as a silent in 1921.

And So It Goes

"THERE'S NO use, Frank. I like you; almost love you, in fact. But you haven't enough money to make me happy. So what's the use of saying any more about it?"

Anita speaking. Anita with the cute dimples and the lovely hair. She was talking to Steve, the boy-friend who wanted to make her his wife.

"Don't you see, honey, that I'm a very practical sort of girl? You can't be happy without money when you're married, and I'm one little girl who knows it. I've watched plenty of my friends take the fatal step because they didn't realize that fact. And what have they now?

"Nothing."

Steve attempted to plead.

"I understand, Anita," he said. "I understand just how you look at things. But aren't you forgetting love? Aren't you forgetting that sometimes love makes up for everything?

"Don't you see, sweetheart, that we won't starve? I have my job, and it's not bad as jobs go these days. And you can keep working if you want to, even though I'd hate to see it. So—"

The girl shook her head slowly. They were seated together on a park bench, and the girl moved just a trifle away. It was as if her mind was definitely set, and that tiny move would hasten the break-up.

"You might as well stop talking, Steve," she interrupted, "because it isn't going to make things any easier. I'm telling you that happiness in married life is based on money. And where there's no money, there's no happiness.

"We've been going around together a long time, Steve. True, I've seen other men. But you've seen other girls. And you know me well enough by this time to understand that I'm just a little different. When I feel that something is right, that's the way it's going to stay with me.

"I don't want to hurt you, honey. That's a long way from my mind. But I might as well tell you now that there's another man in the picture. He wants to marry me, and I like him a great deal. I don't care as much for him as I do for you. But Steve, dear, he has money.

"Call me a gold digger. Call me whatever you want. But try to understand that I've seen too much poverty in my day—and that I don't want any more of it when I get married.

"I'm not getting married for today, Steve. I'm getting married for the rest of my life. And I'm marrying money because it means a form of happiness that I could never find with you. That's all, dear."

They both stood up. The boy hesitated for a moment. Then he spoke slowly.

"I'll—I'll try to understand, Anita. Nothing you could ever do would be very wrong with me. But I just want you to know that I love you very, very much. I'll always love you. There'll never be anyone else in my life.

"You feel that money means more than I do. All right. That's all there is to it. All I can say is that I love you—and that I hope you're right."

They parted that same night. Without a kiss . . .

They didn't meet until five years later. It was in Anita's apartment. She was Mrs. Parker now—and Steve had been given her address, he said, by a mutual friend.

She was most cordial when she saw Steve in the doorway, and she invited him in immediately. They exchanged pleasantries as they sat in the living room and they slipped back into a discussion of the past without the slightest embarrassment.

"You see, Steve," smiled Anita, "I was right. Mr. Parker is a wonderful man, and I'm terribly happy as his wife. There is, of course, a difference in our ages—but his money has made up for anything that might otherwise have been lacking.

"I still think the world of you, Steve. But—well, I was right. Wasn't I?"

"Sure, Anita," he replied. "I guess you always knew what you were talking about. You sort of broke my heart that night—but, well, you know how those things go. I'm getting married myself in a few days. I never thought I'd get over losing you. But I did, I guess. And honest, Anita, she's a wonderful girl."

Anita shook his hand warmly.

"I'm sure she is, Steve. And I know you're going to be very happy together. Isn't it nice to know that life made both of us so happy in the long run?"

"You bet," returned Steve enthusiastically. "You bet."

"Well darling," she asked "What happened?"

Steve toyed with his butter knife.

"I'll tell you later, dearest," he said. "After all, we have more important things to discuss. Did I tell you—"

The girl pouted.

"I don't think that is very nice, Steve. You know very well that nothing is more important right now. And you know I'm so very anxious about it all. Why don't you tell me what happened?"

"Because, honey," said the man, "nothing happened. I didn't get what I expected. I—I was a little too late. But don't you worry. We'll try another place tomorrow."

"I know we will," said the girl. "But are you sure you went to the right place today? Here's the clipping. I forgot to give it to you last night."

Steve took the clipping his fiancee extended to him. He smiled slightly as he read it aloud.

"That's it," he murmured. "'Furniture for sale. Cheap. Breaking up home. Mrs. Anita Parker.'"

'Copperfield' Cast Enlarged

Edna May Oliver has been signed for the part of Aunt Betsey Trotwood in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "David Copperfield." Miss Oliver is the third person to be selected so far for a leading role in this ambitious picturization of the Dickens novel. Lionel Barrymore is to play Dan Peggotty, and Jean Cadell, British actress, will be seen as Mrs. Micawber. Lewis Stone is also in the cast.

Paterson-Ayers Film Delayed

With "Lottery Lover," the new "Pat" Paterson and Lew Ayres starring film in readiness for production, work was suddenly brought to a halt when the director, Hanns Schwarz, was stricken with appendicitis and immediately operated upon. Production will start as soon as he is able to take charge again, which should be the latter part of August. Others in the cast are Peggy Fears, Neil Sparks and Sterling Holloway.

Russ Columbo Film Before Cameras

New Film Selected For Joan

Joan Crawford will be starred in "Sahara! There Goes Romance," new Ursula Parrott short story. This will be a David O. Selznick production, with Victor Fleming the director. The adaptation of the story will be prepared by Arthur Kober and H. W. Hanemann. Miss Crawford's newest vehicle is "Chained," in which she is co-starred with Clark Gable.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen!

Henry R. Eby, the Globe Trotter garden expert, who broadcasts each Friday at 12:15, shrunk the popular hate last week when he mentioned ants and how to get rid of them.

The volume of mail four copies of the speech indicates that ants make themselves a nuisance in places other than picnic spots.

The best thing to do to get rid of ants permanently is to destroy the queen ant in the nest.

Trace the ants from the house to the nest by watching where the workers go after leaving your pantry shelves.

That's the nest.

If it's an outside nest punch a couple of holes into it and pour carbon bisulphide on. It changes into a heavier-than-air gas and fills all galleries of the nest, destroying it.

This chemical is inflammable and must be kept away frosm open flame.

To all of you who have written about your ant troubles I mam sending a copy of last Friday's speech. If you don't get your copy in a few days write me again, because I lost some of the letters.

After the broadcast three other day in which I read news stories from last winter's Sun-Telegraph describing the frigid weather, Mrs. R. W. Jameson wrote that the atmosphere in her front room perceptibly cooled and where a moment before she had almost been prostrated with the heat she experienced a definite chill.

That may sound funny, but that is almost similar to my own experience while reading these stories of record-breaking cold weather while hot weather records were being broken.

I'm reading up now on Arctic stories for special Globe Trotter air conditioning. Don't fail to keep listening.

Pay Tribute To Coolidge Next Week

By AIRCASTER

From an open air pavilion near the Coolidge home in Plymouth, Vt., it is to come a program on KDKA August 1 paying tribute to Calvin Coolidge on the anniversary of his oath as President.

Principal speakers will be Sen. W. R. Austin, of Vermont, and Rep. J. M. Beck, of Pennsylvania.

It's a Rosaline Greene, now the speaking voice of Mary Lou in the WEAF-NBC showboat, who just passed this figure in portraying feminine microphone roles. Rosaline started at WGY, Schenectady, while still in college.

In her career on the air she has been an ingenue, a villainess, a housewife, a detective, a barker and even a stooge for Eddie Cantor.

LOPEZ-PENDARVIS

Vincent Lopez appears in the cool and colorful Urban Room to entertain the diners and dancers, as guest of Paul Pendarvis and his orchestra tonight, after his last performance at a downtown movie.

The famous maestro is heard over KDKA during the Pendarvis broadcast at 11:30.

It has been rumored for some time that Abe Lyman was engaged to Joy Lynne, pretty little brunette singer.

As a matter of fact, Abe told me that he'd never even met Miss Lynne until the other night, upon her being pointed out to him, he walked up to her and said, "Hello."

Miss Lynne looked surprised, so Abe said, in his characteristically likeable fashion, "Why, don't you know me? I'm Abe Lyman, the guy you're engaged to!"

RENT RELIEF TO BE PAID HERE, FIRST IN COUNTRY

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 25.—Kathrine Cornell has become the last and grandest of the legitimate troupers. She dared and won where other hesitated, winding up a tour of 31 states, largely one night stands, with bigger box office grosses than any dramatic offering on Broadway.

Miss Cornell, regarded as most glamorous in the stellar array, is about the only one left who loves the companionship of trouping, the sleeper jumps, drafty old dressing rooms and dinky hotels that were once so essentially a part of the theater's routine.

She thrills to stepping from the train in the small city, the lunch wagon interludes after the play, penny-ante games on the Pullman and all the chancy compromises of the road. She is the final heartbeat of a once great industry—show business.

Her barn-storming proved the talkies have not taken all the customers in the outland. For, in the worst period of theatrical history, she came back to New York and a deserved rest with a snug fortune. And, what is more, revived a fine tradition.

* * *

One sees amazing things in this lunatic metropolis. He was a big raw-boned Max Baer sort of fellow at the next table in a restaurant selecting his order. Finger nails of the hands that held the menu were lacquered a flaming red.

* * *

Then there was the dandy Bob Brinkerhoff whom I saw on the Plaza steps in the natural spotlight of a javalin of noonday sunshine. He was a monotone of ash gray—from suit, hats, spats, shirt and tie to gray walking stick. In his lapel was notched a bright red rose. Suddenly, as we gawked, he tripped down the steps and into—I'll kiss a pig if it wasn't—a dove gray limousine.

A most striking celebrity resemblance exists between Jules Bache, the banker, and E. Phillips Oppenheim, the novelist. They are of the same chubby rotundity, walk alike, express the same recessional note in hair, carry gold headed walking sticks and each sports a rimless detached monocle with a port hole fixation.

* * *

The prototype of Oppenheim's head waiter, whose suavity with crooks and royalty threads most his yarns, is Theodore Szarvis, long of the Ritz, but latterly of the Waldorf's staff of maitres d'hotel. They met years ago when Oppenheim was a guest and Theodore a captain in a London hotel. Whenever the novelist comes to New York he calls on Theodore wherever he may be. He long ago discovered that Theodore's outward mask of obesiance hid a cultured scholar, a lover of the classics and keen student of international affairs.

* * *

DeWolf Hopper, in his 70's, is still a romantic Romeo. He spends most of his time these days in Chicago and, when he has to leave Mrs. Hopper for New York engagements on the radio, he spends quite a sum on telephone calls and telegrams. On his most recent engagement he tried to avoid what has become to him a horror, "Casey at the Bat"—but his sponsors wouldn't let him. It made the 3,000th time.

* * *

Charles M. Schwab's magnificent French chateau is the last of Riverside Drive's private mansions with landscaped terrace, ivy clad towers and high iron fence. Upkeep—and it's the best kept place in town—is reputed a quarter million a year. On the upper East Side, the Andrew Carnegie home is just as it was when the Laird of Skibo passed on, the last of the high-fenced splendorous type of homes along what was once Millionaire Row.

* * *

The green-gabled Clarke mansion in the 70's, the castle of the copper magnate, now an apartment house, was the high spot of Millionaire Row when I came to town. I went there as a reporter and saw my first private elevator, self manipulated by push buttons, and first butler with side wheel whiskers and stiff waist bend. They seemed to me then, as now, the spiffiest of all gadgets in grand living.

* * *

Next you hear, I may be yelling at passersby from behind a criss-cross of bars, "Hey, Jack, gotta match!" While several companions were dawdling over sodas in a 42d street drug store I idled at the clock counter. And eight alarm clocks were wound and set to go off an hour later. Next week I open the boat rocking season.

VOLPE, MARTIN LINKED WITH ALKY RING

'Pittsburgh Hymie' and Friend Held as Raid Aftermath

The pair, as smartly and conservatively dressed as bankers, walked into Central Police Station today and surrendered; the sleuths had sent out the word they would like to find out whether Hymie and Louie had anything to do with a reputed alcohol ring uncovered on the North Side a few days ago.

They were held for investigation at the request of Detective Inspector Sam Wheeler in Central Police Court. Wheeler said he expected to make more arrests today.

Attorney A. Lincoln Cohen, counsel for Pittsburgh Hymie, did not come empty-handed. He came with a $1,000 bond furnished by one George Stern and sworn to by Alderman John Verona.

WAITS FOR BOND

This was the first time Martin and Volpe ever had been in together. And if the suspicions of the detectives are accurate, their joint debut in police circles indicates a new partnership in "alky" circles.

Five others previously had been arrested in an investigation of the same alcohol ring, which the sleuths say was uncovered when they raided what they thought was a numbers lottery in West Diamond street. Instead, they reported finding a book containing the names of 1,000 alcohol customers.

ALBERT LINKED AGAIN

One of the other five arrested was Simon Albert, 39, of Sherman avenue. Sixteen months ago Albert was one of 15 men arrested in Louis Volpe's East Liberty hotel room in a similar investigation.

Pittsburgh Hymie is the same who spent a year or more behind the bars after being convicted of the slaying of an ex-councilman in Cleveland. However, he was acquitted in a second trial.

Jarrett Estate Willed to Wife

Jarrett was a prominent member of the Allegheny County bar and was Assistant City Solicitor from 1912 to 1920.

Farrell Druggist Enters Bankruptcy

John A. Hamilton, of Farrell, Pa., a druggist, filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in Federal Court. He listed his liabilities as $94,085.11 and assets as $58,204.11. Of the latter, $44,200 is represented as real estate.

DIVORCE SEEKER RIVER VICTIM

Papers in the pockets of a man whose body was recovered from the Allegheny River at the Sixth Street Bridge today had identified the victim as Louis R. Weiseman, a roomer at 1227 Sherman avenue, North Side.

Anewspaper clipping disclosed a divorce action filed by Weiseman against Carrie Weiseman His landlady, Mrs. Teressa Leonard, said she last saw him Monday morning. She added that Weiseman was separated from his wife and five children.

He had been ill and despondent over business affairs, according to Mrs. Leonard. Weiseman was a salesman. The body was recovered yesterday.

COUNTY AWAITS PWA CONTRACT SIGNING

Release of 25-Million Fund Expected By Nightfall

The Allegheny County Authority's contract with the Public Works Administration was in Washington today in the briefcase of Ralph H. Frank, assistant counsel to the Authority.

If a few minor details are ironed out, federal government officials are expected to sign it and open the federal purse before nightfall.

If it is signed, the $25,000,000 promised for the public improvement projects in Allegheny County will be unleashed, and the building of vehicular tunnels, bridges, roads and city wharf improvements will be started.

The Authority here has straightened out many of the details, and approval and the signatures today are expected. Press C. Dowler, William McK. Reed and Eugene N. Hunting, members of the board, have already given their approval.

Administrator of Public Works Harold L. Ickes is in the West on vacation, but this is not expected to delay the proceedings, since assistants are thought to have the power to complete the negotiations.

Employment of more than 10,000 men is expected through the public works plan.

Tube Toll Critics to Air Grievances Before Council

A barrage of criticism against the Liberty Tubes toll plan today had resulted in Council's delaying final consent for the Allegheny County Authority to go ahead with the proposal.

Meanwhile, the whole matter will be aired at a special hearing in Council at 10 a. m. tomorrow. At that time members of the City Planning Commission and of the South Hills Civic Federation, which has been opposing the scheme, will be present.

Members of the South Hills group denounced the program in Council yesterday.

Mrs. E. A. Schroeder led the attack. She declared it was "arrogant" on the part of the County Commissioners not to have consulted members of City Council early about the program, merely because the Commissioners "got what they wanted."

HE WAS ASTONISHED

Mrs. Shroeder, who visited Public Works Administration officials in Washington, said that Clarence McDonough, chief PWA engineer, had expressed astonishment that Council had not been consulted, because the members represent a community paying 70 per cent of the taxes in the county.

Councilman P. J. McArdle interjected:

"And well might he have been astonished."

A. C. Purdy, who also made a trip to Washington, said he had been informed that the entire County Authority program need not be grouped together and that the South Hills could have been left out.

He declared:

"Our organization definitely is opposed to the tolls on the Liberty Tubes. Our committee that went to Washington found out that the projects could be segregated."

A report from the City Planning Commission, dated July 5, was read. It said that the commission was opposed to the present plan owing to the design and because the commission felt that the plan was not the best to take care of the traffic needs.

County Solicitor J. P. Fife, who was at the Council hearing, said that he had been informed that the City Planning Commission and the County Planning Commission have come nearer together on an ultimate design for the Liberty Tubes plaza since the city commission issued its report.

Fife informed Council that the government had stipulated the work on the program should start within 30 days after the loan is granted at Washington.

Pending the hearing in Council Thursday, the city law department has been ordered to report on the legal aspects of the program.

Benedictine Nuns in Their Party

NEW FAMILY AID VIEWED AS EXPERIMENT

Landlords to Be Paid From State Funds, Mills Announces

Payment of rent relief, a new departure in aiding destitute families, will be begun in Allegheny County for the first time in the nation about August 1, George P. Mills, executive director of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Fund, announced today.

A limited number of poor families will be aided on an experimental basis. The plans is a modification of one submitted by the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board.

Heretofore families were helped only after they had been evicted for non-payment of rent. Under the new program, their rent will be paid from state relief funds.

The landlord will receive as a yearly rental a sum equal to the total amount of taxes plus 1 per cent of the highest assessed value of the property. The rent will be paid in 12 installments.

URGES HOUSING ACT SUPPORT

Officials of Allegheny County building and loan associations were urged to "get back of the government housing program" by Clarence T. Rice, of Kansas City, Kan., at a special meeting last night at the Congress of Women's Clubs.

Here as a representative of the United States Building and Loan League, Rice urged that local groups affiliate with the national organization as an "impressive membership" can urge beneficial legislation passed in Washington.

Problems of the housing administration and the building and loan organizations, he said, are the same in his review of the working machinery of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. He pictured the government's housing legislation as a turn toward the principle of private enterprise, saying:

"Not a single dollar is to be appropriated from federal funds for further financing, but rather the lending institutions will be encouraged to embark upon a program of repair, reconditionation and refinancing of mortgages upon sound business principles."

30 Districts Join Polish Day Outing

Sub-committees in more than 30 Western Pennsylvania communities are arranging details for their participation in the fourth annual Polish Day outing in Kennywood Park, August 15. The picnic will be held under the auspices of the Central Council of Polish Organizations in Pittsburgh.

ROAD PATROL HOLDS OUTING

Guests included officials from Harrisburg, justices of the peace, aldermen and chiefs of police from cities, boroughs and townships in their respective counties.

The program included mushball games, swimming, various sports and amusements. Lunch and dinner was served. Capt. D. E. Miller, commander of Troop B, Greensburg, was general chairman of the affair. He was assisted by Lieuts. A. J. Oldham, W. C. A. Bear and Top Sergt. Ray Hoover, of Troop B.

Some of the guests were: Capt. P. J. Dorr, deputy superintendent State Highway Patrol, Harrisburg; Capt. Lawrence Brosha, supply officer of the entire partol; Lieut. C. F. Schroeder, in charge of the patrol's mechanical unit; H. H. Frack, chief clerk of the State Highway Patrol; Capt. J. R. Staudiford, commanding officer, Troop A, Harrisburg; Lieut. M. L. Snaveley, Troop D, Williamsport, and State Police officials from Greensburg and Butler.

MUSIC

LAWN CONCERT

Hotel Schenley.

Mr. Lissfelt

Victor Saudek gave the happy "Country Gardens" of Grainger last night as introduction. The dream music from "Hansel and Gretel," a Bach prelude for strings and Bizet's "Farandole" from the "L'Arlesienne" suite, with Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band" completed the orchestra's part.

Two soloists of note aided last night — Addison Jones, pianist, who made so fine an impression last year, played the first movement of Tschaikowsky's B flat Concerto, and Sarah Logan, one of our fine contraltos, sang the ever-present aria from "Samson and Delilah."

For Friday's concert, Earl Wild, pianist, and William Stone, violinist, will be soloists, and J. Vick O'Brein will again conduct as guest.

City Delays Stand In Zone Cab Case

City Council has ordered the law department to continue to maintain an observer at the Public Service Commission's hearings on the Zone Cab Corporation's application to run low-priced cabs here. The next hearing has been set for September 12.

Meanwhile, Council will hold any action in abeyance. Assistant City Solicitor John J. Kennedy has been acting as observer at the hearings.

Grocery Robbers Take Truckload

Burglars looted the P. H. Butler grocery store at 5853 Ellsworth avenue last night, escaping with a truckload of canned goods, cigarets, candies and staples. W. E. Stockberger, manager, said the thieves gained entrance by cutting a screen and forcing a transom over a rear door.

SEEK PINCHOT'S AID FOR ROAD

A new boulevard system from the downtown to the Ardmore boulevard and the William Penn highway, near Forest Hills, will be discussed with Gov. Pinchot within a few days.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern, with representatives of the William Penn-Lincoln Highway Association, William B. Rodgers, Carl E. Smith and John B. McCrady, are arranging a conference.

They will ask the Governor to provide $2,000,000 or more out of federal road funds given the state to aid in the construction. The new boulevard, to cost nearly $7,000,000 when completed, would provide a direct route from the William Penn and Lincoln highways to the downtown, and likewise relieve traffic conditions from East Pittsburgh to Swissvale, and through Schenley Park and other parallel streets.

The city of Pittsburgh and the borough of Wilkinsburg have already approved resolutions asking for the federal road funds.

False Tip Sends Sheriffs to Mine

A report of trouble at the Springdale mine of the Allegheny-Pittsburgh Company in Logan's Ferry yesterday, sent a group of deputy sheriffs to the mine. No trouble was found upon their arrival.

The mine, employing 538 men, has been closed since May 25 as result of a campaign of "passive resistance" by the miners, as a result of the company's refusal to discharge an official to whom the men objected.

$50 in Prizes Weekly for News Tips

Are you alert? Do you wish to make your alertness pay? The Sun-Telegraph is presenting the opportunity. Every week it is offering a total of $50 in prizes for NEWS TIPS telephoned to the News Tip Editor, Grant 6500.

For the best exclusive news tip of the week $15.00 will be given, for the second best, $10.00 and for the next 25 best, $1.00 each.

Paroles Can Come Easy If You Want To Help Your Ma

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Looks as if Dillinger's men will now give themselves up if only to collect the rewards.

Life in jail ain't so long these days. But it's longer than life outside. And you can always get a parole to help your ma take down the summer awnings.

At first we thought the government had a new way of cleaning up the movies by shooting everybody who came out.

But Jack Lait told us it was Dillinger all right. He says the government can lower your face further than you can lift it.

The story of Dillinger went bigger in London than it did here. The English get the same thrill out of American bandits that we do out of European war. That's because the Atlantic Ocean is in between.

Mellon Seeks Passport For Trip to England

Andrew W. Mellon, banker and former Secretary of the United States Treasury, expects to sail for England within the next week if business affairs do not interfere with present plans.

Mr. Mellon visited the office of the Clerk of Federal Court, where he made application before Deputy Clerk Frances L. Smith, of the passport division, for a passport to England. Accompanied by his secretary, he reached the office just as it was being closed for the day.

For the purpose of identification Mr. Mellon offered the passport he used on trips abroad during his administration as head of the Treasury Department.

Mr. Mellon said his departure will depend entirely upon his business affairs here. Later, at his office, it was said the former Treasury head plans only a brief trip, expecting to stay about a week in England, making the voyage to escape the heat and to pay a visit with his daughter, Mrs. David Bruce, who is residing in England.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Job-Loser Peeved When She Dates Others

She has a boy friend who seems to be a JOB LOSER, or at least he doesn't get placed satisfactorily, and when he hasn't work he can't entertain her, and so the trouble runs.

She wants plenty of adventure, and takes up with other boys so that she can go places. Naturally the boy friend is peeved, and he tries the going-with-other girls stunt. But it doesn't bring any special results. He simply has to FORCE himself into such enjoyment.

Miss Brunot

The girl looks on, and reads between the lines, and all the while, whenever he is angry at her, she is blue and comes to the conclusion she loves him.

His mamma has poked her nose into the situation, and says her boy is good enough for any girl, and if she can't settle down and behave herself, laddie will cease gracing her front veranda, and permanently.

1934 LOVE PROBLEM

Altogether it is quite a 1934 love problem and MINNIE takes me into her confidence . . .

She and her boy friend LIVE ON THE SAME STREET, and of course their business has become everybody's affair . . .

He did something very nice, when she was sick in the hospital . . . Came to see her continually, and even though they had been on the OUTS before she was ill.

And the neighbors talk . . . talk . . . talk . . .

What shall poor MINNIE do? . . .

He has asked her to marry him, but she feels he will want a confession of all her love affairs, and she also fears she won't stand up under his honest GAFF. Not that she has done anything wicked . . . But then, he is one of those STRAIGHT-GOING FELLOWS . . .

PAST UNIMPORTANT

I cannot see, Minnie, that a complete confession will be good for your soul, neither will it be especially beneficial to his constitution. A man isn't as much interested in your past, as you imagine . . . It is only when this past bothers him, he is concerned . . . It even might be, that this boy wouldn't like you as well as he does if no other man cared for you . . . He is very kind-hearted and no doubt cares much for you, and as soon as he gets steady work if your heart still pit-ti-pats for him, promise to be his wife . . .

Neighbors and in love, this does cause plenty of trouble. People whom you know upon all sides are likely to have eyes even in the backs of their heads . . . If I were you, Minnie, I'd try very hard to win the regard of this fellow's mother . . . She appears to be a woman with influence, and I fear marrying her son wouldn't be any too pleasant if she is against you . . .

WANTS BIG MAN

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a tall, willowy type of girl, with very blonde hair, which I wear in curls all over my head. Everybody says I am stunning, yet it does seem I always attract little men. People tell me Josephine was tall, and that Napoleon was a little man. Yet this doesn't interest me. If I can't find a big he-man somewhere in Pittsburgh, one with whom I look well walking down the church aisle, I'd rather remain single.

Just now a small fellow visits me regularly. He is a lawyer, and smart as the dickens. And has a swell roadster and plenty of dough. He takes me around to the night clubs, and the movies, and I always feel so silly with him. He plays the piano, and I sing, and you can't see him at all for me. People all say we are such a sweet pair, because we both love music.

LOOKS FOOLISH

But even my love for music can't overcome the fact that we look like fools when we're out together. I simply couldn't go through life that way. Also I have found out big women when married to little men, always rule the roost. I was out one evening and there were two such people near me. The man didn't even pay the dinner check without letting his wife breeze through it to see if it was O. K. That nauseated me.

Please help me, and tell me why it is I always attract the little men, and me so big.

AMAZON.

Opposites attract, it is said. . . . Yet I quite agree with you, Amazon, that a very big woman feels silly when with a very small man. . . . You see it, though, every once in awhile, and very often the woman is totally wrapped up in her small parcel of a husband. . . . 'Tis said, fine possessions come in small packages. But the same can be said of poison.

TOO COMMANDING

Maybe you are too commanding . . . perhaps, like the Amazons of old, you sweep your way clean ahead of you. . . . Real he-men, as you desire to attract, like a woman who is feminine, one who depends upon them for protection. . . . Men don't like the bossy attitude . . . such as you saw enacted in the restaurant. Of course, some of them let such things happen, and for domestic peace. . . . Let I feel sure you wouldn't want this.

Why don't you make up your mind not to go with these little fellows, even though they do show you a good time . . . I am sure there is a physically big man waiting somewhere near for you . . . Of course, the truth is, Amazon, your heart has never been touched. Or size wouldn't count . . . There are many of the mentally big men of the world who have been physically small . . . Lord Nelson was, a peculiarly unattractive man so far as appearance was concerned . . . President Coolidge was a small man . . . Philander C. Knox, who was such an able Senator from Pennsylvania, was small. So is Will Hays, so is Eddie Cantor, so was the poet Keats.

You do not tell me your age. Yet I feel you are very young, or appearances would not be so vital . . . Remember sister, some of the greatest heart-breakers of all time have been little fellows . . . The great, tall man sometimes has a heart situated too far from his head for him to be an expert in handling sentimental situations.

FAY KING TOOK NAP ON OFFICE COUCH AND FORGOT HER ERRAND!

By FAY KING

Went up to see the boss about something important the other day, but he was out for lunch. His office looked so cool and nice, I threw my hat away, aimed the electric fan, stretched out on the big leather couch and had a fine nap.

Fortunately his secretary came back first, but she did not recognize me at once, for, like Herman the Ermine, my looks change summer and winter.

In winter my hair is straight as a string. In summer it is kinky, not from the heat, but because I keep it up in kiddie "coolers" every minute I can. Feels great.

When she woke me up, I had forgotten what I came to see the boss about, so I beat it before he got back.

WASH CLOTHES FOR THE SPORTSWOMAN

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE BACKBONE of summer is nowhere near broken yet, but most of us have worn the freshness off a sizable summer wardrobe already. This is the season of "mad dogs and Englishmen" weather all day long, which makes even the most resolute woman take a vow to wear nothing but tub clothes until first snowfall.

Merchants amiably choose just this time and mood to have real bargains in summer clothes, for they are beginning to clear the racks for advance autumn models. So the woman who feels like splurging for a whole fresh outfit can go into the marts of trade with $25, for instance, and walk out with from four to six snappy dresses in exchange for it.

SPORTSWOMEN will find many a cotton or rayon knit model in one or two pieces which will be comfortable and rather non-wrinkling for their active games. Women who go only so far as a croquet set or a pair of contract packs in search of sport should look up the hand-drawn handkerchief linen frocks which wrinkle, sure enough, after one wearing, but which can be rinsed out and ironed in less than half an hour any old time. They come in ravishing colors which create an illusion of coolness and freshness.

ODD COATS of colored or white linen and corduroy, cotton batik, cotton tweed or damask, and striped seersucker give an awfully smart appearance to very ordinary sports dresses, in free-swinging models.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By Josephine Culbertson

Planning the Play

In playing a hand at a suit declaration one of the most common problems confronting the Declarer is whether to use a cross-ruff or to establish a side suit. Assuming the final contract is four of a major suit, the cross-ruff is the proper line of play if 10 winning tricks seem reasonably assured by it. If 10 tricks are not in sight, some alternative line of play, usually involving the establishment of long-card tricks in a side suit, is necessary.

Today's hand, which at first glance seems one which should be played for a simple cross-ruff, is actually one in which the proper play consists of the establishment of a side suit.

North, Dealer.

	♠ 8 5 4 ♡ A K J ◇ A J 10 5 4 ♣ A 9
♠ K Q 10 9 ♡ 10 8 ◇ K 8 6 ♣ Q 8 6 5	West / North / East / South	♠ J 2 ♡ 9 7 6 ◇ Q 7 3 2 ♣ K J 7 4
	♠ A 7 6 3 ♡ Q 5 4 3 2 ◇ 9 ♣ 10 3 2

The bidding:

North	South
1 ◇	1 ♡
3 ♡	4 ♡
Pass

There is nothing which can be criticized in the above bidding except that South was perhaps a shade optimistic.

West's opening lead was the spade King, and after Dummy played low, East dropped his Jack and South held up his Ace. West continued with the spade Queen and South won this second trick. South realized that his contract could be fulfilled by giving up a club and ruffing the third club in Dummy if the trumps broke three and two and if the 13th spade could be established. However, from the play to the first two tricks South knew that the spades would not break and he immediately saw that if he attempted to ruff the 13th spade in Dummy as well as a club, two of Dummy's high trumps would have to be used and either the Nine or the Ten in one of the opponents' hands would be set up for their fourth trick.

South decided, therefore, that his only hope of fulfilling the contract lay in his ability to set up one or more diamond tricks in Dummy for the necessary discards. Obviously, to set up the diamond suit it must be played immediately and at Trick Two South led the diamond Nine, won with Dummy's Ace and ruffed a low diamond in his own hand. He re-entered the Dummy by the play of a trump and ruffed another diamond with another low heart. The Dummy was again entered with a second round of trumps and another diamond led and ruffed, this time with the Queen. South, of course, had no more trumps left and led a club to the Dummy's Ace. The last trump was now drawn and the good diamond cashed. The opponents were conceded a spade and a club trick at the finish, but the contract was fulfilled.

It is easily seen that South could not have fulfilled his contract without setting up a diamond trick and that in order to do this the suit had to be tackled early in the play. It is most important for the Declarer to plan his play at the very start of a hand, and not plunge blindly in, only to wake up after it is too late.

Given in Marriage :: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Father Takes Charge

I had no time to dwell upon the surprise which the sight of Harriet Braithwaite in a nurse's uniform gave me, or to speculate upon the intriguing question as to where and when she had received the professional training, the signs of which were so unmistakable about her.

For behind me there sounded the measured tread which marks the stretcher-bearer, and I knew that my father, now in command of the situation, had seen to it that Hugh was lifted from the car to the stretcher which Katherine's foresight long ago had added to our sick room equipment.

ENCE EXPLAINED

My mother-in-law's absence was explained to me by Lillian, under her breath, as we stood together watching the transfer of Hugh, under Dr. Braithwaite's direction, from the stretcher to the table.

"Mother Graham always comes to bat in a crisis," she said. "I knew that her darling melodrama-loving soul was wild to be down here in the midst of all the excitement, but when Katie came dashing in she said to me, 'You'll be of more use down here than I will, and I wouldn't trust anybody else to stay with Faith for more than five minutes at a time. So I shall take care of my granddaughter. But send my grandsons to me, immediately they return.'"

"I can imagine Junior and Roderick are in for a bad quarter of an hour," I replied in the same noiseless fashion. "Did she worry much over them?"

"She didn't get a chance to worry," Lillian said. "She didn't come downstairs until just before Katie appeared, so the news of the boys' disappearance reached her at the same moment as the news of their being found.

"But wasn't our Katie the feminine Paul Revere, though? The way she dashed from here to The Larches and back again, rounding everybody up and putting them on the job, would have made the famous silversmith look to his laurels, even if history hadn't debunked his ride. But aren't some of these men supposed to beat it back to the woods after some Chinese?"

"Yes," I murmured back, "but I can do nothing until I can get hold of my father."

"You can get hold of him in a minute or two, I fancy," Lillian said. "The great Dr. Braithwaite is getting into action."

The surgeon, having directed the removal of Hugh's upper clothing, was bending over the wound.

"Everybody out except two men to help later in getting him into bed. Mrs. Braithwaite and I can attend to everything."

Lillian crossed the room swiftly and said something to my father which was inaudible to the rest of us. He in turn spoke to Dr. Braithwaite, but in tones which, while low, were distinctly audible to Lillian and me. I guessed that he did not wish to use the "noiseless speech" with Dr. Braithwaite, who was not used to it.

CALLS MEN IN

"There is urgent need for the younger men—and for me—elsewhere just now," he said. "I will explain later when there is more time. But if we leave you Mr. Veritzen, Mr. Brixton and Jim—"

"More than enough," Dr. Braithwaite said brusquely, and my father turned quickly away. Lillian and I followed him to the door and heard him ask Philip Veritzen, Samuel Brixton and Jim to come into the room.

"Surest thing you know," Samuel Brixton said.

Philip Veritzen followed him, stopping only to say to my father: "Take Otto and the car if you need them."

"Thank you," my father replied. And then there came a sound from within which halted me as if I had been struck by a bullet, the voice of Hugh calling, "Margaret! Where has she gone?"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Response to Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please let me know whether the response to an invitation to a reception following a wedding should be addressed to the bride or to the parents of the bride, from whom the invitation to the ceremony has been received?

Any suggestions as to how this response should be worded will be very much appreciated.

Our response to the reception invitation should be addressed to the parents of the bride, since they are the ones who send out the invitations and who are therefore the hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wells
Mr. and Mrs. (Bride's Parents)'s kind invitation for Tuesday, the first of August at five o'clock

Write the acknowledgment on the first page of double-sheeted letter paper, and space it as nearly as possible as the lines of the invitation are spaced.

Names

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

On Sunday my cousin said, "Let's think of the name we each like best." I selected Louise, my other cousins selected Ruth, Alice, Peggy Ann and other names. Then the lady who works for my cousin said she liked the name Carol . . . which is my name . . . and that she liked me, too. Will you kindly tell me what I should have said to her?

TEN-YEAR-OLD READER.

Welcome again to my column . . . I recognized your handwriting and name, and was delighted to hear from my young reader again . . . and such a young and charming reader!

When people say such delightful things as this friend said to you, we may say something like this in respone: "Thank you so much. I'm so glad that you like my name, and I'm so proud that you like me!", or "Aren't you kind to me! I'm so delighted that you like my name, and I'm so happy that you like me, "Miss Allen."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

This season's fashions were plucked from a period when women wore corsets that were corsets with a vengeance when every one of them made it a point to cultivate a queenly carriage. Rhythmic dancing is the perfect means of acquiring grace. That is the solution of a vexing problem.

Let all the fibers of the face relax when putting on complexion powder. If that practice isn't followed, the application will be spotty. Don't grind it in with the powder pad. Put it on lightly, don't use very much, go over the skin surface with a camel's hair brush to fluff off surplus calcimine.

During the reducing agony is the time to indulge in facial treatments. If something isn't done when the digestive organs are deprived of tissue-making elements, lines are likely to form.

Use oily cosmetics generously, tapping them in with quick slaps. Be careful not to push the flesh up into folds under the eyes. Use cold water freely.

Blood is the only thing that can feed impoverished facial tissues and fibers that have gone slack. That is why the faded complexion blooms again under the influence of massage.

Creamy cosmetics make the skin surface smooth and of better texture, but they won't avail much in a war against wrinkles unless they are applied with plenty of friction.

Apply them to a warm skin surface, which means that the warm facial tubbing must precede the treatment. Follow after with an ironing with an ice cube.

Be kind to your lungs. When they get their fill of fresh air, the complexion is toned, tinted and benefited. Don't hold the body in a wretched, shoulder-forward pose that cramps the lungs and interferes with development of the chest cavity. When awakening in the morning, take 25 deep inhalations. Do the same exercise before going to sleep. Drink in ozone when walking. Walk briskly; a brisk walk washes out the lung cells.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Swollen Ankles

Not so long ago the term "dropsy" was frequently used to describe certain ailments of the body. It was a common complication of Bright's disease or severe disturbances of the heart and blood vessels. Today we seldom use the word. This is due largely to the decrease in the number of cases of Bright's disease.

Dr. Copeland

Dropsy means an excessive accumulation of water in the tissues of the body. This accumulation of fluid results from the inability of the kidneys to secrete or dispose of waste water. The fluid may collect anywhere in the body, but as a rule it begins in the lower extremities. Swelling of the ankles and feet are first noticed. When this occurs investigate carefully to find the cause.

Dropsy is not always the result of Bright's disease. It may occur in such disturbances as organic heart disease, cirrhosis of the liver and severe anemia. Often it can be traced to some obstruction of the blood or lymph vessels in the pelvic region. It may be the result of a tumor or a cancerous growth.

Dropsy is not a disease. It is a sign of some disturbances in the regular body functions. At first appearance every effort should be made to determine the underlying cause. When recognized in the early stages and the necessary measures are taken, serious complications may be prevented and a speedy cure effected.

I am confident that if each of us made a practice of having periodic urine examinations, a great many disorders of the kidneys would be recognized before they have a chance to become chronic. I strongly recommend that everyone have a urinalysis made at least twice a year. Talk with your own physician about the report.

Diet is important in the treatment of dropsy. When due to nephritis or inflammation of the kidney, the diet must be carefully prescribed by the attending physician. In most instances the diet should be simple. Foods rich in salt and other irritating substances must be avoided.

If you have any symptons of dropsy have a thorough physical examination. Then is the time to follow the doctor's advice implicitly. You will be rewarded by restored good health.

In Mayfair
--With-- Patricia Pitt

December, as usual, is to be the most popular time for deb entertaining, it appears. The few dates which have been taken for debutantes this coming season are, so far, all in December.

Eleanor Merrick's parents, the Frederic Ickes Merricks, have reserved December 1 as the date for a tea they'll give in their home to present their daughter.

MISS HELEN ROBINSON

And they've taken December 22, too, when they plan to give a dinner-dance at Fox Chapel Golf Club for Eleanor.

The John E. Nelsons have pre-empted December 27 as the date for the debut tea they'll give at home for their daughter, Peggy Nelson.

The Harold P. Hobarts have already announced December 28, will be the date of the dance they'll give at the Pittsburgh Golf Club to present their daughter, Agnes.

Constance Cabell Hillman, the James Frazer Hillmans' daughter, won't be a debutante this year. Instead she'll study abroad this coming winter, her mother tells me.

* * *

Barbara Weir, of Woodbury, N. J., who has been visiting Mrs. Charles Murray at the home of Mrs. Murray's parents, the J. Reuben Roses, of Edgeworth, will be an autumn bride.

She has named September 15 as the date for her marriage to John Clark Dean, Jr., son of Mrs. John Clark Dean and the late Rev. Mr. Dean, of Bethlehem, Pa.

The wedding's to take place that afternoon in Christ Church in Woodbury, N. J. Barbara left today to join her mother, Mrs. Herbert Lloyd Weir, of Woodbury. They'll motor home together.

The Hallock Campbell Sherrards, of St. James terrace, announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne Barnard Sherrard, to Laurence Clark Hicks, son of the S. Nelson Hickses, of Denver, Col.

Anne attended Wellesle College and Simmons College her fiance is a graduate of Williams College and of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

* * *

Helen Robinson, tall, slender daughter of the Ovid D. Robinsons, of Coraopolis Heights, is in Cleveland, or to be more exact, Euclid, O., where her family has its summer home.

From Cleveland she'll go to Erie, where on Tuesday, the final day of July, she'll be a bridesmaid at the wedding of her Vassar and Baldwin School roommate, Remle Hess, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Elmer Hess, of Erie.

Remle, who is named after her father (Elmer spelled backwards), will marry Ensign Phillip W. Cann, United States Navy, the son of Mrs. H. S. Cann, of Auburn, Me.

Walter McCloys On Way Here

The Walter L. McCloys, of Columbus, O., are expected to arrive today to be the guests of Mrs. McCloy's brother-in-law and sisters, the W. A. Forresters, of Wood street, Wilkinsburg, for the remainder of the week.

The Forresters' daughter Jane is expected home next week from Cape Cod, where she has spent the month as the houseguest of Natalie Eddy.

* * *

* * *

Ahmic Lake, Ontario, Canada, will attract another group of Pittsburgh colonists this week—James Lippincott, of Beaver road, Sewickley, and his daughters—they have a summer home at Ahmic Lake.

The daughters are Adele, Mariana, Constance, who is always called Nancy, and Louise Lippincott.

The Don Roses, of Sewickley, have a summer place at Ahmic Lake, too, and always entertain house parties throughout the summer.

Elizabeth Macfarlane Returns Home

Elizabeth Macfarlane has just returned from a visit with Eleanor Grier and her sister, Mrs. Arthur R. Little, at their cottage on Lake Erie, near Geneva.

Judge and Mrs. James R. Macfarlane, their father and mother, motored there and brought Elizabeth home.

They all spent Sunday at Rider Tavern, at Painesville, said to be the oldest inn in Ohio, which has been restored by Miss Corinne Adams, formerly of Carnegie Tech, and Miss Marie Kolcach. And the inn is now furnished in antique furniture—which is not for sale!

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas McC. Mabon are sailing for a Baltic cruise on the Swedish liner Gritsholm. They'll be gone a month, will visit Stockholm, Copenhagen, Leningrad, Moscow and Helsingfors.

Solo Dances Scheduled For Party

Announcement has been made by the social committee of the Pen and Hammer that a lawn party will be held Friday night at 5511 Phillips avenue, Squirrel Hill. The program of entertainment will be given outdoors.

Solo interpretative dances will be presented by Miss Belle Schwartz, accompanied on the violin by Miss Helen Schaefer. There will be vocal solos by Miss Lea Weisman and several satirical recitations will be made by Martin Frank and Miss Ruth Selwyn.

Indoors there will be dancing, games and supper.

* * *

Mrs. Joseph Leonardi and her daughters, Miss Josephine and Miss Clara Leonardi, of Homewood avenue, are spending the summer at Cambridge, Mass., where they are the guests of Mrs. Ferdinand Sesti, another daughter of Mrs. Leonardi.

Pittsburghers Vacationing At Shore

Pittsburgh guests at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, are Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Petty, of Moorhead place; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Watt, Summerlea street; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Warfel, South Linden avenue; Miss Dorothy Fletcher, Charles G. Knorr and James G. Wyman, of Marshall avenue, North Side; Mrs. B. McFall, of Parker street; Mr. and Mrs. Anas L. Scott, Thomas boulevard; Miss Nellie J. Jones, Cherokee street, and F. S. Zeigler, of Bartlett street.

Choral to Entertain At Aliquippa Meet

At 8 o'clock tonight the Junior Woman's Club of Aliquippa will meet in the parish house of All Saints' Episcopal Church, and will have a special entertainment feature.

The Junior Woman's Choral Club, under the direction of Mrs. Walter McWilliams, music chairman, will make its first public appearance. The members will sing "Summer Is Here," "The Rosary," "Kentucky Babe" and "When My Mother Sings."

The guest speaker of the evening is to be Mrs. C. C. Taylor, of Dormont, who is associated with the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind. She will talk about the blind.

Tonight's meeting will be the only open meeting during the current club year. Members of other organizations and friends are asked to come.

Hostesses for the evening will be members of the publicity committee of which Mrs. Reginald Lamb is chairman.

Ball to Show Old Styles Modernized

Plans for a unique event uniting fashion, art and society ensembles were disclosed today by the committee for the Green Ball in aid of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York on October 25. Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the infirmary, is honorary chairman of the ball committee.

The fashion theme of the ball will be developed by selecting masterpieces of art, bringing them to life in tableaux posed by society women and showing modern costumes designed from the inspiration of these paintings. This will give the opportunity to display American textile genius in the rich fabrics used in reproducing the masterpieces of art, and, in a different tempo, the modern fashions developed from them. It will also a most interesting demonstration of how the genius of the designer can take the inspiration of beauty of all times and give it expression in the modern spirit.

Green has been chosen as the motif for the ball, according to the committee, on account of its position as the fashionable color for fall, and also because of the symbolism of green as the color of hope, of victory and of plenty.

Rhea Tenenbaum July 4 Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tenenbaum, of Wilkins avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Rhea Tenenbaum, to Edward Tagrin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tagrin, of Rockford, Ill., which took place July 4.

Eleanor Thompson In Metropolis

Mrs. Eleanor Thompson, of Bartlett street, has been at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, as so had Miss Helen Jackson.

Ho hum! . . . said we, with a long stretch! The days are very dull. Everyone's away that can get away! The stores are sorta marking time until their new items sprout out for fall! Everything there IS left, being pretty well picked over . . it's, oh well!

So that we just thought we'd rush the season a bit! That we'd steal a march on you all! So that when you DO start out hunting fall things with a lean and hungry look on your little physiog—, you'll know what to look for!

Pen points being one of the newest bits of handwriting on fashionable walls! We backed a buyer into a corner, and by dint of fixing her with an eagle-eyed stare, got the news! We're going to go literary in a big way! Wearing pen point clips all down the front of blouses, jackets and frocks as the know-it-alls prophesy we will this fall! Maybe we'll "slinga-da-ink" as well. Who knows! Anyway . . . these overgrown ones are too amusing to use as fastenings! Gold or silver metal.

* * *

Forecasting further — we hear that . . .

Bridge-set-buttons are another couple that have moved into the Fall fashion community! The heart, the diamond, the club and the spade are all lined up ready and waiting for "dealer's choice," if not your own! Of metal also (lots of metal, by the way).

* * *

Skirts (both separate and in frocks) are split up one side, or both sides for daytime wear. And the front for evening. Up from the bottoms . . . down from the top . . . seems to be the idea for evening wear. Grand! . . . supposing they meet! Anyway . . . we're glad to hear about the splits in the daytime stride. So will you, if yours is as long as ours!

* * *

Cellophane! How many rumors have been laid at its door! Most of them are panning out too . . . such as the one about cellophane being used as trimming! It is!

Not longer than three days ago we were in the office of one of the more important store people in town . . . and what was the first thing we saw—cellophane, lying on the desk!

For neckwear . . . for dress trimming (called "bedlington," after the English spaniels by that name with their long strings of hair flopping about!) . . . in fabrics!

This last being entirely new! There is a cellophane fabric out for Fall that seems to be a cross between boucle, and angelskin . . . a woven fabric that is wonderfully suited to use with satin. It is being used a great deal with a sort of embossed stripe in gold, silver, and green!

* * *

Large ladies, skip a step or two . . . we mean, REALLY skip! The news that larger women's styles are nicer than in years should uplift your soul after the stodgy years of nothing-but-surplice-coat-dresses and such! We have it on good authority that the wholesale houses (the really worthwhile ones) are showing more really swank and variegated styles for larger women than in many seasons!

* * *

As for shoes! Green suedes are back in the ranks! The tie and the opera are the smartest styles . . . all shoes wear a great amount of stitching, perforation, tucked and draped trimmings! They're following out the lines of the new clothes with an almost "dressmaker" touch! The Continental heel is still the most popular . . . the cut still high . . . and the effect of the vamp continues to shorten the foot a trifle!

And as a parting whisper . . . we have a tip that before very long shoes will be wearing bits of metal trimming, as the dresses are!

* * *

After which eyefuls, we shelve our spyglass for the day!

—DOROTHY RANDALL.

Stockmans At Home in Swissvale

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Stockman, Jr., are at home in Braddock avenue, Swissvale. They returned from their honeymoon, a motor trip through the east, stopping at Atlantic City and Philadelphia, on July 1.

Before her wedding on June 21, Mrs. Stockman was Miss Thora Margaret Toole, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Thomas B. Toole, of Braddock avenue, Swissvale. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stockman, of Braddock avenue, Swissvale, took place in the Swissvale Methodist Episcopal Church with the pastor, the Rev. Paul Lindberg, officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white organza with a large white hat and carried white gladioli and roses. Miss Margaret Cushion was her maid of honor and wore embroidered yellow organza with a matching hat and carried yellow gladioli, marguerites and tea roses. Howard Stockman was best man for his brother. The bride's mother wore white crepe with orange accessories and the bridegroom's mother chose yellow crepe with white accessories.

The breakfast in the Stockman home was for the families and there was a reception later. The bridegroom attended Carnegie Tech.

DEBT REMOVAL NECESSARY TO AID NATION

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

PETERSBORO, N. H., July 25.—Some of us used to talk a good deal about the so-called "vicious circle of deflation." We do not hear anything about it now, and I wonder if this is not because we have entered the "vicious circle of inflation."

The argument was that as prices fall and business slumps, men are either forced to sell out or voluntarily wait for further declines. Thus some claimed that the worse business got, the worse it would get. These pessimists saw no end but disaster and chaos.

But in this sort of argument not much more applicable to the present condition? On all hands, we now hear renewed complaints of "lack of confidence." Business is hesitating, after the petering out of the spring spurt. So before long we will hear renewed demands for "doing something" to stimulate it.

Most certainly, the inflationists will redouble their demands for "devaluation," "remonetization of silver," "note issues," or some other form of "putting more money in circulation." Then, if they have their way, there will be another spurt of speculative buying.

CONFIDENCE DESTROYED

But each resort to such unsound methods of stimulation weakens the basis for good business and tends to destroy confidence. As soon as the first effects wear off, business relapses.

The underlying condition of debt and misdirection of the nation's labor becomes more and more evident; and one result is that it takes bigger shots of spending or inflation to have any effect.

Just think back over the past year and a half. First, we had a pretty wild boom on merely going off gold and the fear of inflation. Then we had a gentler one when we had CWA spending and "the 59-cent dollar," but now business recedes and stocks sell off when we are in the midst of a 10 billion spending program and excess bank credit has been piled mountain high.

This well illustrates how the vicious circle of inflation works, and why it is always impossible to stop it without a crash. The less confidence we have, the more some of us demand a stimulant. But the more the stimulants administered, the less confidence most of us have.

Under such circumstances it is always futile to urge people to spend. The latest form of the "buy now" attempt to produce a substitute for confidence is the government's scheme to induce people to do things to their houses.

One would think that we were children playing some sort of a game!

NATION'S CREDIT RISKED

The sad part about it is that not only is our artificial building of roofs without foundations bound to collapse, but that in the meantime the government is ruining the nation's credit and robbing its thrifty citizens.

What has the government to lend and spend? The only source of taxes lies in those who have money. The more you take away from them, the less they will have left to spend, and the more you will destroy confidence among the foresighted and thrifty.

Government credit is the nation's credit—and you and I are the nation. What right has any temporary political administration to plunge us into a continuing deficit and a $34,000,000,000 debt for planting trees, curtailing production, and gambling on all sorts of doubtful "reforms" at the very time when we can least afford it?

We want food and clothes for the needy, and we want business recovery so that there will be fewer needy.

Debts and overspending put us where we are, not more debts and spending, but only settlement of debts, and thrift, will get us out.

Let's have less talk about confidence and more deeds which will furnish a basis for confidence. Which is better, bath tubs and bureaucracy, or building and business?

'MOTORS' SHARE PROFITS CUT

NEW YORK, July 25.—(AP.)—General Motors Corporation today reported earnings for the second quarter of this year slightly under the similar period of 1933, although sales were substantially larger, indicating lowered profit margin.

Net earnings applicable for the common stock for three months, ended June 30, last, amounted to 88 cents per common share on the average number of shares outstanding, compared with 90 cents in the second quarter of last year.

For the first half of 1934, however, earnings amounted to $1.51 a share, against $1.01 a share in the first six months of 1933, which reflected the slim first quarter of 1933. net earnings available for dividends for the second quarter of this year, including equities in undivided profits or losses of subsidiary companies not consolidated, amounted to $40,267,090, compared with $41,118,169 for the second quarter of 1933.

For the first six months of 1934, net earnings available for dividends amounted to $69,586,613, compared with $48,068,176 in the first half of last year.

Net sales, exclusive of the interdivisional transactions, for the second quarter of this year amounted to $303,407,073, a striking gain over the $191,954,311 in the same period of last year. For the first half, net sales were $508,531,153, compared with $311,954,474.

STOCK PRICES CONTINUE HEAVY

NEW YORK, July 25.—Most financial markets continued to grope through hazy weather today and trends were generally indecisive.

Stocks rallied mildly after the opening, then encountered more offerings, which unsettled the list and pushed numerous issues to new lows for the year. Active selling did not last long, however, and various leaders again displayed resistance. The price pattern was exceptionally spotty throughout, some noticeably soft issues offsetting the firmness of others.

Commodities were none too enthusiastic at the start, although grains recovered 1 to 2 cents a bushel later and cotton improved moderately. The likelihood of cooler weather and showers seemed to restrain early buying fervor in these staples. Rubber and silver were quiet. Bonds were irregular. Foreign exchanges held to a slim groove.

CASE RALLIES

Shares of J. I. Case got back more than 2 points of its yesterday's 5-point decline. Others, up fractionally to around a point or so, included Sterling Products, Consolidated Gas, United Aircraft, Chrysler, du Pont, California Packing, Bethlehem Steel, Douglas Aircraft, American Smelting, United States Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Sears Roebuck, American Sugar Refining and Westinghouse. Such issues as American Telephone, Allied Chemical, American Commercial Alcohol, New York Central and General Motors were about unchanged.

Union Pacific dropped 2 points and Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio sagged. Santa Fe improved. Aside from American Sugar, members of this group were rather heavy. American Beet Sugar preferred lost 5 points, while South Puerto Rico, Great Western and Cuban American Sugar were down a point or more. International Telephone, Western Union, General Motors and Sears Roebuck reached new 1934 bottoms before recovering.

CALL FOR MARGIN

One of the principal factors contributing to the early nervousness of the list was the liquidation of numerous thinly margined accounts. Overnight calls on customers to fatten their balances were said by stock exchange firms to have met with a fairly good response. Many discouraged traders, however, seeing only heavy clouds on the horizon, refused to advance more margin and, consequently, were sold out after the first hour.

During the past several days it was understood that brokerage houses had sent out the largest number of margin calls for any like period in more than a year. As in most sharply declining markets, it was reported that small speculators had been hit the heaviest because of their inability to advance more money or collateral to strengthen their accounts.

Many commentators were disposed to view the recent action of the equities market as "extremely disappointing," although expecting intermediate rallies to bolster sentiment if brighter trade news appears. In some quarters it was felt that the uninspiring character of outside news influences may have given the impression of impending adverse developments not yet foreseen.

Just what effect the rather gloomy dispatches from Austria may have had on stocks was debatable. At leaast, financial observers pointed out, the political unsettlement on the continent did not provoke any undue optimism.

GRAIN PRICES ADVANCE

CHICAGO, July 25.—Grain prices showed an early upward trend today after an irregular start. Unexpected firmness of the Liverpool wheat market, together with bullish crop reports from Canada, had a stimulating effect. Opening ¼ off to ⅜ up, September, new, 97⅞-98⅛. Chicago wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started at ¼-1⅛ gain, September, 65-65¾, and held near the initial limits.

RFC Plans to Sell Railroad Securities

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The sales of around $80,000,000 of railroad securities, including equipment trust shares and 4 per cent secured notes, is planned by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and Public Works Administration coincident with the marketing of municipal bonds now in contemplation.

The railroad securities are included in the $150,000,000 of securities which the RFC plans to market for the PWA. Proceeds of the sales would be turned into the Public Works revolving fund and thereby become available for relending.

Socony Reduces 'Gas' at Albany

ALBANY, N. Y., July 25.—The Standard Oil Company, Inc of New York has reduced gasoline prices at service station and tank wagon 1-2c a gallon here. The price was advanced 1 cent last week.

WOOD, SHIELDS PUT U. S. IN CUP CHALLENGE ROUND

JAM[illegible] J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

The feebleness of the present Pirate resistance, if any, was made painfully apparent yesterday, when the ninth straight defeat of the Pittsburgh club, and the sixteenth reverse in the last 20 games, took the form of a four-hit shutout at the hands of Sylvester Johnson. That 34-year-old right-hander was a good pitcher in his day, but for several seasons he has been merely a relief man. He has not been able to go the distance against any other team in two years. Until the sinking Bucs offered an inviting soft spot yesterday, Johnson had not been allowed even to start a game this season, and he had not pitched a complete contest since 1932, when he was with the Cardinals. Beating Pittsburgh these days seemingly is an easy assignment for any flinger.

Sylvester Johnson

In their first 77 games this year, the Pirates were shutout only once, a 1-to-0 decision for Carl Hubbell over Ralph Birkofer. In their last nine games they were shutout twice. That may happen to any club at any time, of course, but in this case it shapes up as additional evidence that the Rovers are not fighting as of old, and are not showing the spirit you would expect to find on one of the highest-salaried teams in the league. Even the strategy is affected. Yesterday, for instance, Pitcher Leon Chagnon was allowed to bat, instead of being lifted for a pinch-hitter, in the eighth inning with one out and a runner on second base. Even though the score was 9 to 0 at the time, that's hardly to be viewed as a good way of promoting a rally or of playing out the string.

BUSH NEVER IDLE BETWEEN MOUND JOBS

Some other star pitchers may think that they are doing enough in merely going to the mound and hurling a game about every fourth day, but Guy Bush, of the Cubs, is not constructed that way. Bush does, and has been doing through the years, plenty for his club, as attested by the fact that he is a big winner each season and is the only flinger in the National League who can show more victories than defeats in competition with every other club in the loop. But he does not confine his work to his slab engagements.

The Mississippi Mudcat, who has been out for a week with an infected ear, ordinarily is one of the busiest players in the majors. He is never idle from the time he dons a uniform until he reaches the showers after each game. Between pitching days, Guy hits fungoes in fielding practice, takes a workout at second base, sneaks into the batting drills, and limbers up in the bullpen. While a game is in progress he is mentally busy. He figures how he would pitch to each enemy hitter if he were in the box, and he even figures how he would pitch to the star hitters of his own club under various conditions.

RAJAH MEASURES STARS BY THEIR SPIRIT

It takes more than a reputation and a big batting average to convince Rogers Hornsby that a player listed as a star is as great as he is rated. The manager of the Browns looks below the surface. He measures the value of pastimers by their spirit. Recently one of a group of baseball men expressed the opinion that a certain famous player was the greatest in the American League. Hornsby refused to agree, saying that he would not have the man on his club, even as a gift. The Rajah recalled an instance in which he had seen the player in question jogging down to first base on a grounder and carrying his bat along with him.

Rogers Hornsby

To Hornsby that was a tip-off that the star is not a good man to have on a ball club. Rogers holds that players of that type ruin youngsters by giving them a bad example. The natural reaction of the rookies, he thinks, is that they are not expected to run out grounders unless they feel like it. The trouble with baseball, as Hornsby sees it, is that there are too many players who don't hustle, and he remarks that the star players certainly are being paid enough money to sprint to first base a few times a game.

MECHANICAL TIMING ONLY ACCURATE KIND

Track men still are discussing the debated close finishes and timing disputes in some of the big meets of the year. Without the electrical timing device, nobody has been able to check on the accuracy or fallibility of hand timing. Sometimes the latter is not bad. In many races where both hand and electrical timing were used, the hand timing was remarkably accurate. One notable exception cropped out in a low hurdle race, where the hand-timers caught 22.7 seconds and the electrical timer showed 23.16 seconds.

That was the first time electrical timing ever had been used on a 220-yard straightaway, and it suggests the possibility that the timers have been wrong in most of the 220-yard straightaway dashes ever recorded by hand. It's the same with the judging. The only time when picking winners in close finishes isn't largely guesswork is when a moving picture camera is used. One answer offered to the whole business is that the only absolutely infallible judging is done by the camera, and the only exactly accurate timing is done by the camera's electrically-operated timing attachment.

HUBBARD QUITS PLAYING FOR COACHING

If Cal Hubbard, giant tackle, sticks to his present plans, you won't see him playing against Pittsburgh's professional football team at Forbes Field next fall. The former Geneva star says he is going to give up playing on pro gridirons to take a job as a coach. His decision will cause no weeping by Luby Di Meolo or other coaches. Cal is one guy they'll all be glad to see out of the opposing lineups. He was a source of worry to the mentor of every club that had to go up against him during the season.

Luby Di Meolo

'Hubbard, incidentally, was the victim of a strange accident recently while on his summer job as a baseball umpire. He became one of the few umps ever to be spiked in a play. It happened in a night game in the International League. During a lull in the proceedings a player tried to steal home. He caught everybody napping, including Hubbard, who had called time and was dusting off the plate at the moment. Cal was severely spiked in the left foot. That's only one of the odd things that can happen in night games. One contest was called recently on account of darkness. The lighting system went blooey. And Buck Herzog reports the spectacle of a relief pitcher warming up at midnight.

RAIN PREVENTS PIRATE-PHIL CONTEST

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.—Rain and wet grounds today caused a postponement of the game scheduled between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Phillies. The last contest of the series will be staged tomorrow afternoon, after which the Buccos will return to Pittsburgh, where on Friday they will open a three-game series with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Pie Traynor hobbled into Baker Bowl with his bad foot and sinus trouble yesterday in an effort to stem the tide of defeat which has overwhelmed the Buccos on the present Eastern invasion. But Pie's presence under stress failed to inspire his men and the Buccos were given a severe trimming by the Quakers. The score was 9-0.

Sylvester Johnson had too much stuff to show the hapless Pirates. They failed to get a runner as far as third base. Meantime, the home hitters pecked away merrily at Red Lucas, Ralph Birkofer and Leon Chagnon. Allen's triples with the bases loaded was a feature of the Philly victory.

The one-sided setback suffered by the Buccos sent their card of consecutive defeats to nine. They dropped into fifth place as a result of their latest reverse.

Walton, Former Pitt Grid Star, Married

Announcement of the marriage of Frank (Tiger) Walton, star tackle on the University of Pittsburgh varsity football team last year to the former Miss Ida Hendrickson, of Beaver Falls, was made today. The former grid star was married April 18, the young couple keeping it a secret until Walton completed his college course.

Walton, rated as one of the outstanding tackles in the nation a year ago and a member of the All-Eastern eleven, has signed to play professional football with the Boston Redskins of the National Professional Football League. The couple are making their home in Beaver Falls at present.

Boxer Wins, Loses In 'Doubleheader'

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—(INS.)—Oscar Rankins, a Los Angeles Negro heavyweight, saved the show at the Olympic Club last night.

After Tom Patrick, heavyweight, had taken a "runout" on Hank Hankinson, of San Diego, Rankins offered to fight two men.

He knocked out Manual Victoria in one round and then lost a six-round decision to Leo Kelly.

ENTRIES NEAR CLOSE

Entries close Saturday with John T. Taylor, chairman of the A. M. A. swimming committee, for both diving and swimming championship meets to be held at the South Park pool August 4 and 11 under the auspices of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the Amateur Athletic Union.

MEMORY TEST

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions?

1—Who was the Pirate pitcher who won an average of more than 20 games a season for eight consecutive years?

2—Who is the former Pirate who led the American League in hitting doubles last year?

3—Name three American League infield stars who jumped from college teams to make the grade in the big show.

4—In which season was Paul Waner named the most valuable player in the National League?

5—Name the former Pirate who is a sensation in the American League this season.

O'FARRELL MAY LOSE JOB

CINCINNATI, July 25.—(AP.)—A change in the management of the Cincinnati Reds possibly before the Reds start their next home series with Chicago next Saturday, has been forecast by the Enquirer.

It is reasonably assured that Bob O'Farrell will be succeeded as manager by Charley Dressen, according to the paper. Dressen, former third sacker with the Cincinnati club, for the last two years has been manager of the Nashville club of the Southern Association.

COMBS IS OUT FOR SEASON

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—(AP.)—Earl Combs, veteran outfielder, will be lost to the New York Club for the remainder of the season as the result of injuries sustained in yesterday's game with the St. Louis Browns, it was announced today.

Combs, who suffered a skull fracture and a broken collarbone when he crashed into the left field stand while leaping to catch a fly ball, was in a serious condition at a hospital here. His physician, Dr. Robert F. Hyland, today said his condition was satisfactory and "showed improvement after a restful night."

With Combs out of the game, Babe Ruth is expected to return to the lineup, alternating in left field with Myrl Hoag, who replaced the injured Combs yesterday. Ruth has been out a week with a leg injury.

Edgeworth Club Cards Tourney

The Edgeworth Club will stage its first invitation men's doubles tennis tournament in history next week, according to announcement from Chairman Charles A. Woods, Jr., today. The event will get under way on Wednesday, August 1, and will be concluded, unless bad weather interferes, on Sunday, August 5. The five clay courts of the club will be the site of hostilities. Robert Applegate and Frank R. Stoner, Jr., will assist in handling the conclave.

Paddle Tennis Star

MISS EDITH FANZO . . . . . IN TOURNAMENT PLAY.

Miss Fanzo, 19, is one of the survivors in the paddle tennis tournament being played at the Larimer Avenue Playgrounds. She is also a good basketball player for the Kingsley House. Jeannette Ditolla, Goldenson Vanities basketball star, is the recreation director at the Larimer playgrounds and a strong booster of the paddle tennis game. Missing Mushball Mug Bobs Up With Owner

Replay Ordered And Must Be On Level

By JOHNATHON J. JOHNATHON
Mystery Story Editor

The fate of the Davis Cup hung in the balance today, but it was as nothing compared with the fate of the Max Unger Cup, put up as a trophy for the mushball game bteween the teams of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the Pittsburgh Press at the Baseball Writers' picnic last Sunday.

The cup, which disappeared so mysteriously while the battle was in progress, was reported today to be right back where it started from—in the safe of the donor, and not lost in the turtle soup for which this annual picnic is infamous.

Unger would not commit himself as to whether or not he had the cup in his possession, but declared he would not give it up until the game is replayed under the rules agreed upon.

PLAYERS INTIMIDATED

The game was to be played between the Press and the Sun-Telegraph teams. Several of the Sun-Telegraph stars were intimidated and kept away from the scene, they allege, by dire threats, while others were fed up on turtle soup to the extent that they could not get out of the way of a foul tip, and old and feebie copy readers had to be used in their stead. Foul work there.

The game was to have been softball, too, but Steve Cox was prevailed upon to substitute mushballs at the last minute, and bats with holes in them were thrust into play when the Sun-Telegraph team had its innings.

Charles J. Doyle, of the Sun-Telegraph, was made umpire-in-chief, and it was learned later that this was done because he could be relied upon to lean over backward to see that his fellow workers did not get any the better of the decisions. Judge Frank P. Patterson, of Common Pleas Court, was to be the umpire—and what kept him away from there?

MATTER OF JUSTICE

Confident that there was something very odiferous about the entire game, aside from the play of at least one of the teams, and cognizant of the fact that the official scorer is reported to have dropped all of the first digits off the scores of the Sun-Telegraph team in the innings in which it scored 10 or more runs, Donor Unger believes that it is only fair to justice, the Department of Justice, the Halls of Justice, Justice is Blind, Justice of the Peace and Just as Good as You Are to order a replay.

And it is so ordered. Call off them bloodhounds, Sirs. Seek and ye shall find the cup, the bowl, or what have you. But try and get it!

Perroni Scores Win Over Risko

CLEVELAND, July 25.—(AP.)—Patsy Perroni, Boston Italian heavyweight, slugged his way to win the decision over Johnny Risko, Cleveland veteran, in a 10-round battle here last night.

The decision gave Perroni two victories over Risko.

N. KENSINGTON NINE WINS

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., July 25.—The New Kensington American Legion junior baseball team will battle the Claridge Juniors at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, this evening, the winner to annex the Western Pennsylvania championship and win the right to compete in the state tourney at Reading later in the week.

New Kensington evened the series with Claridge here last evening, winning the second game, 9 to 2, as Sokol hurled six-hit ball to stop the hard-hitting Claridge tossers. New Kensington slugged out 14 safe hits, including three by Playfair, star shortstop and hurler. The score:

AUSSIES LOSE IN LAST TWO SINGLES

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 25.—By one of the grandest comebacks ever staged in the history of the Davis cup, Frank Shields and Sidney Wood carried America into the challenge round today by winning the last two singles matches from Australia in the inter-zone finals.

First Wood defeated Jack Crawford, the master Australian, 6-3, 9-7, 4-6, 4-6, 6-2, in what was called the "key match." Then Shields came on the courts to beat Vivian McGrath in the closing encounter in straight sets.

COMPLETE REVERSAL

Thus was an amazing turn-over of form achieved. In the opening singles on Saturday, the Anzacs seemed to clinch the series. They won both of the singles matches to take a lead of 2-to-0, leaving them the necessity of scoring only one more point to advance into the challenge round against England.

It was a point they never were to get. Faced by failure, the Americans rose magnificently to the challenge. In the doubles on Monday, Lester Stoefen and George Lott scored the first American point by beating the Australian pair. Then yesterday, Wood, playing tennis such as seldom had been seen at Wimbledon, reeled off two straight sets against Crawford.

The latter had been expected to win handily. Instead, he was stormed off the court and virtually was being routed when rain halted play. Upon resumption today, Crawford took the third and fourth sets and seemed about to win the match, ending everything. But Wood rallied brilliantly to win the fifth and deciding set.

Then Shields, playing with McGrath as a cat would a mouse, took the deciding match, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

A gallery of 2,000, largely favoring the Australians at first, finally had to recognize the sheer gallantry of the Americans' final surge and, at the close, they were cheering Shields' every move.

It was the first time since 1932 that America had been able to fight its way to the challenge round. Last year, it was eliminated by the British in the inter-zone finals. This year, it seemed as though history must repeat itself. But fate and the fight of the Americans willed otherwise.

ENGLAND NEXT FOE

Hard pressed as they were to make this final day's rush to victory, the Americans must next turn their attention to the challenge round with the British, coming up Saturday. It will be the same British—Fred Perry and Bunny Austin—who scored the surprise victory over America in last year's finals and then went on to take the cup from France. But the Americans will be different, much different.

Last year's Americans lost in straight matches. This year's—well, after what happened today, it was quite evident that this year's team is not the one to repeat that ignominy.

Personalities In Softball

Al (Speed) Anderson, of the Hunzeker Radiators, is the city's leading strikeout king. In five games he fanned 43 batters and allowed only seven runs. He has struck out 507 batters in mushball while chalking up 24 victories against no defeats. He pitched four tie games. The lanky flinger has two no-hit, no-run games to his credit. Anderson recorded 88 strikeouts in four games against the Homestead Park team. Only 16 runs have been scored off him in mushball play.

Speed Anderson

Anthony Oskin, star hurler of the Campbell Lunch Shamrocks, established a record for softball in these parts when he pitched the Shamrocks to three successive shutout victories in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur tournament. He also pitched 35 consecutive innings without allowing a run. Oskins has pitched two 1-1 tie games against Al Anderson. The first game was called on account of rain after three innings had been played and the second after nine because of darkness.

Fire Destroys Six Buildings at Bowie

BOWIE, Md., July 25.—(AP.)—Fire, which destroyed six buildings of the Bowie race track, was brought under control early today by the combined force of 14 Southern Maryland volunteer fire companies just as the water supply gave out.

Firemen were forced to use hand extinguishers to fight numerous small grass fires, set by sparks driven from the dying embers of the ruins by a strong wind. No other buildings were endangered.

No horses were stabled in the burned buildings and the animals in other stables did not have to be moved.

SLUMP OF BUCS, SENATORS FEATURE MAJOR LEAGUE RACES

Believe It Or Not By Ripley

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: FAULTLESS DRIVING—Bill Sims, of Canton, O., started driving trucks, taxis and private automobiles way back in 1911, and his total mileage since that time is more than a million—more than 40 times around the world. And in these 23 years Sims never has been involved in an accident of any kind—a very praiseworthy record. Yet Sims' three driving rules are simple enough. Keep your car under control at all times, slow up at crossings or where visibility is impaired and always do the right thing when you believe the other driver is going to do the wrong thing. Observance of these rules by all motorists would reduce the ever-amounting list of auto accidents in the United States.

GIANTS CHECK ADVANCE OF CARDINALS

Associated Press.

From pennant winner and leading contender to just a couple of second-division clubs—that summarizes the slumps of the Washington Senators and Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pittsburgh, which was expected to be in the midst of the current National League race with the Giants, Cubs and Cardinals, Tuesday found itself near the bottom of the season's worst slump today after nine straight defeats. The Bucs struck a new low yesterday when they took a 9-to-8 beating from the Phillies, being limited to four hits by Sylvester Johnson, and dropped out a point behind Boston into fifth place.

NATS FALTER

The Senators were in even worse condition as they skidded off into the sixth notch in the American League standing for the second time within a week after a 4-1 defeat at the hands of the last-place White Sox.

The Giants snubbed the Cardinals' race toward the top of the National League on Roy Parmelee's four-hit flinger, winning 5 to 0, and the Tigers, in the American League cage through to a 6-to-3 triumph over Boston's Red Sox with the aid of some flashy relief hurling by Clarence Phillips.

COMBS INJURED

The decision increased Detroit's lead to two games over the Yankees as the Browns handed New York a 4-to-2 setback to go into fifth place.

The second-place Cubs held their spot two games behind the Giants by making good use of six hits and seven walks off Van Mungo to beat the Dodgers 6 to 3, behind Bill Lee's steady hurling.

Old Flint Rhem provided the fourth of the National League's good mound performances by holding the Reds to seven hits while the Braves broke a six-game streak with a 4-3 victory that lifted them barely into the first division. In the Americans Monte Pearson recorded his twelfth victory as the third place Indians defeated Philadelphia, 10 to 6.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Rumor has it that the National League recently voted to withdraw the lively ball and say nothing about it . . . Pie Traynor, manager of the Pirates, is on record as being ag'in the rabbit pellet . . . The local professional football team almost handed Nick Lukats, the Notre Dame star . . . With Nick it was a tossup whether he got a job for which he was angling or playing for Art Rooney's Pirates . . . The job materialized.

Out in Chicago they think Lee Rodak, the young featherweight star is another Barney Ross . . . He came up through the Golden Gloves amateur ranks, the same as Ross, and hasn't been beaten since he turned professional . . . Last week he defeated Patsy Hayes, conqueror of Kid Chocolate . . . Lou Little, Columbia coach who recently attended Pitt's football clinic, will hold one of his own in New York beginning August 27 . . . He will be aided by Herb Kopf, his assistant, a former W. & J. ace.

The California Boxing Commission showed the way to similar bodies by setting down Referee Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion, for two months for making what was declared a bad decision in a bout the other night . . . If the officials were laid off now and then for poor work they'd be more careful . . . Yi Yi Erne, former crack lightweight boxer, of Philadelphia, is grooming his only son to follow in his footsteps.

If he hadn't died first, Johnny Black, former local newspaperman and pioneer automobile racing publicist, would have been the chief mourner for Bill Pickens, the veteran promoter, who died a few days ago at the age of 60 . . . Bill never had a bigger booster than our Johnny . . . One thing they can't blame on Dillinger is the theft of the trophy put up for the mushball game between the Press and the Sun-Telegraph-Post-Gazette teams, which marred the baseball scribes' annual picnic . . . How about putting it up for the winner of the Vines-Dundee-Ted Yarosz fight, Mr. Smith?

Jackie McCloy, of the McKeesport team, of the State Association, is studying to be a doctor . . . And Pitcher Dye is said to have the fastest ball in the league, while Pitcher Ifft looks as if he may go up and . . . Catcher Tumely is developing in fine fashion . . . The braves doesn't look the same in the second half as it did in the first . . . The tail-enders that were have turned the tables and now are fighting around the top, making an interesting situation.

TOURNEY TEAMS MEET TODAY

By PHIL GRABOWSKI

Softball enthusiasts will get an opportunity to see two undefeated teams battle for the Bracket III championship of the senior division when Manager Perry Thomas' Campbell Box Lunch Shamrocks, of East Liberty, clash with the S. A. O'Toole Club at Hazelwood today in the feature contest of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament. The O'Tooles have won six straight games, while the Shamrocks annexed five in a row. A large crowd is expected to view this game.

Perry Thomas

A victory for the O'Tooles will give them the bracket title. If the Campbells win they will take the bracket lead, but they must face the Hunzeker Radiators to clinch the Bracket III honors. The Hunzekers have been beaten twice. If the Campbells lose today and Saturday they will have to meet the Huns in a playoff game to decide the runner-up team, that is, if the East Liberty Drugs lose to the Harris Reds tomorrow. A three-way tie for second place is possible and also a tie for the lead may be the result of this week's play in Bracket III.

Bullet Oskin is Manager Perry Thomas' selection to pitch against Danny Hagan, of the O'Tooles. In recent games, Oskin twirled a 1-1 tie against Al Anderson, while Hagan easily defeated the East Liberty Drugs, 14-1. Oskin is rated as one of the best flingers in the city. He has been pitching great for the Campbells.

Vince O'Toole, who is subbing at shortstop for Ira Rush, of the O'Tooles, has been playing a great game in the shortfield. Rab Hiller and Johnny O'Connor, also of the O'Tooles, are playing a fine game.

The C. J. Wahls, of the North Side, will meet the Goodwill Industries team in a Bracket II game of the senior class at Marshall Field this evening. The Wahls now are being managed by Bob Adams. Henry Flowers will get the call to pitch for Goodwill.

The Hunzeker Radiators defeated the Blues Chasers, of Verona, 7 to 2, in Bracket III of the senior division yesterday on the Veronian Field. Al Anderson pitched for the Huns and yielded only three hits.

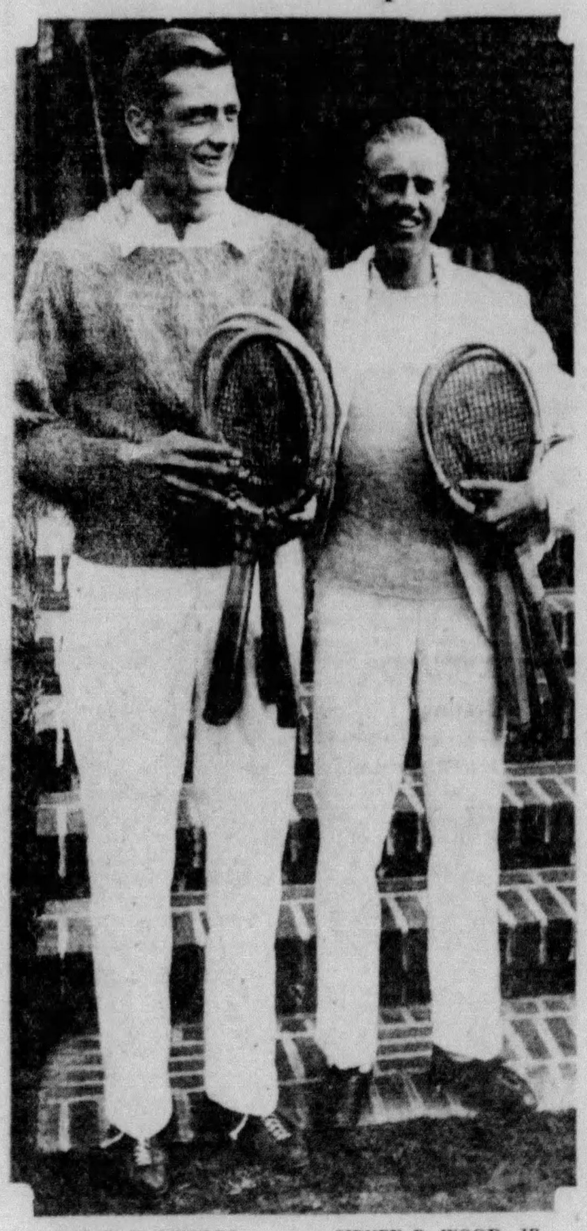
Softball Slants

The Hunzeker Radiator and Campbell Box Lunch game, which resulted in a 1-1 tie last week, will be played on Saturday on the Magee Field.

Harry Langford, of the Campbell Lunch team, pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the East Liberty Drugs last Sunday. He won the game, 8-0, in seven innings. The game was played with a 14-inch ball. Langford also plays in the outfield for the Shamrocks.

The Younckx Newsie handed the New Kensington Merchants their second defeat, 7 to 3, at Hazelwood in an Intermediate Division game. This setback virtually eliminated the New Kensington team. The Younckx are in second place.

Win Davis Cup Final



FRANK X. SHIELDS SIDNEY B. WOOD, JR.

American stars whose victories over Vivian McGrath and Jack Crawford, respectively, today put the United States in the challenge round for the Davis Cup against England. They had been beaten in their first singles engagements, Wood by McGrath and Shields by Crawford. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

BOOK TOSSERS FACE DORMONT

With the leadership of the league at stake in the game, it is believed that George Spiers, veteran infielder and former minor leaguer, will be playing shortstop when the Book team, defending champion of the City League, appears at the Dormont High School field this evening to meet Falconer's club.

While the two leading teams are fighting it out, Immaculate Heart will be the attraction at the Frick Park grounds meeting the Parmelee nine. The game should interest Edgewood fans.

In last evening's City League tussles, Parmelee walloped Mt. Oliver, 13 to 4; Books trimmed Homewood, 3 to 1, and Carroll went the route and gave up only five hits and Dormont defeated the Vaughans, 9 to 7.

Entries for the National Baseball Federation series will close July 28. Immaculate Heart, last year's winner, the Mellon-Stuart nine, Greater Pittsburgh League champions, and the Resurrection club are the latest to enter. Managers should get in touch with Steve Cox at Atlantic 1450.

Beale to Speak On Negro Stars

Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will have Harry Beale, secretary of the Pittsburgh Crawfords baseball team, as his guest speaker on the weekly program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department over WCAE at 6:45 o'clock this evening.

Beale will speak on an interesting subject—the high-class Negro baseball teams of the National League which show regularly in Pittsburgh, how they are organized, how they train, how they travel and how well they play. He'll answer the old question of whether there are Negro players who compare with the major league stars, tell what's become of Smoky Joe Williams and other stars and cover the subject generally.

A Tip to Husbands Who Hate to Cut Grass

WE don't blame you! Cutting the grass on a hot Saturday afternoon is no fun. But here's a tip: Don't let anyone tell you you can't have a rest and a nice cold bottle of beer in between halves! You deserve it, and, if the beer is Iron City, you won't mind the job at all. Its delicious flavor just hits the right spot. Always have Iron City in the house for just such occasions. EVANS AND MARKS FINALISTS IN JUNIOR GOLF TOURNEY

BILL GOLDBERG, MELVIN LOSE AT STANTON

By TOM BIRKS

Charles E. Evans, Jr., of the Wenango Country Club and a member of the Hill Farm team, interscholastic champion, was playing James Marks, Jr., of the Oakmont Country Club and captain of the Princeton freshman golf team, in the 18-hole final of the Western Pennsylvania Junior championship over the Stanton Heights course today.

Evans attained the final round by virtue of a brilliant victory over Barrett Melvin, pre-tourney favorite, also from Wenango, 3 and 2, while Marks triumphed at the expense of Bill Goldberg, of Waynesburg, 5 and 3.

Evans' victory was the outstanding upset of the tourney. Melvin played great golf in the qualifying round for the National Open and in the Pennsylvania State amateur tourney, but he was decidedly off his game this morning.

Evans was out in 37, while Melvin took 39 strokes. Evans was 2 up at the turn. Melvin won the tenth with a par 4, halved the next two holes, lost the fourteenth, and when Evans halved the fifteenth and sixteenth in par the match was over.

Marks also was out in 37 and Goldberg took 41 strokes, being 4 down. Goldberg played better on the back nine, winning the tenth, but Marks won the fourteenth and fifteenth and the match, 5 and 3.

In the second division semi-finals, Bill Stevenson defeated Dave Jamison, 3 and 1, while George Morse defeated Ed Oppenheimer, 5 and 4. The cards:

Out—
Evans	554	443	444—37
Melvin	465	443	535—39
In—
Evans	555	344	4
Melvin	455	434	4
Out—
Marks	564	543	438—37
Goldberg	655	544	534—41
In—
Marks	445	354
Goldberg	346	365

Schenley Park offers a mixed foursome tourney, Scotch style today, and the event, under the sponsorship of the Wosengo Club, figures to result in a good donation to the national public links tourney fund.

Tomorrow, two tournaments are carded at the Churchill Valley. In the morning, the women are to play, the event being a kickers' handicap. In the afternoon, the men will stage an 18-hole medal play tourney under full handicaps, the entrance fee is $1. All golfers are invited. Call today for starting time at Churchill 6400. The proceeds of the tourneys also will go to the national public links fund.

QUAILL CLUB WINS

The Quaill Club mushball team officially opened its new Milan Field last evening. The team lost the first game to Oakhill, 9-3, but defeated the Donkey Aces in the second, 3-2.

At Last---Yarosz Title Match Signed!

COMMISSIONER W. D. M'CLELLAND — MANAGER RAY FOUTTS

Foutts, manager of Ted Yarosz, signing contract at Hickey Park office for the Monaca star to box Vince Dundee for the world middleweight title at Forbes Field on September 10. Ross represents financial backers of the show. After much wrangling, Yarosz signed for 15 per cent of the gross gate, plus $500 for training expenses. Dundee receives $25,000 guarantee. They're to box 15 rounds. Club has option of Yarosz' services if he wins the title. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Dundee to Box Yarosz For Flat Guarantee

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

In the wake of the clinching of the Vince Dundee-Ted Yarosz fight for the middleweight championship of the world, to be fought over the 15-round route at Forbes Field Monday night, September 10, these interesting features are revealed:

1—Dundee is not receiving a privilege of 37½ per cent along with his $25,000 guarantee, as at first announced. He will box for the flat guarantee.

2—In return for his 15 per cent and $500 training expenses, Yarosz gives the Hickey Park Club an option on his services in his first championship fight in Pittsburgh if he wins, which calls for the club to produce a suitable opponent by June 31 of next year.

5—On this basis, if the show draws $50,000, which is approximately $20,000 more than the largest previous gate here, the "nut" aside from Dundee's $25,000 guarantee, will be 5 per cent of $2,500 for the boxing commission, 15 per cent of the remaining $47,500, or $7,025, for Yarosz, for a total of $34,525, leaving a balance of $15,475 out of which to pay for the preliminaries, tickets, help, park rental of $5,937, headquarters, lighting, policing and all other expenses, including the club's profit.

HIGH ESTIMATE SET

The club figures the show will go anywhere from $60,000 to $100,000, which is generally believed to be a high estimate.

Yarosz' contract was signed by Manager Foutts yesterday. The option on his services remains to be drawn up and signed.

Jack Dempsey will lend his hand to the promotion, coming here to act as referee in two of the bouts. Yarosz will train at Conneaut Lake and Dundee at Hickey Park, where he will establish quarters two weeks before the fight. Foutts left last night for Conneaut Lake and will be back on Friday. Max Waxman, manager of Dundee, will be here at the same time to conclude arrangements.

HAS BIG BACKING

Behind the promotion is a group of influential local men who are putting up the money. The actual promotion of the fight is in the hands of Bus Vogel, the Hickey Park promoter, who signed the boxers, and Andy Ross. It will be the first world championship match ever fought in Pittsburgh. Champions have boxed here before, but not with their titles at stake.

WALKER'S CLAIM OUT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—(AP.)—Mickey Walker's latest ring plans of reducing to the middleweight division limit again, putting in a priority claim to the world 160-pound title and offering it at stake in a 10-round bout here August 14 with Young Corbett, of Fresno, met with a chilly reception from the California State Athletic Commission.

Commissioner Claire Goodwin officially frowned on such a program with the statement:

"We feel that Walker has absolutely no claim to the middleweight championship. We cannot recognize him as title holder and we will not permit the fight with Corbett to be billed as for the middleweight title."

BARRON LEADS SARAZEN

"Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, of Chicago, with a four under par 68, led Bill Mehlhorn, of Louisville, by three holes at the end of their morning round. Cooper shot the outgoing nine in 33 to stand 3 up against Mehlhorn's 36. They both came back in 35.

Ky Laffoon, of Denver, who has a strain of Cherokee Indian in him, rolled up a lead of seven holes on Horton Smith, of Chicago, at the end of their morning round. Laffoon, who is regarded by his older competitors as "Little Poison," blazed his way around the course in 69, three under par, while Smith took 76 strokes.

Both of them playing the best golf of the morning round, Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, led Walter Hagen, five times champion, 1 up at the end of 18 holes. Shute carded a 67, five under par, while Hagen was one stroke higher.

Al Watrous, Detroit veteran, shaved two strokes off par to stand 6 up on Frank Ball, of Haines Falls, N. Y., at the end of 18 holes. Watrous was out in 34 with birdies on the first and sixth to lead Ball by 5 up and he picked up another hole with a birdie 4 on the eighteenth.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The parade of champions gets under way today as the inter-park elimination series of the annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh Parks tennis championships begins on the finely conditioned gallery courts of Frick Park. The inter-park classic, wherein captors of men's and women's singles honors in preliminary play in Frick, Highland, North, Olympia, Schenley, South, and West parks meet for city laurels of their respective divisions, carries with it, in addition to titular distinction, first legs on the new Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph challenge trophies, trips as Steel City representatives and Sun-Telegraph guests to the national public parks championships at Minneapolis from August 13 to 19, and valuable permanent awards. All of which suggests

Three masculine and as many feminine frays grace the inaugural card. This means that 12 of the 14 titled survivors of the field of 286 municipal net performers that squared off in the individual parks a week ago yesterday will be called upon to cavort.

WALD FACES MEYER

Harry Wald, Frick victor and first seeded aspirant in the inter-park play, heads the opening bill by engaging Bob Meyer, decisive winner at West Park. The fray will feature Wald's sturdy service, dangerous forehand, and usually effective barrier attack against the strong defense and always tantalizing chop strokes of the North Sider.

Perhaps the hottest session of the day, however, will be reeled off as City Champion Al McCorkle tackles Joe Kristufek, McKeesport darkhorse, who swept through a South Park host of 50 without encountering serious menace.

In the women's classification, Elizabeth McColligan, experienced South satellite and second seeded pursuer of the Parks awards, opposes Myrtle Gordon, a McKeesporter who, like Kristufek, has spurted from the pack to a post close to the head of the procession.

The other feminine fracases, though they involve racquetresses who have yet to establish outstanding reputations in championship milling, loom as spirited affairs. In the upper half of the draw, Betty Recker, annexer of the North Park prize, skirmishes with Mrs. Sue Giltenboth, Highland leader, for the right to pass ahead to engage Mrs. Artzberger.

FRICK PARK SET

It has been determined by the committee in charge of the tourney to confine the entire inter-park series to the Frick lot. It had been previously announced that a part of the program would be run off at South, but the awkwardness and inconvenience of attempting to conduct hostilities involving players from many different localities on the two widely separated layouts has caused rejection of this plan. The current idea is to wind up quarter-finals today, semi-finals tomorrow and finals Saturday. Friday and Sunday may see activity in case of bad weather.

HELEN JACOBS ADVANCES

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 25.—(AP.)—Helen Jacobs, national women's tennis champion, continued her advance toward the capture of another Seabright Bowl by easily beating Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., 6-0, 6-2, today in the quarter-finals of the annual invitation tournament here.

Despite the heavy turf after a night of rain, Miss Jacobs had excellent control of her chop strokes, found her rival's service shaky and generally appeared at the top of her game.

Gracyn Wheeler, of Los Angeles, accounted for her third upset of the week by conquering Baroness Maud Levi, of New York, 6-3, 9-7.

Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, reached the semi-finals without a struggle. Her opponent, Mrs. Penelope Anderson McBride, of Short Hills, N. J., was obliged to default because of a wrenched shoulder.

Louise Sanders, Monongahela, Pa.
"COOL . . . as a sheet of ice and a blanket of snow!"

James Ball, Jr., 302 Hawkins Ave., N. Braddock, Pa.
"COOL . . . as a raised lorgnette!"

WHAT "COOL-A-GRAMS" ARE: Cool-a-Grams are short, snappy descriptions of the cool places, services and aids that appear in the "KEEP COOL!" hot weather guide published in this section of the Sun-Telegraph on Sunday, Wednesday and Friday.

Here, for instance, are some typical "Cool-a-Grams":—COOL . . . as a penthouse in Siberia! . . . COOL . . . as a pocket-full of ice! . . . COOL . . . as an Eskimo's nose! . . . COOL . . . as an Arctic breeze!

WHAT COOL-A-GRAMS ARE WORTH TO YOU! The Sun-Telegraph will pay ONE DOLLAR for every "Cool-a-Gram" accepted and published on this "Keep Cool" page.

HOW TO SUBMIT COOL-A-GRAMS: Read the advertisement on this "Keep Cool" page to get some idea of the type of "Cool-a-Gram" you expect to write.

Type or write legibly the Cool-a-Gram you wish to submit on an individual sheet of paper and forward it with your name and address to the COOL-A-GRAM EDITOR, in care of the Sun-Telegraph. You may submit as many Cool-a-Grams as you wish. For each one accepted and published you will receive a check for one dollar. Employes of the Sun-Telegraph and their relatives are not eligible to enter the Cool-a-Gram contest.

Memory Test

1—There have been many instances of more than two horses finishing in a dead heat in a race. It has occurred frequently with three horses and back in 1885 four horses finished in a dead heat in a five-horse race at Newmarket, England.

Cast Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER V.

Linda clutched at Jerome. He looked overhead. A huge macaw with gorgeous plumage was perched on a high branch watching them. It gave a harsh cry and flew away.

"We seem to have struck the retreat for some sort of hermit. But if he doesn't want intruders why should he have set our boat adrift?"

There seemed to be no reasonable answer to this. Even more puzzling, the premises showed evidence not only of a great deal of work performed originally in the building of the house and laying out of the plantations, but also of an upkeep that required constant labor.

There was no appearance of abandonment. In the tropics the struggle to keep back the encroachment of the jungle is constant so that a few days of neglect would find such a clearing overgrown and its plantations choked with rank vegetation.

Yet on the contrary there were none of those evidences of present tenantry that are to be seen about an inhabited dwelling and its immediate surroundings. The place looked as if it had been recently closed and its accessories gathered up and put away for the brief absence of its occupant. Whoever this might be he would scarcely absent himself for any length of time without leaving a caretaker to keep the premises in order and feed the chickens and whatever other dependencies might still be revealed.

Thinks People 'Nutty'

Jerome expressed this idea, then said, "It looks to me as if there might be a native village or quarters or something not so far away and that the people are shy and mischievous and nutty."

"They must be nutty to have set our boat adrift," Linda agreed. "That doesn't make sense."

They walked over to the house. Its walls were solidly built from blocks of lava stone and its peaked roof was thatched with palm. It faced the pool and there was a veranda with a thatched covering sloping down so that its edge was low.

"This door came from some old palace, I should say, or monastery perhaps," he said, and tried the latch. It was unlocked and they went into a living room that was spacious and high ceilinged, cool and dark. It was barely furnished with a few heavy pieces and fine grass mats but no textiles of any sort that might be destroyed by mold or insects.

The interior confirmed the opinion that the premises had been closed within the last few hours and things put away during the absence of the owner.

"But he's not going to be long away," Jerome said.

"Why not?"

"Because he wouldn't leave such things as these indefinitely at the mercy of anybody who happened to land here. Just look at those chests along the wall. Each one is a museum piece. Priceless."

Four Large Chests

There were four of these chests in the large room. Two were about six feet long by two feet wide and slightly deeper, made from some cabinet wood that had darkened with age. They were richly carved on the top and sides. Three heavy locks secured them and there were great handles of brass at either end. Their state of preservation was excellent and two or three still showed heavy gilding and color.

"Old Spanish chests?" Linda asked.

Jerome leaned over one and examined it. "Yes, but made in Holland, I should say. This one has royal arms. The Duke of Alava's, perhaps. But here's another that's pure Spanish. They're all worth their weight in gold."

"He must have a lot of confidence in his looney caretakers," Linda said.

"I don't believe he's left for very long." Jerome took hold of one of the brass handles and tested the weight of a chest. "Packed full of stuff too."

"Let's hope he's left a few clothes handy. It would be a crime to break into these."

Two rooms opened off the large one. One had a handsome table desk of marquetry and a couple of prelate's chairs with high backs. Along the walls were mahogany book shelves with the doors closely fitted but with the keys in the locks.

The other room had a big four-poster bed that was cane bottomed. It had neither mattress, pillows or sheets. There were no closets, but two huge armoiries that were empty. All the windows were screened under heavy wooden jalousie shutters.

Hunt Cook House

"Here's shelter," Jerome said. "But that's all. As there's no kitchen there must be a cook house and store room somewhere."

They went out and round the house. In the rear they found another but smaller stone building with thatched roof behind a thick clump of bamboos. It was about 15 by 20 and the heavy door of this also was unlocked. It had two rooms that proved to be kitchen and store room, as Jerome had said. The kitchen was bare of everything but a cook stove and the ordinary utensils. But there seemed to be no tableware of any sort nor any cutlery. The store room, however, was well stocked with supplies of the sort that a ship might carry for a long voyage. There were crates and boxes of staples and delicacies, either tinned or in glass.

"There was a bin of charcoal in the corner of the kitchen and bamboo splinters for kindling."

A beaten path led from the kitchen to a thick clump of vivid green where there was a clear spring and a deep basin that had been stoned in. The cackling of hens came from nearby.

They set some water to boil and went out to inspect the poultry yard. It was a wire-fenced enclosure with two long chicken houses built of planks and thatched like the other buildings. A number of chickens were straying about, many at liberty outside. Their needs were supplied by a self feeder that had been recently filled with mixed grain, and a stack of sunflowers was heaped in one corner. And there was a pool that was probably spring fed. Inside the hen houses were rows of nests from which they gathered eggs. Jerome laughed:

"None of this checks. Food is all wide open and the clothes are all locked up."

'Locoed Island'

She said irritably, "It's a locoed island. Owner and everybody."

"Chests worth a fortune. No telling what's in them. A storeroom full of supplies for anybody that comes along. Yet not so much as an old pair of white duck breeches or a pair of grass slippers; or a hatchet or even a kitchen knife to pare yams."

"Not one thing's been done to protect anything from strangers landing here. But there's been care to put away every little thing that might be carried off by mischievous children or idiots."

"Then what do you deduce from that?"

"What any normal intelligence ought. The owner has reason to believe that nobody dares land, but it has inhabitants who are apt to pick up things left lying round and carry them off."

"Then why not the stores?"

Linda rose, stepped to the door, and took from a hook on the back of it a heavy whip. She tossed it to Jerome. "That looks like a series of lessons to keep out of the kitchen."

"It's a South African shambok—a rhinoceros hide whip. And it's not been hanging here as an ornament. You could cut a Kaffir half in two with the beastly thing."

"That he's a cruel devil?"

"Yes. Spanish probably. The chests date from the Spanish occupation of the Netherlands. The desk is Dutch marquetry. I've seen painted leather chairs like those in shops in old Spanish colonies; and that shambok is Boer—came from the veldt.

"Some of the Boers were pretty bad when it came to flogging native servants, I've been told . . . Listen!"

Synopsis

Jerome Crain, young naval architect, and a wealthy society girl, named Linda, are guests aboard the yacht owned by the millionaire, Thomas Tucker, anchored at San Cristobal. Jerome and Linda are bored with one another and when the other guests go ashore, the young couple, each believing the other had gone, stays on board. One of the sailors contracts fever and the yacht is quarantined. No one is allowed to come aboard or leave. Jerome and Linda escape in a skiff, landing on a strange island. Linda wanders off while Jerome repairs the boat. Later, he finds her scantily clad, the clothes she took off to dry missing. Linda and Jerome have the uncomfortable feeling of being followed. Then an eerie cry issues from the jungle. Frightened, they hurry back to the beach in time to see their boat—which Jerome had tied securely—drifting away and most of his clothes gone, too. Searching for the mysterious person, or persons, responsible for their plight, they come upon a small plantation and a house which has a carefully tended yet vacant look.

Now Go On

Junior Patrol Mail Box

The contest this week has the same prizes as last week, fellows!

First prize is $2.50, second prize is $1.50, third prize is $1. If you haven't sent in a letter yet telling us all about the best outing you ever had, do it right now!

Hustle hustle hustle! The contest this week closes tomorrow midnight. You only have today and tomorrow! How about mailing at least one letter tonight, and five more tomorrow! Just remember, don't write more than 100 words and send all your letters to the Junior Patrol contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. And you must be a Junior Patrol member to compete.

First prize letter was written by John Alden, who lives in The Vandergrift Home, Coulters, Pa. He says:

"Living up to the first promise: 'I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.'

"I am in the home, of course, and there is a smaller boy than me. I take care of him. I wash him and give him my playthings. Every night I wash him and another little boy, too. They came from the nursery last March, I think. I try to keep him out of all dangers, as he likes to eat things off the ground. He is a nice boy to play with, too. I like him very much."

Now here is the second prize letter from Eugene Eichar, of 1206 Sherman street, Wilkinsburg. He writes:

"The proudest things that I have done since I joined the Junior Patrol I will tell in this letter. I have a neighbor who has five kids and is out of work. And Easter time, I bought their two babies an Easter basket full of candy and toys and put it on their front porch. We have another friend and he is 8 years old and a cripple. His mother never buys him anything so I took 10 cents and bought him a little ball and some chewing gum."

Even though you think you want to be a doctor or a lawyer when you grow up, fellows, it is usually a good idea to learn how to do useful things with your hands.

We know lots of successful men, who have enough money so that they don't really have to work, who have a lot of fun making things.

Daily Short Short-Story

By EMILY CALVIN BLAKE

"Good-by, Beth. Sure you have the sample I want to match?"

"Sure. It's in my purse. I'll run over for it at lunch time."

Mrs. Rogers remained in the kitchen till she heard the front door close. Then, almost guiltily, she went into the living room as she did every morning that she might watch the slender figure till it turned the corner. When Beth disappeared she sighed, for a feeling of emptiness fell upon her. The hours loomed so long till Beth—"the best daughter in the world"—should come swinging in again, the really high light of her day.

She went at once to her sewing table in the little dining room and lifted the filmy, dancing frock she was making for Sybil Harding.

Beth's face rose before her and suddenly tears brimmed her eyes. And then through the crystal of those tears she saw Beth arrayed, as always in her dreams she saw her, in floating chiffons, silver slippers and pearls about her white throat. In her fancy she saw Beth pirouet before a long door mirror. "Do I look nice, mother?" she asked.

"You look lovely. Where did you say you were going?"

"To the theater afterwards to the Ludon House with Antonio's orchestra. We'll dance—"

"That is what I have prayed for you—that life would be beautiful that you should be happy."

"And so I am because of your care. Don't I know? Your prayers, your hopes for me. Such a wonderful mother."

The tears dimmed her vision now, for she had not known how much such spoken words would mean to her. But tenderly she touched her girl's soft cheek. "Now, run along. He will be here soon and you must be quite ready."

"I've knocked twice, Mrs. Rogers, and you did not hear me. So I came right in. Can you alter the neckline of this blue dress for me today so I can wear it this evening?"

She was about to tell her customer that she would take on nothing more for the day already was filled to the brim with work. And then she visioned Beth again clad in the moonlight dress. She straightened her shoulders as mentally she adjusted here and there, an apple for lunch, a pick-up supper. She could work at swifter pace so that some day her hidden dreams for Beth might come true.

The day outside was dull and gloomy, but Beth at her filing cases did not notice. Deep in her dreams she and her mother were in Florida and the sun shone in golden brightness on the sand; the ocean rolled in with soft murmurings.

"Happy, mother?"

"Oh, so happy, dear, but a bit conscience-stricken. You worked so hard all the years and now you are spending everything on me. It doesn't seem fair."

"Beth, there never was such a daughter as you."

Beth turned her face away a moment. She had not realized how greatly she had longed to hear such words. But when she spoke her voice was bright, teasing. "Foolish. I'm just ordinary garden variety."

"We'll not argue about that, Beth."

"No, not worth while, Mother. I'm glad your hair is white. I used to be sorry because I thought white hair meant that you were old. But now its just sweet with those wide waves."

"That cost you such a pretty penny. But it is nice never to have to bother with curlers. I wet the waves through sometimes just to see them fall back into place."

"I always meant you should have a permanent. Listen, mother, when we come here again, next winter, I'll have a little car and we'll go riding all over the place."

"Miss Rogers, would you mind answering the telephone?"

Oh, how long had that bell been ringing? And old Curtis ready to pounce for the slightest infraction. And if he put a blue slip in her pay envelope Saturday, where would all her dreams go?

Well, she'd show him; make up for her negligence by taking only twenty minutes for lunch at noon; give herself just enough time to run to the corner drug store for a sandwich and back.

At 6:30, tired and hungry, Beth opened the front door and walked on into the kitchen and gave the usual greeting: "Hello, ma."

Mrs. Rogers turned from setting the table. On it were cold meat, bread, butter and fruit.

"Hello, Beth," she answered. Then: "Anything new today?"

"No. Only Mrs. Allen wanted her blue dress altered and I had to work it in somewhere."

"So I see there'll be a cold meal again tonight. It does seem as though I'd rate above a customer occasionally!"

"No—I'll do it tomorrow."

"Clean forgot, I suppose. Well, I'm not surprised. If ever you'd give a thought to me or to your home once you're out of sight I'd put a red chalk mark on the wall."

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Southern Snow

There is never any snow here,
We know naught of virgin snow,
Nothing of the white flakes swirling
While the winds of winter blow.

Here are ever sun and summer,
And the only snows here falling
Are the petals on the ground.

Drifted petals of spent roses,
Red and yellow, pink and white,
Falling, falling like the snow flakes
In the days of winter's blight.

Little hills of scarlet snow,
Tossing as the light winds blow.

There is never any snow here
All our snows are perfumed petals
Falling slowly all year long.

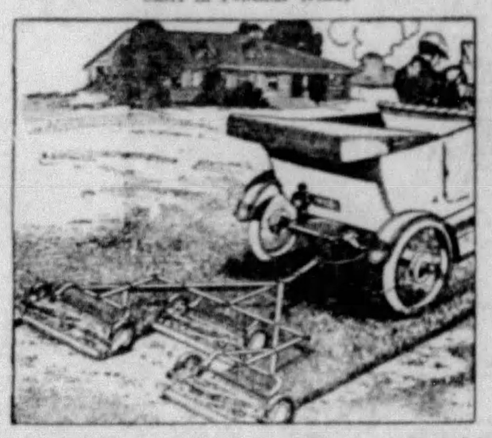
Congressman Says He Is Unworried by Possible Shift in Political Winds



The Three Mowers, Held in a Fixed Position to Each Other By the Angle-Steel Frame, Are Drawn by the Car at a Very Good Speed and Cut a 10-Foot Swath, According to Frisby.

WASHINGTON (N. J.)—Badgered by newssharks eager to discover his opinion of his own chances of being mentioned, nominated and elected to office in the fall, Congressman Horace B. Frisby today revealed his ace in the hole. "You boys may be worried," snarled Frisby in a jocular vein, "but I'm not. What if my opponents do win, due to the backing they will receive from the big interests and those who believe in half-baked radical ideas unsupported by all thinking Americans? What if they do win? You know what'll happen? I know what'll happen. Grass will grow in the streets. Yes, sir, grass will grow in the streets. And that's where the Frisby Little Gem Street Mower will come in mighty handy. As I see it, if my opponents are elected, a Frisby Street Mower will be installed in back of every motor car operating on our highways today. And you can bet a cookie I'll get a nice piece of change from royalties. If I'm elected, well and good. But Frisby's sitting pretty, no matter what happens."

Another Kind of Overproduction

There's is a jolly life, what with waving at the sailors and dusting the return punch. Bananas grow freely on the trees, and coconuts drop on native skulls in the national form of balkline billiards.

There isn't a thing that happened yesterday that couldn't be postponed until tomorrow. Nobody hustles in the burnished glare of the noonday sun, and life is apparently as serene as a lily pond.

But and that's the word where the dictionary parts its bangs, there is a flea on the custard.

There are too many lawyers and doctors in our neighboring republic. Both professions specialize in commercial advice. Both professions are white collar trades imparting great social prestige to the indulgee therein. Which is why all the young men desire to become doctors and lawyers to the exclusion of less classical but more industrious forms of honesty.

Having followed the history of certain Central American commonwealths, we find that the President of the republic is usually a doctor, and the dictator is a lawyer. Sometimes, it is the other way round. All depending on who gets up first in the morning.

It seems that these two professions are unable to keep out of politics. So what does the republic do when it discovers it has too many doctors and lawyers?

It issues a proclamation stating that its university will graduate no more medicos, pettifoggers or mouthpieces for the next five years.

With no diplomas to be secured until 1939, the boys will have to study something useful.

It ain't a bad idea for other nations to investigate. It seems to us that there are always too many lawyers. Especially on the other guy's side.

We don't have to worry about too many doctors and lawyers being graduated from our big colleges. We have a form of undergraduate activity known as football. The students, themselves, plow under about 60 per cent of the spring crop by the simple process of kicking one another around a 40-acre lot.

ODD FACTS

Sport is to take second place to home duties among German girls, by order of the "Nazi" sport director, who says that women must only be allowed to take part in sport so long as their health is not endangered.

One of the chief sports of the nomadic tribes of Central Asia is to hunt with golden eagles that have been trained to chase and capture antelopes, foxes, wild goats and wolves.

The Tax Burden

Candidates Should Be Judged By Their Attitude Toward Governmental Expenditures

Government in these recent years of approaching de facto state socialism has been oppressing creative enterprise in two ways.

First—It has been bullying business, on whose productivity it depends for sustenance. Public servants, forgetting their true role, have sought to become dictatorial masters!

In this process it has been sucking business dry, and has been impairing the efficiency of our magnificent machinery for producing and distributing the essentials of high average living standards.

In recent years the various units of government have been absorbing 20 per cent of the national income in taxes—and in the fiscal year just closed the various units of government actually spent about twice as much as the tax receipts. Total expenditures exceeded 40 per cent of the national income.

In the face of these arresting facts, Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, recently had the effrontery to remark that "the people of this country don't know what it is to be taxed."

As a matter of fact, the British statesmen have recognized that they had authorized destructive tax rates, and the whole British policy of the last year or two has centered around control of expenditures so that taxes could be reduced. The Chancellor of the Exchequer recently announced the first of a series of tax reduction.

In the United States, with our insensate passion for "soaking the thrifty," we continue to be engulfed by an ocean of rising taxes.

The National Industrial Conference Board computed that in 1928 11.8 per cent of our national income was collected in taxes, whereas in 1932 the ratio had risen to 20 per cent. Since 1932 the tax burden, especially the federal, has climbed so that the ratio is doubtless even higher than it was two years ago at the nadir of the depression.

The ratio of government expenditures to the national income in 1932 and 1933 was substantially higher than in the years of our participation in the Great War.

Recent expenditures, approximating 40 per cent of the national income, compare with a ratio of 10 per cent in the pre-war period and around 15 per cent in the period 1922-1929.

Our extravagant government officials are outspending the rest of the world. Great Britain is spending about two-thirds as much per capita, and other countries not more than half as much.

As income is diverted from the productive, self-supporting classes to the bureaucratic tax eaters, the inevitable consequence is a bearing down on the average standard of living.

If the process of increasing taxes were speedily reversed, business and employment would receive a decisive stimulus—vastly more effective from the standpoint of improving confidence and restoring national income than a whole army of half-baked experiments.

In the circumstances, candidates coming up for election next November should be judged largely by their attitude toward taxes and governmental expenditures.

Real statesmanship should promptly set in motion two curative processes.

First, instead of impairing expenditures for education, public health and other valuable social services, the pruning knife should be directed against unnecessary duplications in governmental overhead.

In 1932 the federal government collected only 22.5 per cent of the taxes, as compared with 77.5 per cent collected by state and local governments.

In the process of economizing Americans can most readily spare overlapping local government, which survives primarily to support in indolence "deserving" politicians. The scrapping of superfluous, oxcart county setups should be the first step in the application of sound business principles to the cost of government.

Secondly, since in the nature of things in the coming years of debt liquidation taxes at best will be high and burdensome, it behooves public officials to reform our methods of taxation.

Federal, state and local taxes should be thoroughly modernized.

In the realm of federal taxes the comparatively painless general manufacturers' sales tax, which has succeeded so admirably in Canada, should be instituted. This new impost will pave the way for a reduction in income taxes and also for the elimination of excesses in the methods of administration.

No mere political ballyhoo, no cheerful personality, and no mere phrase-making can be effectively substituted for sound economic arrangements.

One of the greatest depressants of the period, consists of economic waste in the expenditures of government, with the inevitable concomitant of back-breaking taxes on the enterprising and efficient classes.

Purifying the Rivers

The Plan for Sanitary Disposal of the City's Sewage Is Commendable

An act approved April 22, 1905, forbids municipalities to discharge sewage into the waters of the Commonwealth except with the permission of the Sanitary Water Board.

While many small communities have been obliged to establish sewage disposal plants, Pittsburgh, perhaps the worst offender in the state, has been allowed, year after year, to defile the Allegheny, the Monongahela and the Ohio with the endless output of 60 huge sewers.

The smoldering resentment of rivermen and others unable to escape the effluvia has at last burst into flame, and Mayor W. N. McNair has promised to do something about it.

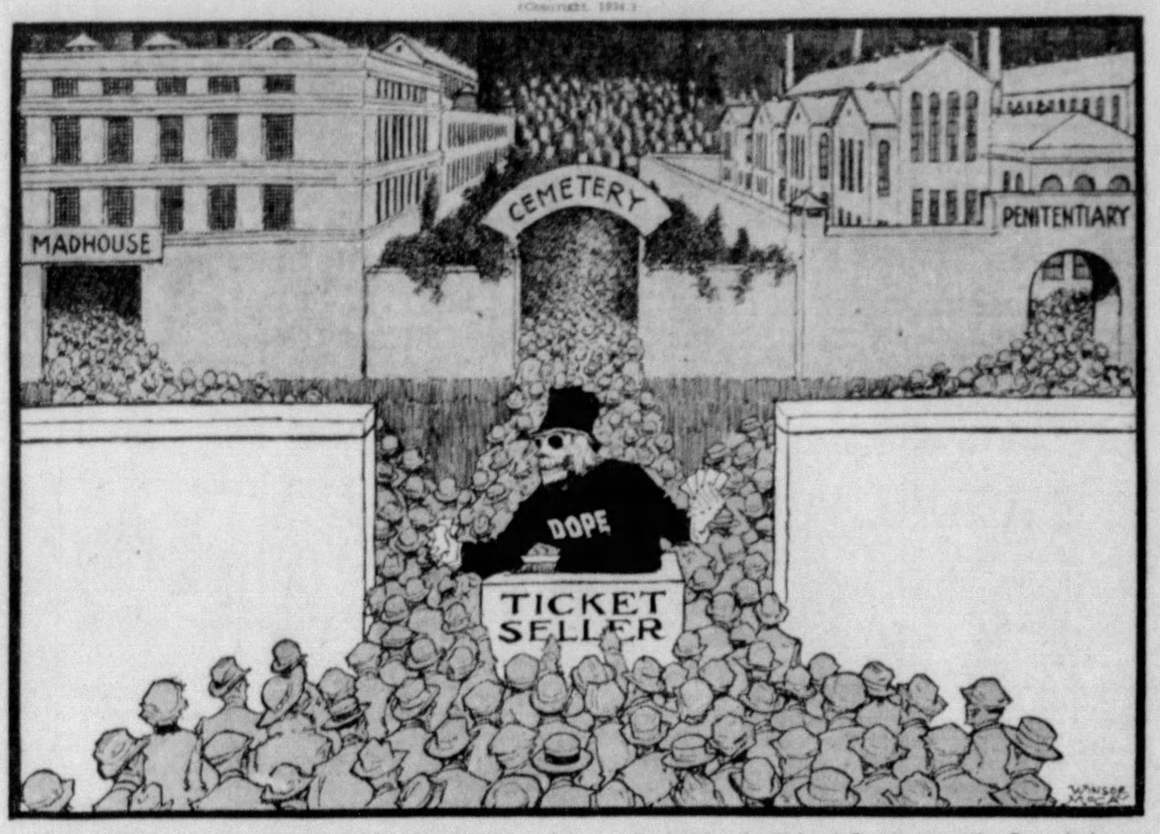
They Pay Their Money and Take Their Choice



Due to new foreign centers of contraband supply "dope" continues to send its victims to prisons, to madhouses and to the graveyards in this country.

As recently as last Saturday the American Narcotic Administration issued, through Stuart J. Fuller, of the State Department, a public warning that "opium smoking is increasing in the United States to such an extent that American officials in close touch with the traffic in illicit drugs are alarmed."

Backed by the Federal Government, the Commission on Uniform State Laws completed a few years ago a Uniform State Narcotic Law, which, if adopted by all the States, would do much to wipe out the "dope" evil.

This fall, however, new legislatures will be elected in some of these laggard States, and now is the time for a new anti-narcotic campaign—a campaign to elect legislatures which will pass the Uniform State Narcotic Law in those States that have not done so.

Until the uniform State law is uniformly in effect the Federal Government cannot stamp out the "dope" evil.

DEPORT UNDESIRABLES

By James T. Williams, Jr.

BY HIS direct appeal to the President for federal deportation of undesirable aliens, the Governor of California has performed a two-fold service of national value.

He has focused the attention of the whole country upon the imperative necessity of ridding American soil of aliens who abuse its hospitality.

He has aroused the administration to the urgency of its obligation to enforce the laws which provide for the deportation of undesirable aliens.

President Roosevelt's reply to Gov. Merriam's appeal naturally came from Secretary Perkins. As Secretary of Labor, she is primarily responsible under the law for taking into custody and deporting the following classes of undesirables:

Aliens entering the United States unlawfully—that is, in violation of existing immigration laws.

Third, aliens teaching Communism.

Fourth, aliens sentenced to prison for a term of one year or more after conviction in this country of a crime involving moral turpitude committed within five years after entry to the United States.

Fifth, aliens sentenced more than once for a term of one year or more of imprisonment after conviction in this country of any crime involving moral turpitude at any time after entry.

* * *

Strengthening Of Laws Needed

A BILL introduced in the House last April by Representative Crowe, of Indiana, had the approval of the Department of Labor in spite of the fact that its enactment "would wipe out every mandatory provision of the principal deportation statutes of the United States."

For example, existing law directs that aliens who advocate or teach the overthrow of government by force and violence shall be deported. No such mandatory provision appeared in the Crowe bill, which also omitted all direct reference and anarchistic and similar classes and would have permitted cancellation of expulsion proceedings in the case of an alien who had not "engaged in subversive political agitation or conduct."

Now would seem to be the time for vigorous enforcement of existing deportation laws and for the strengthening of these laws where experience demonstrates such a need. All over the United States alien agitators have appeared who boast of their success in incubating all sorts of disorder and defiance of Government.

All aliens are here as guests of the country. Theirs is the obligation to obey the country's laws. The federal government admits them and upon the federal government devolves the duty of getting rid of them when they prove their unfitness to remain as guests of the country.

* * *

Candidates Should Declare Themselves

IN VIEW of the prominence of undesirable aliens among the agitators of a general strike in San Francisco and of the troubles that can be traced to undesirable aliens North and South, East and West, candidates for both houses of the new Congress may well be required in the coming campaign to declare themselves upon this vital issue.

Any changes in existing deportation laws made by the next Congress ought to be for the purpose of increasing their effectiveness.

Undesirable aliens who are making trouble in this country have generally been driven out of their own country. They have flocked to America to prey upon the American people just as vermin are driven out by a housecleaning from one house to another.

If Gov. Merriam's appeal to President Roosevelt for federal leadership in ridding the United States of all deportable aliens results in an active and aggressive enforcement of the deportation laws, every state in the Union will find it easier to aid the federal government in keeping America American.

WISE WORDS

We can do more good by being good than in any other way.

If in the end of one mercy were not the beginning of another, we were undone.

Truth is so related and co-related, that no department of her realm is isolated.

He who reigns within himself, and rules passions, desires and fears, is more than a king.

The essence of true nobility is neglect of self. Let the thought of self pass in, and the beauty of a great action is gone, like the bloom from a soiled flower.

Learn About Women

Advice to a young man who wants to be "among those invited:"

* * *

1—Always play up to the matrons. Remember that it's the mature woman, not the sweet young thing, who holds the whip hand socially and gives most of the week-end parties. She can get you in—or freeze you out.

2—Always star your hostess, no matter if she is 10 years your senior and has fallen arches and a caste in her eye. She may not have the slightest sentimental interest in you—but a woman never loses her vanity until the last breath. * * *

3—When invited for a day at the country house, be sure to leave your evening open. Your hostess may expect you to stay for dinner; so, don't leave her up a tree, in order to rush back for that date in town.

* * *

4—Concentrate most of your attention and enthusiasm on the MOTHERS of the pretty gals. Remember that it is they who own the country houses, the bungalows and the cabanas—and who do most of the inviting and entertaining. * * *

* * *

6—When you are visiting one woman and drinking her cocktails, never make the foolish mistake of trying to date up any other woman you may meet at her house. Those girls always TELL!

* * *

7—Always play a woman's game and follow her lead. If she wishes to leave the impression that you are her special property, don't get stage fright and spoil the picture. She may be only trying to get another man's GOAT—not to get YOU.

* * *

8—Don't mix your women—and don't "change cars" too quickly, too violently, too obviously or too often. No woman likes to feel that she is "one of a procession;" and men with a Don Juan reputation soon cease to be invited to the best houses.

* * *

9—If you can't "carry your liquor," leave it in the glass. The butler will enjoy it. Two cocktails may make you bright, but three may make you just a terrible problem.

Women run the social game—and they have a code which is far more rigid and far older than any uner the NRA.

* * *

If you want to be "among those invited," it is not enough to know how to click your heels together, bow from the waist and do the European hand-kiss. You've got to KNOW WOMEN!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The Lost Children of America

Black night. Hot, heavy, skulking silence—with the loom of trees and the line of tracks lost in murk an arm's length away.

Motionless air—thick with the sour stench of soft coal cinders and swamp slime. Through it a man and a 15-year-old boy stumbled their way toward a distant camp. A night bird squalled. A twig cracked like a pistol shot. Then the silence shut down again. There was only the panting of the laboring bodies.

The boy stopped, hauled up the rags from a limping leg, shifted a couple of chickens from one bony hand to the other. The man, his arms full of stolen melons, shuffled on, half asleep. The boy limped after him.

Through the darkness a greasy grayness oozed, spread. There came a confused cawing of voices . . . a huddle of dark bodies. The meager coals of a hobo "jungle" glowed against the dank dawn.

"God," said the boy abruptly, "God is guts."

"Yes," the boy continued presently to no one in particular, "yes, there is a God, and that god is guts. What makes a guy keep pushing on, doing things when he's all in, walking when he is so tired he can sleep standing up, going without food when he is hungry? It is his guts, ain't it? And when a man loses his guts, he's lost everything.

"Anybody can get by in this world if he just keeps his guts. He can lose his money, he can lose his friends, he can lose his front and he can lose his health, but if he keeps his guts he ain't lost everything yet. But if he loses his guts, he's all washed up. There ain't nothing left. Because when he loses his guts he's lost his God, and then he's no better than a stick or a rock or anything else.

"For it's his guts that make man different from everything else and so long as he keeps them he doesn't have to care if he's hungry or cold or down and out. His God and his guts will see him through."

"But when he dies—" drawled the man— "where does he go then?"

"When he dies," muttered the boy indifferently, shifting the chickens again, "when he dies he goes out like a match."

A child's idea of God — there shouldn't be anything gentler than that, should there?

For what should a care-free, happy youngster know of God save friendly hands, gay laughter, blue sky for a flying kite, green grass for racing feet, and a mother's arms at night?

And what should one think of a great, rich, proud, beautiful country where a 15-year-old boy knows nothing of all these . . . where hundreds and thousands of half-starved, homeless children have no kinder, lovelier ideal than a tramp's rough courage, a "bindle stiff's" crafty nerve . . . a land whose babies believe that "God is guts"?

There is such a land. We made it, you and I. We live in it and love it. It is called America. We think it is the finest place on earth. We honestly believe that it gives children the best breaks.

And yet a few weeks ago, while you were tucking your small one in bed and I was listening to my little tad saying "Now I lay me"—out in the darkness another child was stumbling along to a hobo camp, carrying stolen food and saying that "when a man dies he goes out like a match."

No knowledge of joy, no hope of justice, no hunger for beauty in that small, tired voice—only a bitter belief that "God is guts" and that "if a feller has enough guts he'll get by."

That child was one of America's thousands of homeless children. The man who listened was Thomas Minehan. And Thomas Minehan has set down that story, with many another, in a heart-breaking, ghastly record which should shame all America, called "BOY AND GIRL TRAMPS OF AMERICA," published by Farrar & Rinehart.

"The Wild Children of Russia"—do you remember how we shuddered when we heard of them, after the war? Thousands of homeless boys and girls, orphaned by the war—living like wolves in cellars and caves—fighting like wolves for food and shelter and sex. A ghastly picture, and a black shame to any country that permitted it, we cried — and thanked God that nothing like that would ever be seen in America.

But now it is! And there—in Thomas Minehan's book—in the police records of every state—in the federal records at Washington—lies the record, plain for us all to read, of AMERICA'S CRIME AGAINST HER CHILDREN

And you and I, who made America—what can we answer?

Our Merchant Marine

By CAPTAIN JENS MUNTHE CAPPELEN

Master of the Steamship 'Georgian'

WHAT is the true position of our great merchant marine, still with millions of tons of deadweight, on paper, and as yet—but for how long—doing its bit for our foreign trade?

Our present fleet of tramp steamers, the bulk of it, IS LIKE A FLEET OF SECOND-HAND AUTOMOBILES, almost worn out, with their vitality gone, their backs broken, and the annual repairs eating them up.

These are vital questions to our great and growing nation and we are now at the turning of the crosswords. It takes time to replace even a part of our merchant fleet. Time, money and initiative, and NOW is the time to act.

All other nations with seacoast and sea trade aspirations have, during the past 15 years, built themselves up by replacements of old tramp tonnage, a modern, fast and efficient freight fleet, whereas we have lagged sadly behind, restricting our efforts to a few flashy liners and some few costly alterations of old tonnage.

We have now come to the point where the question arises—and cannot longer be evaded, without vital damage to our overseas trade in the near, yes, immediate, future—SHALL OUR MERCHANT MARINE SURVIVE, or are we going back to the old and costly state of affairs where foreign bottoms and nations are going to dictate not only the terms of our export trade, but also show us our helplessness, our fatal shortcomings in case of a war?

THE bulk of our tramp steamers, still on paper millions of tons, are now mostly all over 15 years old, worn out by constant tramping across the oceans, and these war-built vessels are shivering and groaning under the weight of their old age, ready for the scrap heap.

God help them in case a war should come on before their days are over! There will be a sad, watery grave for plenty of them and their American crews, with dozens of modern 14 to 18 knots auxiliary cruisers, quickly mobilized from the enemy's own up-to-date merchant fleet, against their poor 10 or 11 knots.

When our slow freighters start to disappear, without trace, it will be too late to think of what we might have done.

The fact is that our problem is not so much a question of subsidies or no subsidies. It is more vital than that. IT AFFECTS OUR WHOLE BEING AS A FIRST-CLASS SEA-GOING NATION—and such we must by force remain, because of our seacoast and geographical position.

We may call it mail subsidies or direct subsidies, we may agree that plenty of money has been wasted in pursuing wrong policies by which some aid to ships and shipping has been rendered in the past.

But let us not, at this critical moment, lose sight of the vital fact that OUR WHOLE MERCHANT MARINE AND WITH IT THE FUTURE WELL-BEING AND PROSPERITY OF OUR GREAT COUNTRY, IS AT STAKE RIGHT NOW.

OUR government has, it is true, spent millions of dollars on keeping our old, war-built merchant fleet on the seven seas in spite of the great and growing odds against it.

Outside of a few big liners, not enough thought, foresight and money has been spent, as it should have been, on MODERNIZING AND REPLACING THE BIG BULK OF OUR MERCHANT FLEET—THE MEDIUM-SIZE TRAMP STEAMER.

The subsidy has, so to say, been poured almost indiscriminately into a vast, bottomless hole, with no earthly hope of any return from the investment, just to keep the ball rolling. And as a result this money is no doubt absolutely and totally lost and gone, and must be written off the ledger.

For when these mortgaged and subsidized vessels in a very few years succumb to old age there will be nothing to recover from and nothing to show for it except a DECADE OF ARTIFICIALLY RUN SHIPPING, WRONGLY PLANNED.

And the owners of these vessels, who have during this time been fighting a losing battle trying to keep these old, slow and second-hand vessels running, with freights at untold low depths, with heavy repair bills, and high insurance and what not eating them up, have not made any money, even with the subsidies they have been receiving, but have mostly all had very hard sledding to keep things moving, even at the expense of their own capital.

IT IS, THEREFORE, UP TO THE GOVERNMENT NOW, BY A STRONG, POSITIVE AND HELPFUL NEW POLICY, TO AID IN THE PROPER UPBUILDING OF A NEW, MODERN AND EFFICIENT MERCHANT MARINE—not to try to cut the ground from under these owners' and agents' feet.

Unless something is done now our export and import trade will return to the aliens, who will then be able and willing to dictate our terms, and, you may be sure, will make us pay through the nose.

They all are giving big mail subsidies to their liners, but in addition England is now contemplating a direct subsidy TO ALL TONNAGE, besides going into partnership to the tune of fifty millions of dollars as STOCKHOLDERS in the new Cunard merger.

France is also in the market for additional support for its tramp steamer tonnage on a big scale. In fact, THE TREND ABROAD NOW IS IN FAVOR OF MORE AID TO MERCHANT MARINE TONNAGE, and this means up-to-date new vessels with low cost and small repairs and low insurance.

Under these conditions our government should study this whole matter most carefully before taking action, because our whole future merchant marine fate hangs in the balance.

What is needed is not to cut the ground from under our merchant marine, already weak and tottering, but, by a constructive, strong and progressive policy from now on, to aid the merchant marine to replace its old, worn-out tonnage and get back on its feet, in the interest of the whole nation.

Let us hope that the President will solve this vital question. Let us hope for a NEW DEAL for the MERCHANT MARINE.

ABOARD SS. MALOLO, July 25.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The big thing you hear about on the Pacific side of the world is the great exposition at Melbourne, Australia, in October. It's the tourists' next great roundup. It's where that greatest of all air races is to end. Fifty thousand dollar prize from London to Melbourne, 12 thousand miles. We have over a dozen of our crack fliers and over half the ships in it will be American made. Wish the Army and Navy would put a boy apiece in there. Wiley Post hopes to make it in 50 hours keeping the championship in Oklahoma. I would sho love to be with Wiley. I could be his navigator. I have flown that very same route ten thousand of the twelve from Singapore to London on the Dutch line. Hope to see lots of aviation on this trip.
